No Reason Seen to Change Grid Draft

Poses No Interference to Colleges

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20 (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell said today he sees little reason to change the National Football League's player draft timing as suggested by George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins.

Marshall said earlier he had written Bell proposing that the Pro Loop's draft session be held after the last Bowl game — in keeping with the league's policy of non-interference with college players.

Bell said the four-round draft session held in early December annually by the NFL doesn't constitute interference with college players in any sense of the word.

There never has been any criticism of the date of our preliminary draft meeting," said the NFL commissioner. "Everybody knows no college ballplayer does business with the pro teams before any Bowl game he may have upcoming.

"To the best of my recollection no college player has signed with an NFL team before appearing in a post-season Bowl game."

In the NFL's preliminary draft session in early December, each team gets a chance to pick four players from among those becoming eligible for pro ball at the end of the current season — in addition to the bonus pick going to the various clubs on a rotating basis. Then in late January, the 26 remaining rounds of the draft are held.

"I don't see one thing about the date of our preliminary draft in opposition to the league's policy of protecting college ball players," said Bell. "The NFL always has done everything possible, everything asked of it, to protect the college boys and their schools — such as the league rule against doing business with a college player before his complete eligibility has run out."

He added that Marshal proposal would be submitted to the Owner's Meeting, to be held in conjunction with the January Draft Session.

"Every club has the right under the league bylaws to submit amendment proposals 20 days before the league meeting (Jan. 28 in 1958. I will submit Mr. Marshall's complete list of suggestions to the other owners."

He didn't detail what the other suggestions included, but Marshall had said he also proposed cutting back the number of draft picks from the present 30 players to 25 per club.

Mulloy-Seixas in Doubles Workout

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE, Dec. 20 (AP) — America's old man doubles team of Gardnar Mulloy and Vic Seixas —their total age is 78—looked like the potential Davis Cup challenge round combination in an impressive workout today.

The two oldtimers teamed to beat Australian professional Dinny Pails and young Barry MacKay in a pressure match at Kooyong Stadium 6-2, 7-5, stopping with the score at 4-4 in the third set.

"No special significance can be attached to this match," captain Bill Talbert said. "It was merely a match to give the players a tough test. I still have not fully decided on what doubles team I will use against Australia."

Mulloy, 44, and Seixas, 34, appeared the ever-a-s doubles combination when the Australian tour began but Mulloy's play against the Belgians in the Interzone finals was so disappointing there appeared a likelihood he would be replaced by young MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, in the challenge round.

However, the Coral Gables, Fla., veteran who is co-holder of the Wimbledon Championship with Budge Patty, played much better in today's match. He still has a good chance of keeping the job although Talbert has announced that doubles pairings will not be decided until he sees developments of the first singles matches next Thursday.

"I thought Gardnar played very well today," Talbert said.

"We had him moving around a little more. The team looked very good."

Talbert is experimenting with three combinations, Seixas and Mulloy, MacKay and Seixas, and Mulloy and MacKay.

Seixas would be held out of the doubles only in case of a rigorous five-set match on opening day and a likelihood the doubles would tire him too much for the final day's singles.

In an interview after today's practice Talbert said he hoped the opening day draw Wednesday would put Seixas against Australia's Mal Anderson and MacKay against Ashley Cooper.

"Seixas has never lost to Anderson and if we could get off running it might be a tremendous morale boost," he said.

Dallas Raps Sax, 58-49

game he's ever played," had to leave in the third quarter when he became ill.

The game started with both teams ice cold. South Salem jumped off to a quick lead and never trailed as the first quarter ended 9-4. The Saxons, although missing their shooting eye, looked sharp on defense and kept the Dragons from getting many good shots.

Dallas caught fire briefly as the second period started. The Saxon defense started to relax and forward Gary Henry pulled the Dragons up to a one-point deficit at 12-11.

Then with Moore getting nine points the Saxons went on a spree that gave them a lopsided 32-19 lead before the Dragons got four points in the last minute of the half.

Dallas closed fast in the third period, cutting the margin 43-41 as the period ended. The combination of fouls and unguarded Dragons was too much and the Saxons began to crack.

Les Phillips tied the score with 6:25 left in the game at 43-43. Jay Brack canned a 10-footer to but Salem ahead, but that lead lasted just 30 seconds until Doug Otjen drove in for a layin and was fouled. His gifter was good to make it 46-45 and the Saxons were dead.

Dallas scored 12 points for the rest of the game, while South was getting four.

The winners outshot the Saxons, hitting 18 of 57 for .316, while South hit 20 out of 70 for .286. The Saxons were also out-rebounded 36-32. Henry picked off 14 for the Dragons while Moore had 13 for Salem.

The Saxons did manage to salvage the junior varsity game 45-43 by holding off another Dallas rally in the closing minutes.

Feud Won't Delay Deals For Chisox

Armed Truce in Comiskey Fight

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—It will be business as usual for the Chicago White Sox despite the court wrangling over club stock control in the reigning Comiskey family.

Perhaps it would be on an armed truce basis, but the two Sox vice presidents, Charles (Chuck) Comiskey, and his brother-in-law, John Rigney, indicated today the club still is working on deals and both would pitch in on any chance to improve the team.

