Plunging Bomber Misses Housing Tract

NORWALK, Calif., Feb. 2—This air view shows how falling Navy Neptune patrol bomber which had collided in air with transport narrowly missed falling into housing tract near Santa Fe Springs last night. Transport crashed in Norwalk residential section. Forty-eight people were killed, 47 aboard planes. (Story on page 1) (AP)

Yank Polar Scientists on Way Home Feted by Russ

ABOARD THE USS BURTON ISLAND, Antarctica, Feb. 2 (AP)—U. S. scientists and Navy men homeward bound from Antarctica got a red carpet reception from Russian scientists at their Mirny polar station.

The Burton Island was the first U. S. ship to anchor at the chief Soviet International Geophysical Year center in Antarctica.

Crewmen went ashore in helicopters and were given a warm welcome. They spent 16 hours drinking toasts in vodka and champagne, helping launch a weather balloon and eating heartily.

In return, Capt. Gerald Ketchum, commander of the U. S. Ross Sea surface units, invited the Russians aboard this ship for an evening meal and a doubleheader movie program. About 100 came aboard.

The Russians showed a liking for American magazines, particularly those with photographs of beautiful girls. They carried back with them 400 magazines courtesy of the Burton Island crew.

The Russians have a normal complement of 170, all civilian personnel, at their Mirny station, making it the largest in Antarctica. McMurdo Sound, the largest U. S. station, is normally a little over the 100 mark, although during transfer periods as many as 300 have been in the base.

The living quarters of the Russian station showed comforts at least equal, and in some respects superior, to the U. S. stations.

Every room has beds, not bunks. Some had Oriental rugs on walls. Because of a complete lack of military features, it appeared to be more homelike than the U.S. quarters.

Evgeni Toletikov, the Soviet station leader, started off the visit with a double round of bottoms-up vodka toasts to the friendship of the American and Russian peoples. Ketchum responded with expressions of hope for continued cooperation and friendship.

The Burton Island left at midnight Thursday on its way to the Wilkes station where it will join the icebreaker Atka and the cargo ship Arneb. They will head for home after supplying IGY stations for the coming year.

Father of U.S. Rocket Expert Proud of Son

OBERAUDORF, Germany, Feb. 2 (AP)—Baron Magnus von Braun spoke with fatherly pride today of U.S. rocket expert Wernher von Braun and called him "a fabulous son."

"My wife and I are very pleased indeed," the father said when reached by telephone for his reaction to the launching of the first U.S. satellite. "We have been waiting for a long time for Wernher to get a chance to show what he can do."

The baron, who once held a ministerial post in the Weimar Republic, now lives in retirement in this Bavarian Alpine village.

Diving Vessel Loaned

PARIS, Feb. 2 — The French navy has agreed to send its bathyscope diving vessel to Tokyo for a series of tests next summer. A group of Japanese scientists asked that the craft, which went down to about 12,000 feet in 1954, make dives in the 9,000-foot range off the coast of Japan.

Rocket Motors Developed For Navy Ballistic Missile

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP)—Successful development of very large, solid propellant rocket motors for the Navy's Polaris fleet ballistic missile was announced Saturday by Aerojet-General Corp.

Designed to hurl a nuclear warhead about 1,500 miles, this big intermediate range missile is capable of launching from submarines roving beneath the sea, or from surface warships or land bases.

When it becomes operational, Polaris will give tremendous impetus to the United States' drive for weapons superiority, said Aerojet missile experts.

And, they emphasize, it will immeasurably strengthen U. S. retaliatory power.

Richard D. Geckler, manager of Aerojet's solid rocket plant, said in an interview: "Polaris is unique in having a launching platform, in the form of submarines and ships at sea, that is highly mobile and extremely difficult for an enemy to detect and destroy.

"Polaris is the first ballistic missile to have this mobility.

"It also is the first ballistic missile based on solid propellants, which are easier to store and handle under seagoing conditions than liquid propellants.

"These characteristics make it quite different from other weapons systems developed thus far."

Geckler added, "The feasibility of solid propellants has been demonstrated. All the parts of the propulsion system have been tested and work."

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name *Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guarantee.

Venezuela Proves 2 Dictators in One Country Too Many

CARACAS, Venezeuala, Feb. 2 (AP)—Two dictators in one country are too many. Even if one is in retirement.

Marcos Perez Jimenez of Venezuela and Juan Domingo Peron of Argentina now can testify to the truth of this political axiom from exile in the Dominican Republic.

