Morse Pleads For Committee Study of Bill

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Sen. Morse today pleaded for the Senate to refer the civil rights bill to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

He said it was to lead the Senate can vote and that Southwesterners will join in the bill.

He said the method now contemplated to act on the bill after bypassing the committee could endanger orderly legislative process.

Morse announced previously he intends to offer a motion to send the bill to the committee with instructions to report back by a specified date.

When the period of hysteria now sweeping the country passes away, Morse predicted, "My position will be sustained."

He got praise for his statement from Sen. Bill Jenner and Tom McCall.

Information Curtailed on Tribe Funds

PORTLAND, July 13 (AP)—The public will no longer be informed of per capita payments to Indian tribes in the Northwest.

Don C. Foster, Portland area director, said the tribal council of the Warm Springs Indians had protested that publicity of such payments is not advantageous to either the tribe or the individual members, and should be curtailed.

Foster said similar requests have been made by other tribes in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The Indians complained that publicity of per capita payments gave the impression that members of the tribe are overly endowed with financial wealth.

However, she has continued to develop physically and has weight and height normal for a child her age.

Reverly, a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital in Portland, is recovering from a special standing bed and hospital aides to give the child daily physical exercise.

Showdown Believed Near in London Disarmament Session

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—The showdown negotiations between Russia and the Western Powers led to the United States are moving rapidly toward a showdown.

A radical change in the Soviet bargaining position at London is even considered possible, although wholly unlikely.

Some worthwhile Russian concessions were expected to reach the London talks before Bulgann and Communist party boss Khrushchev get back to Moscow from their tour of Czechoslovakia next week.

The crucial point in the future of the disarmament negotiations is a requirement by the U.S. command that the U.S. power submarine fleet which is building in the London meetings should report to the 12-nation full committee by Aug. 1.

Washington officials said today that some report will have to be made on or about that date. It may very well force all the governments involved—the British, French and Canadian, as well as the American and Soviet—to take a serious look at where they stand and perhaps concede that the most hopeful effort in a decade of arms control parleying between East and West has not made much progress.

There was some hope here that the Khrushchev purge of men like former Foreign Minister A. Molotov, coupled with Khrushchev's declarations easing international tensions, would bring the Russians around to more agreeable positions on major arms control issues. But so far the evidence is that Khrushchev is more interested in talking about peace than in doing something about it.
