Jefferson's Firemen Had Numerous Calls Past Year

JEFFERSON, Jan. 12—The Jefferson Volunteer Fire Departments, headed by Fire Chief Gilbert Horvet, answered 26 rural and 11 city calls during the year just past. One mutual aid run to the Scio district was made during bean picking, when a car burned in the Harvey Mitchell bean yard.

The tinder dry weather during the latter part of the summer was responsible for many of the fires. A rash of them starting with the hay barn on the E. W. Nelson farm in Parrish Gap the night of July 1, kept firemen busy until the middle of September.

The fire hardest to put under control during the year was the 1,000-acre brush and stubble fire on Ankeny Hill Sept. 13. Assisted by trucks from the Albany and Turner departments, men fought the fire for parts of two days and all night.

Rash of Fires

On Saturday afternoon, Aug. 24, seven individual fires broke out simultaneously after a freight train passed through Jefferson. They extended from the river bridge here to Marion. Helping the two Jefferson trucks were trucks from the Stayton, Turner and Marion departments.

Another all-night fight occurred on Parrish Gap ridge Sept. 10, when a half-mile area of brush and stubble burned. That same week, a fire at Jefferson Hardware on Main street was discovered and put out before it could spread to adjoining frame buildings.

Both the Jefferson Rural and City fire departments are on a volunteer basis, the firemen receiving $2 for each rural call and $3 for city calls. Nine men regularly answer calls with Fire Chief Horvet. They are Edward Ricks, Delford Ricks, Gordon Kirsch, C. D. Person, Howard Bronson, Arlie Cooper, Gilbert Looney, Oliver Stephenson and Arnold Epps.

Hovert Again Elected

The department meets on the first and third Tuesday nights of the month in their club room in the City Hall. Last week they organized for the year, re-naming Horvet fire chief for the 10th consecutive year. Gordon Kirsch was named assistant chief, and Delford Ricks, secretary-treasurer.

The department is assisting the newly-organized Volunteer Firemen's Association in working on the feasibility of retirement plan and widow and orphans' fund for volunteer firemen in Oregon.

The City and Rural departments each have a fire truck. A radio has been in use on the rural truck for several months, and one has been bought and is awaiting installation on the city truck.
