

C'mon in! The water's great!

Sky's blue, sun's hot, and there's the water . . . cool and crystal clear. Won't be another day like this all summer. So jump in, dive in or climb down the ladder . . . but make sure you get in a swim! You can, you know, even if it is your time of the month. Turn to Tampax, and enjoy yourself.

Tampax follows the medical principle of internal absorption. This means you can doff the belt-pin-pad harness for keeps! (Tampax is just 1/9 the size of an external pad—but it's just as absorbent.) It also means you can hop into a swim suit and dive into the water without a worry in the world. Not a chance of lines showing, bulges bulging or odor forming. You're altogether comfortable. No rubbing. No chafing.

Keep cool with Tampax® internal sanitary protection. You can buy it in your choice of three absorbencies—Regular, Super, Junior—wherever drug products are sold. You'll find changing takes seconds. Disposal's neat and easy—applicator and all! Get in the swim—even on "those days." Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

Leather In a New Light

by RUTH W. LEE, Home Furnishings Consultant

GET SET to see leather in a new light! Always a favorite upholstery material, today it's being used for draperies, window shades, screens, and imaginative room dividers.

All this is possible because improved processing renders leather lightweight, petal-soft, washable, and stretch- and fadeproof. There's color to the story, too, with decorator shades ranging from subtle pastels to vibrant hues.

The wonderful new workability of leather also gives it wider scope for upholstery. No longer limited to club chairs and such, it takes beautifully to elegant traditional and contemporary designs.

Twisted strips of leather in aqua, black, white, and tangerine run from the ceiling to the floor to make a charming and delightfully different room divider.

Where is the leather in this room? In the green café curtains and light cylinders, and in the rose-beige screen, sofa, tea-table tops, and unusual tub chairs.
