Armed Forces Plan Virus Vaccine War

By FRANK CAREY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12 (AP) — The armed forces are planning a vaccine war on a respiratory illness virus that principally attacks new recruits.

This was related today by a researcher for the Army. He declared a previously announced vaccine against "adenoviruses" is expected to be put in routine use by the military services during the latter part of next year for immunization of new recruits.

"Adenoviruses" cause such illnesses as virus pneumonia, acute sore throat and a certain type of "grippe."

Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman, of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, addressing the American Public Health Assn.'s 85th annual meeting, said "highly successful" tests of the vaccine during the past three years offer "promise for essential eradication of adenovirus-caused respiratory disease as an important medical problem in the armed forces."

He said the reason for limiting use of the vaccine to new recruits is that the adenovirus attack rate among that particular group is exceedingly high. He said these viruses cause hospitalization of roughly 10 per cent of all basic trainees during a given year, and up to 90 percent of all hospital admissions for acute respiratory illness during winter months in certain military recruit camps.

He declared that "the adenoviruses presently appear to be responsible for only a fraction of the respiratory illnesses among adult civilians."

Also, he said, the attack rate among "seasoned" military personnel is very low. Hilleman told a reporter the seasoned personnel as a group are "relatively immune" due to previous experience with the virus during their own basic training. Also, many of them live "off-post" so that their existence "is more nearly like that of civilians."

Public Party Planned for Anthony Nutting

A public reception has been planned for Anthony Nutting, former British foreign secretary, who will speak at Willamette University Thursday and Friday.

The reception will be held in Doney Hall following his 8 p.m. public lecture Thursday in the Willamette Fine Arts Auditorium.

Nutting will give three public lectures, all in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

He will speak on "Nationalism and the Free World's Survival" at 11 a.m. Thursday and "The Muddle of the Middle East" at 8 p.m. He will talk on "Anglo-American Partnership" Friday at 11 a.m.

Nutting resigned his cabinet post and his seat in Parliament in 1956 during the Suez crisis in protest over his country's military attack on Egypt.

He is a strong advocate of a strong Anglo-American alliance.

In January of this year he wrote, "In the last two months, the Atlantic Alliance has come within an ace of destruction — and bitterest irony of all, not through assaults of its enemies but through errors and omissions of its principal partners, Britain and America. The first imperative task of statesmanship today is to repair the Anglo-American bridge and rebuild the alliance as a truly effective partnership."

Cherrians to Enter Float in Rose Festival

Salem Cherrians Tuesday night accepted a special invitation to enter a float in Portland's Golden Anniversary Rose Festival next year. The Salem entry will be one of 50 floats allowed in the Rose City's 50th Rose Festival parade.

About 30 Cherrians attending the regular monthly meeting in Nopp's Golden Pheasant restaurant also voted to enter a marching unit and assist with arrangements for a Salem merchants' balloon parade to kick off the Christmas season Nov. 23, and to decorate a live tree on the postoffice lawn with Christmas lights.

The Salem entry in the Rose Parade will again be constructed in Salem, King Bing Robert Fischer said. Discussion centered on means of raising approximately $1,200 to make the float and to transport it and a band to Portland.

A design contest open to Salem high school and junior high school art students will again be held with cash prizes.

Fields Merck was appointed by Fischer to head a committee to raise money. A minstrel or vaudeville show of local talent was the most frequently mentioned suggestion.

Verne Wadsworth was appointed to head a committee to make arrangements for the balloon parade.

An old tradition was called to mind in the decision to decorate a tree on the postoffice lawn. Tradition has it that a tree the Cherrians decorated on Marion County Courthouse lawn in 1913 was the first live tree in the U.S. to be decorated for the Christmas season.

Don Doerfler was named chairman of a committee to arrange decorations and plan a lighting ceremony.

Nomination and election of officers was set for Dec. 3 and installation for Jan. 7. Ted Jenny was named chairman of a committee to plan installation ceremonies.

Other nominees are Guy Waldroop and Irvin Harold Johnson for first vice president; Carl Cox, Frank Stone and Fred Klaus, second vice president; Christine Morley, Hazel West and Ruby Hughes, secretary; Janet Bates, Mary Strayer and Dolores Monroe, treasurer.

Retiring president is Herbert Totten, county reappraiser. He was the first president of the organization which now numbers 120 members at the end of its first year. About 40 attended the meeting Tuesday at which rewriting of by-laws to conform to state requirements for the association's recent incorporation also was discussed.

Eighteen nominations were made for the group's first board of directors, which will number six members.

15 Juveniles In Court to Answer Counts

City police reported that two more thefts from Salem business firms as 15 juveniles appeared before city and Marion County juvenile courts to answer an assortment of charges Tuesday. Nearly all of these arrests occurred Monday.

Police said Tuesday that they were called to the Portland Gas and Coke Co., 109 Commercial St. SE, Monday morning when two boys, about 14-years old, stole an unknown amount of money.

H. F. Tiano, an employe of the firm, said that he saw the boys removing envelopes from a deposit chute in the door. He said he tried to catch them but they got away.

A 38-caliber revolver, valued at $100, was stolen in a burglary at Green's Sporting Goods Store, 1201 Commercial St. SE, police said.

Juveniles Blamed

Police said they believe that this burglary was also the work of juveniles. Entrance was gained by forcing a window.

