"There's No Place Like South for the Holidays" was sung by Deanne Alexander, Cleo Fitch, Ruth Harnsberger, Sue Rasmussen, Barbara Leiseth, Lucille Wenderly and Barbara Lee. The girls were accompanied on the piano by Zola Peterson.

The homecoming skit was next with students playing the parts of

Planning Unit Approved for Federal Grant

The way appeared clear Friday for the mid-Willamette Valley Planning Council to step up to the $40,000 a year budget class.

New development was a ruling from Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton that in effect qualifies the council for a $12,500 federal grant from Housing and Home Finance Agency. Already there is a $28,000 budget subscribed by Salem City Council, Salem School District, Marion and Polk County.

Thornton's legal opinion had been requested by the federal agency which indicated that otherwise the valley council's application for funds was in good order.

Thornton ruled that creation of such a council was authorized by state law and as such constitutes a regional or metropolitan planning agency that can qualify for federal financial grants.

Vote Registration Deadline Extended For Beef Proposal

The deadline for registration of Oregon cattle producers to qualify for voting in the Oregon beef commission referendum has been extended to Jan. 21, Robert J. Steward, director of agriculture, announced Friday.

Original closing date for registrations was Dec. 24. The additional time will permit a broader representation, Steward said. Up to Dec. 20, reports from county agents throughout the state indicated about one-third of the cattle population was registered. Registration is spotted; it is light in some counties and heavy in others.

Steward said recent meetings and discussions among cattle producers have stimulated interest in both sides of the issues involved with the result heavier registrations are expected.

Higher Draft Call Planned

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP) - The Army today boosted its draft call to 13,000 men for February and said this monthly rate probably will continue for the rest of 1958.

The February call is 3,000 men, or 30 per cent more than the 10,000-man quota set for January.

The increase in draft calls was forecast last month when Asst. Secretary of the Army Hugh Milton said more inductees will be needed because the Army's losses will be greater than the manpower reduction ordered some months ago.

Rube Sanders Known for Versatility

Reuben (Rube) Sanders, 81-year-old former Oregon athletic great who died here Friday, was known for his versatility.

Sanders, who started a career as a gridiron terror at Chemawa Indian School, was also adept at baseball, basketball and track.

In keeping with his Rogue River Indian lineage, he also won honors in archery.

Regular Golfer

When almost 80, he played golf regularly and managed to shoot nine holes in as low as 42.

Rube, as he was affectionately known, played football for a variety of college and independent teams in early years of the century when eligibility standards were loose. He played as many as five grid games in a single week and he didn't quit as a player until he was 42.

That last game came in 1918 and he was playing with a Chemawa team against University of Oregon. A broken wrist in the contest brought the decision to retire.

Schools and independents for which Sanders played at various times included Willamette and Pacific universities, old Bishop Scott Academy of Portland and Multnomah Athletic Club.

Coaching Career

His playing days at an end, Sanders began a coaching career at Chemawa that brought additional recognition. What may still be a record is the 104-0 win chalked by one of Rube's Chemawa eleven over Newberg High.

The man who might be called the Jim Thorpe of the Northwest, sparked old Sherman Institute of California to an astonishing upset victory over the famed Thorpe-led Carlisle Indians in 1904. In that game, Sanders played the immortal Jim on at least even terms. Each scored two touchdowns.

Another Sanders feat was winning seven track gold medals at the 1905 World's Fair at Portland. He did this by dominating in shotput, hammer throw, high jump, broad jump and discus.

Chemawa, where Rube later worked as a maintenance employe, has remembered its most famous athlete by naming its athletic field after Sanders.

In his latter years in Salem, Rube Sanders was still an active man as he pursued hobbies of golf, hunting, fishing, fly-tying and bow-making.

$1,100 Judgment Meted in Public Aid Fraud Case

A $1,100 judgment was levied against Frank Roach, 74, of 232 Cottage St. NE, Friday in Marion County Circuit Court for alleged fraudulent receipt of public assistance funds.

Roach admitted not listing a bank account and social security benefits for the amount when applying for welfare benefits which were received from April 1953 to December of this year. The case was presented by Walter N. Fuchigami of the welfare recovery division of the State Department of Justice.

Social Welfare Board Honors Mrs. Wright

Mrs. Thomas G. Wright Jr., 3035 Hulsey Ave. SE, was presented with an honorary membership Friday in the Oregon State Conference on Social Welfare by Mrs. Cora Bamford, state president of the group. The presentation was made at the monthly meeting of the Willamette Valley division at Marion Hotel.

Recognition to Mrs. Wright was given by Mrs. Bamford for her lobbying work for the joint council during the last regular legislative session.

Mrs. Bamford said three ideals of the organization were displayed in Mrs. Wright's work - leadership for advancement of human welfare in Oregon, informing the public on social welfare needs and interpreting these needs.

Cancer Board Adds Hatfield As Director

Mark Hatfield was elected to the Oregon Division of the American Cancer Society board of directors, the Marion-Polk cancer unit announced Friday.

Carl Kelly, Mill City businessman, and the Rev. James Maxwell of St. Paul were appointed to the Marion-Polk board of directors. Mrs. Melvin Rigdon of Mt. Angel was selected as a community captain, replacing Mrs. Peter Goves, who had been community captain there for the past five years.

The annual meeting of the bi-county group will be at noon Jan. 15 at the Marion Hotel.
