

At Oregon State Big Game on Agenda for Weekend

By NANCIE OWENS
Statesman Correspondent

CORVALLIS — Even the student body presidents of Oregon and Oregon State are taking part in this year's big game of the season, the Oregon - Oregon State battle, to be held at Eugene on Saturday. The presidents have agreed that "the losing president of Saturday's game between the two rivals ride a bicycle in defeat from the campus of the winner to that of his own school." It has also been added that "the president of the defeated college wear the school jacket and colors of the victors' school for the remainder of fall term." Needless to say, students of both schools will anxiously await the outcome.

Making other plans for this weekend are Judy Seamster and Jane Moorefield, who will visit Salem students in Palo Alto for the Big-Game festivities at Stanford. In last weekend's events Kathy McMeekin represented Oregon State at the 40th annual Oregon Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation convention held at the University of Oregon. She led a discussion on "Life-guarding at Rockaway." Carol Peterson of Salem is the president of the Oregon State chapter of OAHPER.

Named to Honorary
Recently named to the Air Force honorary, The Silver Wings, were Salem students Ian Brydon, Glenn Hodges, Fred Kuiken, and Warren Flakas. Also in the news is Carol McCandlish who has been elected secretary-treasurer of the college Madrugal Club. Nancy Willard of Salem is working on the decorations and the hospitality committees for the annual memorial union Christmas party to be held December 2.

Representing the Y Round-Table this week in the year's first Model Senate meeting was Jim Hudec of Salem. The main topic of discussion was the legislative session to be held during winter term at the state capital in Salem.

Diane E. Hall has been initiated into the Oregon State college chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national professional journalism honorary for women.