Marion County and city juvenile officers held hearings Tuesday for 15 boys and girls, most of whom had been arrested Monday on charges of shoplifting, carrying a concealed weapon, drunkenness, illegal possession of liquor, truancy, theft, violations of curfew and numerous other charges.

Two Salem boys, aged 14, who told police they had been shoplifting for two years, were released by Marion County juvenile authorities to their parents for home detention.

A 17-year-old was placed on 90-days probation and ordered to make restitution for hubcap theft.

Brothers Released

Two brothers, 14 and 17, were released to their parents and their cases continued for further study. Both were charged with illegal possession of liquor and the older had an additional charge of carrying a concealed weapon, a switchblade knife.

A boy and two girls, all 14 or 15, held on truancy charges, were released.

A 15-year-old Salem boy who had been referred to Marion County officers because of truancy was referred to Gervais High School, where he was instructed to attend regularly.

Another trio charged with curfew violation, two boys, 15, and a 12-year-old girl appeared in Municipal Court, and were certified to Marion County for study.

Liquor Charge Made

Three 14-year-old boys charged with illegal possession of alcohol, were also certified from the city to Marion County to determine future action. One of the boys was also charged with driving without a license and curfew violation.

Others were cited to appear today on numerous charges for hearings and disposition of cases in city and county courts.

Family social studies of the boys and their families are being made to determine future action, said Carl Nelson, Marion County juvenile department director.

A petition was received in Marion County Court Tuesday signed by six Salem families asking additional lighting on Summer Street and Fairview Avenue as a possible way to curb recurring vandalism in that area. The stretch is just out of Salem city limits west of McNary Field.

The petition, sent by George C. Tiffany, 2750 Summer St. SE, listed recent tire slashings, gas thefts, upholstery cutting, and thefts of a car radio, electric clock and other items. The matter was taken under court advisement.

Writer Ruled In Contempt For Silence

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP) — A federal judge today held a newspaper columnist in contempt of court for refusing to reveal her sources of information in a news story.

The columnist, Marie Torre, television writer for the New York Herald Tribune, was sentenced to 10 days' imprisonment, but released in her own recognizance pending an appeal. The Herald Tribune said it will carry the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, to establish that a reporter is entitled to conceal his news sources.

District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, who previously had outlined the course of action he intended to take, told Miss Torre: "I sympathize with you but your position is improperly taken and you have no judicial support."

Judge Ryan pointed out that "the process of the court must be obeyed, not withstanding the high motives which have prompted you to act as you have."

Maneuvers Fail; Junior Beck on Trial

SEATTLE, Nov. 12 (AP) — A number of last-minute legal maneuvers failed today to stall the trial of Dave Beck Jr., 37, on two counts of grand larceny.

Defense attorneys and the prosecution all contributed to the maneuvers which resulted in the case popping up in four courts before finding a place to stay.

It first came up in the court of Presiding Judge Malcolm Douglas who assigned it to trial before Judge William J. Wilkins. Judge Wilkins disqualified himself because he had been on a panel which recommended a grand jury investigation of Teamsters Union affairs.

Property Near Mall Ready for Business Zoning

A block and a half of residential property east of the Capitol Mall is ready for business zoning, but initiative for any zone change should come from property owners, not the city, it was agreed by action Tuesday night of Salem Planning Commission.

The area in question is bounded on three sides by business zones and is about 30 per cent in apartment use, reported T. W. Lowry, chairman of the committee recommending the business zoning. This area is the block bounded by 12th, Court, 13th and Chemeketa Streets plus the half block directly across Chemeketa Street, extending to the east-west alley.

Lowry said a land use study indicated the area is in transition now and should become a C-2 (limited business) zone.

Study of the area began when the commission rejected a variance request under which Oregon State Employes Association sought to locate its offices at Court and 13th Streets. Planners last night in their City Hall meeting said they now understood the OSEA was acquiring property near the Capitol and already zoned for business use.

Planning Director Wesley G. Kvarsten told the commission that his Mid-Willamette Valley Planning Council staff was expanded to five employes this week with the employment of Richard Smith, formerly of Tillamook, as draftsman. A staff of six or seven is planned.

Smith is a University of Oregon graduate recently discharged from the Army after his tour of service.

Commissioners rejected a petition from Herman W. Dunkel for a variance allowing conversion of a house at 1010 Terrace Dr. to two-family use. It is in an R-1 residential zone.

Progress reports were made on committee and staff studies of possible changes in variances for signs, of the proposed traffic couplet of 12th and 13th Streets in South Salem, of pending annexations to Salem and county planning projects.

Purse Strings Loosen For U.S. Missile Work

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 12 (AP) —An indication came today that the purse strings had been loosened on at least one phase of the United States missile program.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers announced it will ask bids soon for construction of new facilities at McGregor Range, where Ft. Bliss does guided missile work.

The public information officer at Ft. Bliss said the money necessary for completion of the second of three phases of construction there "is now available." He said he could not answer when asked whether the money had been made available within the past few weeks.

The engineers corps at Albuquerque said it will advertise Nov. 19 for "guided missile range training facilities."

The facilities will be built about 30 miles southeast of Orogrande, N.M., on the McGregor range and will be permanent in nature. Much construction already has been completed there.
