Animal Brand Talks Planned

The second annual brand inspection conference for state department of agriculture personnel engaged in livestock brand inspections and related work will be held at Pringle Falls Aug. 7 to 11. About 100 men will attend, with the conference divided into two sections to avoid disruption of public services.

W. E. Knickerbocker, chief of the division of animal industry will head the school, assisted by Livestock Supervising Officers Henry Matschner, E. L. Wright and Chester B. Luechy. Robert J. Neward, director of agriculture, will participate, as will Charlie McCracken, Boise, Idaho state brand inspector; Jerry Mulcahy, Olympia, Washington brand supervisor, and representatives of the Oregon Cattlemen's association and the State Livestock Advisory Board.

Purpose of the conference is to promote greater uniformity and efficiency in the Oregon brand inspection work and to keep the inspectors informed of new developments.

Berry Marketing Organization Plan To Be Studied

Berry growers interested in forming a marketing organization have been invited to a meeting at the 1044 Fellows Hall, Amity, Thursday night, according to a circular which reportedly has been sent to all berry growers in the Willamette Valley.

If we have missed any growers who are interested, they are invited too, Howard Davidson, Amity berry grower, reports. Davidson is spearheading the move toward union organization.

The circular also asked growers to write to members of the Oregon delegation in Congress to urge a Department of Justice investigation of prices paid berry grower.

Architect Studies Capitol Area Plan

Oregon State Capitol Building architect Francis Keally (left), New York, in Salem yesterday for a meeting of the Capitol Planning Commission, confers with Dr. George W. Control Board Studies Progress Report On Master Plan for Capitol Development

Members of the State Board of Control and the Capitol Planning Commission heard a "progress report" Monday from the architects employed to prepare a master plan for future Capitol development.

Reporting were Wilmsen & Endicott, architects of Eugene and Herman Brookman, Portland associate, and Francis Keally, New York, designer of the present Capitol.

Each of the principals presented sketches of plans for the development of the Capitol area which embraces the land from Court Street north to D Street, between North Summer and Winter streets. In a number of respects they were in agreement.

Favor Closing Plan
All favored closing of Chenebeka and Union streets. All favored developing a park at the north end of the area using the native trees and the water of North Mill creek which crosses the tract.

They favored, too, less formal building development than the present marble-fronted, block type buildings along the mall.

Ideas differed, however, on the interior design of the area.

Brookman, influenced by the broad avenue of the Spanish capital of Madrid where he passed the winter, urged a broad explanade with wide walkways with buildings on the side, with the present divided Summer Street merging into a single wide access street at the North.

He would site the supreme court building either on one side of the mall or in the park tract opposite a governor's mansion. He would adorn the mall with trees and provide benches along the avenue, and have fountains in the center.

Wilmsen and Endicott, in presenting their schemes, admitted they were aiming for the ideal in their recommendations of redesign of local patterns. They urged that the Southern Pacific tracks be moved to parallel the freeway (Highway 99) and that Court Center and Marion be the only streets crossing the Capitol zone.

Joint Undertaking
In proposing a park development at the North they suggested it might be a joint city-state undertaking in that area provisions might be made for an auditorium, an outdoor pavilion or for historical and art museums. They stressed the need for bigger facilities for housing joint sessions of the Legislature and for other state-related gatherings.

Francis Keally commended the firm for his vision in long-range planning for Capitol development.

Here, he said, you can provide a harmonious and beautiful grouping of government buildings which other states for lack of foresight have failed to do. This will attract visitors from all over the country and all over the world, as the present Capitol already is doing.

Keally recommended that north of Center Street some flexibility in design and location of buildings and in materials employed be permitted. He recommended strongly that a Supreme Court building be located at the northern end of the mall, to be of marble, but of low height. Intervening structures south to Center street might be sited at a diagonal, of modern office type, perhaps finished in some of the new metals.

Sketch Presented
He sketched in the park at the northern end the stream and an island on which a governor's mansion might be located. If an auditorium and exhibit hall were provided they might be located across the bordering streets at the North.

In answer to a question from Secretary of State Hatfield on whether it would be wise to go ahead and locate the new building authorized by the last Legislature Keally urged that this be delayed until the master plan is approved.

After the presentation G. Gleeson and Chairman Keally commended the architects for their efforts and declared their planning would be helpful to the state officials.

Youth Meted Probation

A 17-year-old Turner youth received a suspended commitment to MacLaren's School for Boys Monday when he appeared in Marion County Juvenile Court on a charge of larceny from an automobile.

Terms of his probation include keeping steadily employed, maintaining reasonable hours and close supervision from the county juvenile department.

The boy was booked on the larceny charge involving theft of a purse from a car in Newport earlier this month, the juvenile department said. He has a record of past offenses and had been on court probation.

