WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower reported today that business has tumbled harder than expected, but "whatever our national security requires can afford to pay."

U.S. Retaliatory Might Able to 'Crush Soviet'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Military experts have told Congress the United States could sustain an initial surprise attack by the Soviet Union and still recover sufficiently to annihilate the U.S.S.R.

The experts believe this country is ahead of the Soviet Union in the overall missile field and can come pretty close to sending a rocket to the moon by the end of 1958 if Congress is willing to put up enough money.

These and other views were given to the House Appropriations Committee last week during closed-door hearings on the administration's $1.4-billion dollar emergency program to speed up missile work and spread out bases for retaliatory strikes by long-range planes carrying hydrogen bombs.

Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, vice chief of staff of the Air Force, said the United States could be the first to send a rocket to the moon.

"I think we could come pretty close" to doing it during the present calendar year, LeMay told the committee, if funds were provided and the Air Force authorized to undertake such a project.

There are no such funds in the pending measure.

Secrecy Said Hampering U.S. Scientific Work

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—An eminent scientist testified today that secrecy is hampering science so much he fears the United States might have to fight a war some day "with pieces of paper marked 'secret'."

This appraisal was given to the House Government Information Subcommittee by Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner, president of Associated Universities Inc. and of the International Council of Scientific Workers.

Dr. Donald J. Hughes, senior physicist at Brookhaven National Laboratory and former chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, said he believes that "secrecy, any amount, will hold back scientific development."

Berkner and Hughes were the first witnesses at hearings on obstacles to the spreading of scientific information.

Each emphasized a need for translating foreign scientific papers, particularly Russian, and of boiling down and indexing the vast volume of such information from all sources so that scientists can tap it quickly.

This probably will take a government subsidy, Berkner and Hughes said, but they predicted the few million dollars in costs would be more than regained through elimination of waste and duplication of scientific effort.

The first priority in removing hindrances to the flow of scientific information, Hughes said, should be in the field of security and improving the system of clearing people to handle secret data.

"If we follow suitable private and public policies, this challenge can be met without distorting our economy or destroying the freedom that we cherish."

The President also urged Congress, in these days of slackening business, to "consider some of the sources of our strength."

As in his State of the Union and Budget messages earlier this month, the chief executive took pains to say: "There are good reasons for confidence that a vigorous expansion of our economy can be sustained over the years."

In an obvious effort to discourage any public thinking in depression terms, the report also avoided characterizing the current business dip as a "recession"—only a decline or downturn.

Billions Dollar Drop

Nevertheless the bulky document disclosed that there has been a six billion dollar, 1 1/2 per cent drop in the national production rate in the range of four or five billion dollars at the most, and that the major impact wouldn't be felt until the first half of 1958.

Now they are saying the curve may hit bottom by the second or third quarter of this year and that the economy then may start climbing once more. And, reflecting the way even experts differ on what should be done, some of them contend the Federal Reserve Board should have let up sooner on its money restrictions.

In addition to conceding there has been a disturbing downturn and voicing confidence for the future, the report reflects a presidential concern over the kind of economic expansion that occurs when it does start up again.

The proper objective of national economic policy, to the achievement of which private as well as public actions must contribute, it said, "is to strive to limit fluctuations in the rate of overall economic growth to a relatively narrow range around a rising trend."

Spring Encounter

This was by way of leading into something that was implied rather than expressed openly—that some officials believe the chief obstacle to getting the economy on the upgrade once more will be encountered in the spring and summer when major labor-management contracts will be opened to negotiation.

The automobile industry, for example, is scheduled to resume bargaining in June.

The fear, as one highly placed official voices it, is that there might be a rash of wage increases that go substantially beyond gains in productivity. Industry might pass the increases on in the form of higher prices, consumers might resist such prices, and recovery would be impeded instead of helped.

Ohio River, there was sleet and freezing rain.

More than two inches of rain fell at Little Rock, Ark. more than an inch at Shreveport, La., and nearly that much at New Orleans. Cold air changed the rain to snow in northwest Arkansas.

Precipitation was expected to move into the Atlantic states Tuesday.

The Northeast faced some relaxing of bitter cold which has gripped parts of New England during the last two nights, but near zero marks were indicated in parts of northern New York by morning.

Grand Jury Indicts 2 Klansmen

By BLOYD W. BRITT

LUMBERPORT, N. C., Jan. 20 (AP)—A Robeson County grand jury today indicted two Ku Klux Klansmen, and others allegedly of their group, "unknown to the state," on charges of a riot in connection with a Klan rally which was broken up Saturday night by Indian gunfire.

