Inside TV
Gisele MacKenzie in Big Time TV Circuit

By EVE STARR
 HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 20—STARR REPORT: Gisele MacKenzie is back in Hollywood where she first started to make a name for herself and now she's got it made.
 The girl who once figured to be getting a big break by playing the piano at a private press party at Ciro's six years ago now has a TV show of her own starting on the air Sept. 28 for NBC.
 "It's probably the most exciting thing that ever happened to me," she says "since my violin was stolen and I decided to be a singer. That was really because I'd never heard of a rich female violinist—and I figured if I had to work, I might as well make money while I was at it."
 Up to her black bangs in hair, Gisele is beginning to get the feeling she's on a perennial carousel that won't quit. "Finished 'Hit Parade,' worked in Las Vegas, did 'Anne Get Your Gun' at the Dallas State Fair, went to Europe, did spectaculars on TV over there, flew to Paris to buy some clothes and perfume, back to New York to close up my apartment, out to Hollywood to find a place to live and then, finally, started to work preparing the show. Wow! And to think I'm the kid who likes the leisurely life. None of that for the next several months."
 Gisele, who got her start in Hollywood by backing up Mario Lanza on his radio show, later moved over to the Bob Crosby show. When she was tabbed for "Hit Parade," Bob shook his head sadly and said he had to see her go. "She'll get lost back there," he told me at the time. "Nothing ever happens to people who work 'Hit Parade.'"
 So the only thing that happened to Gisele was being discovered as a comedienne by Jack Benny, who is the behind-the-scenes advisor on her new show. She will also have Charlie Isaacs as head writer (he's written for just about every big comic in the business and last year was producer of "Hey, Jeannie," as well as writers Hugh Wedlock and Howard Snyder, long associated with Benny himself, musical conductor Alex Stordahl and director Joe Landis (who produced the original Liberate TV film series).
 Helping out in front of the cameras will be comedienne Iris Adrian, who will be on every week with Gisele.
 I can still see Gisele sitting at that small piano in an upstairs room at Ciro's, playing and singing "Le Flacere." She was nobody, yet she had an air of warm but forceful authority that clearly indicated somebody like that day has arrived.

Dutch Student Attending Class At Cascade High

By ROXANNE KAISER
 Special Writer
 TURNER, Sept. 20—Peter Schlyper, an aggressive red-headed freckled faced 16-year-old boy, has entered Cascade High School as a freshman.
 He arrived in New York harbor from Terwensen, Holland, on Feb. 12 this year. He has parents, four brothers, ages 10, 11, 13, and 14, and his sister, 17, came directly to Oregon to live in Lyons with his father's sister. After living there 18 weeks the family moved to a permanent residence in Shaw.
 Peter's teachers say he seems to be very eager to learn. Speaking, writing, and understanding the English language is his hardest task. He speaks Dutch and broken English, and understands German. Peter said his general mathematics course is very similar to what he learned in the fifth grade in Holland. Peter says he likes school and his teachers.
 He likes it better in the U.S. than in Holland for he says it is cheaper to live and the people are much friendlier. His comment on our football is "If you're tough it's okay."

Hot Flue Starts Fire

Statesman News Service
 AUMSVILLE, Sept. 20—An overheated flue in the Julian-Vinton home set the building afire shortly after 9 a.m. today.
 Fire Chief Bob Mickey of the Aumsville department said he was unable to place an estimate on the loss.
 Fire started behind asbestos protective covering burning the wall and into the attic.
 There's a staff of 17 news and camera men accompanying the Queen Elizabeth's visit to the U.S. And that's not all. According to Show Business, New York and Hollywood trade magazine, one grand ball alone will cost the network $100,000.

 The parade will form at Lincoln School at 1 p.m., where judging will take place at 1:30.

Burn Victim Member of Raid Party

Statesman News Service
 SUBLIMITY, Sept. 20—Father Martin Senko of St. Boniface High School said last night's rally fire which seriously burned a graduate of Cascade Union High, resulted from a raid.
 Father Senko said Gary Downer, graduate and all-around athletic star last year at Cascade, and two St. Boniface graduates, touched off the rally fire prematurely. St. Boniface students were uptown holding a rally at the time, planning to set fire to the collected pile of trash later in the evening.
 Six St. Boniface students were left to guard the debris when surprised by the three raiders in a car.
 Downer tossed gasoline onto the pile, said Father Senko, and a companion tossed a lighted match. Both Downer dropped the can. The Cascade graduate was seriously burned from the waist up, and is hospitalized at Santiam Memorial Hospital in Stayton.
 Also treated for minor burns was St. Boniface High student Michael Hendricks, one of the six left guarding the material. He was kept overnight in the hospital.
 Father Senko said the three raiders were not connected in any way with Cascade Union High School.