A second 17-year-old youth from Astoria booked on the larceny charge also is awaiting court disposition of an auto larceny charge after he was picked up with a third youth in North Bend.

Display Today to Close Area of North High Street

North High Street between Court and State streets will be closed to traffic this morning and afternoon for a display of a trailer caravan sponsored by Queen for a Day radio program.

Salem display of the 75-trailer caravan en route from Los Angeles to the Seattle Seafair is sponsored by KSLM radio station.

Postal Receipts Make Sharp Climb

Salem Post Office reported a sharp upturn in postal receipts Monday.

Postmaster Albert C. Gragg said the report period covering the past four weeks shows receipts totaling $82,000, or 14 per cent more than was received in the comparable period last year.

The gain was higher than the average 7.18 per cent increase in postal receipts so far averages 7 per cent, Gragg said.

Multnomah's County Fair Due Thursday

Floral Competition To Be Big Feature

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Garden Editor, The Statesman

First of the numerous county fairs which will be held in the Willamette Valley during August gets underway Thursday and will carry through Aug. 16. This is the Multnomah County Fair at Gresham.

One of the big features at this show is the floral competition, according to Duane Hennessey, fair manager. Mrs. Marshall Yeager, superintendent of the floral show, says that the flower event will actually be divided into two events: the first show scheduled for Aug. 1 through 5, and the second will take over from Aug. 6 through 10.

Four major classifications of competition have been listed for those entering the first show. Included are cut flowers, outdoor potted plants or baskets, arrangements and garden club arrangements. The outdoor potted plants or baskets entered for competition only in the first show, will remain on display the entire 16 days.

Major Show Phases
Major phases of competition in the second show will be corsages, cut flowers and arrangements with another special section restricted to garden club competition.

Norvell Gillespie, Los Angeles, will head the judging staff for both shows.

For the first time in recent years, floral exhibits will be displayed in the old floral building in addition to exhibits, half the building will be transformed into a summer garden, according to Mrs. Eugene Raebel, supervisor of exhibits. This garden will feature plantings of all the summer and fall blooms.

One of New Themes
"Mobile in Basket," one of the new themes this year at the flower show, will feature dry materials in a design of hanging containers.

"Vegetables," "Summer Bouquet," and "Spirit of the Fair" will interpret the color and feeling of the harvest season while green materials only will be used in an arrangement titled "Texture." The full cycle of growth, the bud, the flower, and either the fruit or seed pod, will be pictured in "Glory of the Seasons."

Pedestrian Struck by Car

Stanley G. Cruse, Independence, was hit by a car at 2:25 p.m. Monday at Commercial and State streets, city police said. First aidmen said Cruse told them he would see a doctor.

Mrs. Evelyn L. Morley, 1427 E. Stark Ave., listed as driver told police that the accident occurred as she glanced to see if the sun was shining in her baby's eyes, according to police reports.

Drowning Victim's Rites Thursday

2-Line Fishing 'Just Not Fair'

It's just not fair to the fish—that's what the state of Oregon believes about fishing with more than one line at a time, a Portland man learned to his sorrow Monday.

Edward Oliver Johnson, Portland, was convicted and fined $15 in Marion County District Court when he appeared on a charge of angling with two lines in McCarthy Lake last weekend.

Man Found in Tavern Admits Burglary

A man cornered in a Salem area tavern last week by city police Monday pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary not in a dwelling during criminal arraignments in Marion County Circuit Court.

John Raleigh Taylor, 1370 Nebraska Ave., was booked on the charge Friday after a private citizen notified police he saw a man enter Charley and Eleanor's Tavern on 940 N. Commercial St. about 3:15 Friday morning.

Judge George R. Duncon continued sentencing for an investigation on Taylor.

Judge Duncon also sentenced Robert V. Harpole to an additional year in the state prison on a charge of escape from the penitentiary.

Harpole was serving a two-year term on a felony charge when he walked away from the prison farm July 12, 1953. He was taken into custody this February in Tempe, Ariz., and later indicted by a Marion County grand jury.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Claude Everett Suedis, 419 State St., after he pleaded guilty to a charge of oblaining money and property by false pretenses. The charge involves a $25 check cashed at a Salem market.

Will new filter-tips protect you against cancer?

Scientists say it is the amount of tar and nicotine in the smoke which has a serious effect on health.

But when you buy a package of filter cigarettes there is no way of telling the degree to which these impurities will be filtered out. Now, the latest laboratory findings, reported in August Reader's Digest, give you this information, and by brand name.

This article makes exciting—and hopeful—reading. One filter-tip cigarette now offers a 23% improvement in tar filtration... and 50% less nicotine in the smoke! Other improved filters are on the way.

This Reader's Digest article will be talked about from Coast to Coast. Don't miss it!