Solicitor E. Maurice Braswell issued a capias for the arrest of the Rev. James Cole of Marion, S. C., self-styled leader of KKK groups in both Carolinas.

Superior Court Judge Lawson L. Williams recommended that bond of $1,000 be set for Cole if he can be apprehended. Under a capias, Cole cannot be extradited but South Carolina law could arrest him and hold him for North Carolina officers, or Cole could be arrested if he enters North Carolina again.

James Garland Martin, Reidsville, N. C. tobacco plant worker, was held under $500 bail on charges of drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons.

Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said he called the Rev. Cole at Marion, S. C. tonight and asked him to appear here at noon tomorrow to post $1,000 bond. The sheriff said Cole told him he'd be returned to North Carolina, but McLeod rejoined that if Cole returned under arrest he'd be under the sheriff's protection until he posted bond.

Cole told McLeod he would confer with his lawyer and inform the sheriff tomorrow of his decision.

Indians 'Incessant'

The indictments charge that Cole, Martin and others planned to hold the advertised rally near Maxton last Saturday night, to which the general public allegedly was invited, and that they had been warned "their prior conduct and pronouncements against the Indians of Robeson County had incensed and inflamed" the Indians.

The grand jury included three Indians, two Negroes and 13 white men.

The charges developed from an attempted Klan rally Saturday night near Maxton, 30 miles northwest of here, where startling blasts of gunfire by several hundred Indians rent the still night and sent about 50 robed Klansmen and many spectators racing pell-mell from the frosty field.

These Lumber Indians, incessant by reports that the Klan's burning of two crosses last week was a warning to them against race mixing, had gathered quietly about the field just before time for the meeting to begin.

The Rev. Cole has a police record dating back to 1940 at Kinston, seat of Lenoir County, N.C., where he was arrested for a riot originally his home. The list also included two convictions of simple assault, one of being drunk and disorderly, one of making false statements to obtain a chauffeur's license, and others. He also was convicted Dec. 1, 1941, of assaulting an officer and resisting arrest.

Summit Talk Pressure Up In Britain

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government faces renewed demands for a prompt summit meeting of the Western powers with the Soviet Union.

Pressure for such a meeting is expected to develop soon after Parliament reconvenes tomorrow after its Christmas recess. Already cries for summit talks are echoing in a wide segment of the British press, among opposition Laborites and more quietly even among some Conservatives.

A belief has developed in Labor ranks that the West can accept the Soviet proposals for a meeting of the leaders of the great powers and even beat the Kremlin in the propaganda game if the Russians want to play that way.

Those who take this view believe the West loses ground in the propaganda battle by standing pat and insisting on conditions before agreeing to summit talks.

One influential segment of Labor opinion suggests if such a conference comes to no immediate solution, then propose a second summit conference.

High Court Splits on Price Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Supreme Court, splitting 5-4, ruled today that one business concern cannot sue another on the ground the latter sold goods at "unreasonably low prices for the purpose of destroying competition."

The four dissenting justices said the Robinson-Patman Price Antidiscrimination Act has in effect been repealed by the decision.

Justice Harlan, who spoke for the majority, said Congress never made Section 3 of Robinson-Patman a part of the Clayton Antitrust Act. For this reason, Harlan said, the section is not one of the antitrust laws whose violation can lead to private causes of action—treble damage suits—authorized by the Clayton Act.

Treble damage suits still may be brought under Section 2 of the Clayton Act. But this, unlike Robinson-Patman, does not contain a specific provision outlawing selling at "unreasonably low prices" with a view to eliminating competition or destroying a competitor.

In another decision, the court ordered an extradition hearing for Andrija Artukovic, who was a minister in Yugoslavia's Nazi cabinet in 1941-42. The present Yugoslav government, which is Communist, wants him sent home to face charges of having ordered the deaths of thousands of persons. Artukovic, who denies the "Nazi butcher" charges, now lives in Long Beach, Calif.

In still another action, the Court agreed that a state may not fix a minimum price for natural gas sold for resale in other states.

The court merely cited two earlier decisions holding that the Federal Power Commission has exclusive jurisdiction to fix gas rates for interstate movement.

UNITED NATIONS, Jan. 20 (AP)—S. Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches have lent the U. S. $100,000 to help resettle White Russian refugees from East China. They acted through the Church World Service of the National Council of Churches. About 1,200 of the White Russians are now in Hong Kong, waiting to settle elsewhere.