Chuck's sister, secretary-treasurer Mrs. Rigney, this week was stung by a probate court petition by Comiskey to force her to release, as executrix of the late Mrs. Grace Comiskey's estate, 1,781 shares willed him by his mother.

Dorothy accused her brother of "ingratitude" in the wake of his statement that she was "victime of bad advice" from the club's third director, attorney Roy Egan. Sox counsel. Egan contends taxes should be settled before Chuck gets his stock and Dorothy her 2,281 shares from the estate.

Chuck issued a retaliatory statement yesterday, but directed it mainly at Egan. Chuck said Egan was trying to drive a wedge between him and his sister.

Comiskey said today the Sox, who made two big deals at the recent baseball meetings in Colorado Springs, might be active again on the trade mart right after the first of the year. "We're not far apart on a deal with Detroit," said Comiskey, "and at Colorado Springs we left one hanging in the fire with the Kansas City club." He said he also suspected Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators might talk trade soon.

"As far as I'm concerned," said Rigney, "I'll sit down and talk with Chuck if we think we have a deal come up which will improve the club. I like our club pretty well the way it is right now, but if we can do something to help our bench, that's fine."

Egan said he believed the rift would not impede any worthwhile deal. At Colorado Springs, the Sox sent Minnie Minoso and Fred Hatfield to Cleveland for Early Wynn and Al Smith and traded Larry Doby and Jack Harshman to Baltimore for Ray Moore, Bill Goodman and Tito Francona.

This week's court activity resulted in a temporary order restraining Mrs. Rigney from voting any estate-held stock for 60 days. This cancelled a scheduled annual meeting of Sox stockholders Thursday when a new president to succeed Mrs. Comiskey might have been elected. Hearing on Comiskey's petition to get his 1,781 stock shares was continued until Feb. 18.

Cats After Sixth Win

against but 191 losses, brings in a squad loaded with 11 lettermen and an opening unit that averages 6-3 in height.

Willamette mentor Johnny Lewis has been worrying about "foes with good big men," and from the looks of Nicholson's visiting forces the Bearcats will get a full taste of size.

Central is winding up a barnstorming jaunt that saw the Wildcats down Lewis & Clark at Portland 61-52 on Monday, and then play a doubleheader at Arcata, Cal., with Humboldt State the last two nights. Prior to these the Ellensburg outfit did very well against the likes of St. Martin's and Seattle Pacific.

In Nicholson's starting unit are 6-5 Joe Kominski, who is backed up at center by 6-7 Darrel Deeg, 6-3 Tom Oxwang and 6-4 Bill Coordes at forwards, and 6-2 Bill Bielch and 5-11 Bud Snaza at guards. Wally Loe at 6-5, Don Kremer at 6-4 and Jim Hanson at 6-2 are among the other lettered reserves.

Interestingly, every member of the CWC squad other than Kremer, who hails from Cody, Wyo, is from the State of Washington.

For Willamette, Lewis will go forth with his regular starting unit of Vic Backlund, Dick Hartley, Tom Johns, Eddie Grossenbacher and Ron Taylor, one that has been the big force in averaging 75.4 points per game, to 59.0 for the five losing opponents. Lineups:

Kominski (6-5)	C	(6-4) Johns

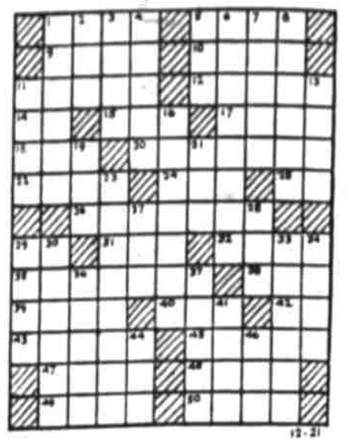
Yesterday's Answer



Williams Has Highest AL Slugging Average

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Boston's Ted Williams, the "old man" with the young bat, today was officially credited with the American League slugging championship, his ninth, on the highest major league percentage in 16 years, .731.

The 39-year-old Williams previously was certified as American loop batting champion for the fifth time with .388.

The slugging title is determined by dividing total bases by the official times at bat. Williams last season connected for 307 total bases in 420 trips, including 38 homers, 28 doubles and 1 triple. Mickey Mantle of New York, the AL's most valuable player this year, was the runnerup slugger with .665.

Third with .579 was Washington's Roy Sievers, the league home run and RBI champion with 42 and 114 respectively.

Final American League statistics released today also disclosed a total of 41 major league and AL marks were either broken or tied by league clubs or players in 1957.

Although Mantle drew the most walks, 146, against 119 for Williams, the Red Sox slugger was walked intentionally most, 33 times, compared with 23 for Mantle.

Chicago's Minnie Minoso (now with Cleveland) again had the dubious distinction of being hit by a pitched ball most, 21 times, 2 fewer than in 1956. Other unwanted titles went to Washington's Jim Lemon, who struck out most, 94 times, and Boston's Jackie Jensen, grounding into most double plays, 22.

Williams came up with two of the new major league marks, his 33 intentional walks and reaching base safely 16 successive times. Boston's splendid splinter also produced three new American League records: 1, being the oldest player to win the batting title; 2, twice hitting three home runs in one game; and 3, playing the most games in career for one club, 1,947.