Leading Venezuelan political figures, reconstructing and assessing the events of the great January upheaval in Venezuela, have concluded that Peron's presence here as an exile helped spark the revolt that toppled his host—Perez Jimenez.

Peron Had It 'Good'

Obviously, Peron would not willingly have aided the Venezuelan people in their bid to end 10 years of tyranny and recapture freedom. Peron never had it so good as in Caracas after being an exile in Paraguay and Panama following his overthrow in Argentina in 1955.

Here he openly established headquarters, directing Peronist underground movements in Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, and Uruguay aimed at returning him to power in Buenos Aires. He was allowed to publish book, to make press statements against the Argentine government, to receive and dispatch agents on missions. He enjoyed secret police protection. The Perez Jimenez regime even broke diplomatic relations with Argentina rather than curb Peron's ill-concealed conspiracies.

But Venezuelans didn't like Peron from the moment he arrived from Panama in 1957. So when Perez Jimenez fell, they lost no time in trying to get rid of Peron—last remaining symbol here of dictatorship.

Press Attacks Peron

The nation's press accused him of masterminding the tough measures taken by Perez Jimenez and the hated security police to crush subversive activities and rebellion. Peron took refuge in the Dominican Embassy.

The Venezuelans made the invitation to leave more pointed. Unidentified armed bands made a shooting attack on the Embassy. Peron took the hint and fled to Ciudad Trujillo.

Undoubtedly, Peron inadvertently helped get the tide of resentment against the Perez Jimenez regime snowballing. After his arrival here, Venezuelans quietly grumbled: "Now we have two dictators. Both must go."

Church Enters Issue

The people of this heavily Roman Catholic nation felt Peron was having a bad effect upon relations between the Church and the Perez Jimenez government. They remembered Peron had warred with the Church in Argentina, one of the contributing causes for his fall from power.

They believed Peron counselled steps to curb the Church, once it raised its voice in protest against the government. Their fears were confirmed when the Perez Jimenez regime did get tough and seized seven priests after the abortive air force revolt on New Year's Day.

Navy Prepares Vanguard for Satellite Shot

CAPECANAVERAL, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP)—The Navy's Vanguard satellite-bearing test vehicle, partially dismantled a week ago, has been repaired and is fully reassembled in its launching tower, it was learned today.

Informed sources said technical difficulties which prevented a Vanguard launching in January—and which gave the Army's Jupiter-C the chance to launch the Explorer satellite Friday night—have been corrected.

They said the 72-foot, three-stage rocket probably would be ready for launching as soon as final checkouts have been completed and wind conditions and the schedules of down-range test equipment permit.

The Navy, determined to keep its launch date as secret as the Army had kept that for the Jupiter-C, would say nothing of its new Vanguard plan.

The reassembled Vanguard was visible in its tall launching stand. A nearby Army launching tower also contained a large rocket which could be the Redstone first stage of another Jupiter-C satellite vehicle.

Russ Accused Of Using Spies For Delegates

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Robert Morris, former chief counsel of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, said today "we are losing our shirts in the exchange program" with the Soviet Union.

He referred to the recent agreement between the United States and Russia on expanding exchanges between the two countries in technical, cultural, educational and sports fields.

"Every delegation from the Soviet Union to the United States is an undercover for espionage, an undercover for the secret police," Morris said.

Morris, who resigned his subcommittee post Friday, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for U.S. senator from New Jersey.

Speaking before the annual Communion breakfast of the Catholic Institute of the Press, Morris termed visiting Soviet delegations the advanced guard of the secret police and "salesmen of despotism."

He said testimony taken during the subcommittee hearings from former Soviet secret police who defected to the West revealed that delegations of Russian agricultural experts and scientists included secret police.

Morris urged that U.S. delegates sent to Russia as part of the exchange program be selected on the basis of "political sophistication."

Dog Bites Actress

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP)—Actress Silvana Pampanini has filed suit for $1,800 for damages she claims she suffered when she was bitten by a dog on a Rome street. The suit was brought against the dog's owner, Duchess Uberta Visconti di Modrone.

Miss Pampanini included in her suit costs for immediate medical treatment, lost income and plastic surgery for removal of scars from her legs.

WANT-AD WONDERS...

Political Want Ad Brings 4,000 Letters

The committee working to elect Jack Mueller as sheriff of Cook County, Ill., placed this ad in the "Personals" column of the Chicago Tribune:

Over 4,000 mail replies and thousands of phone calls resulted within 5 days after the ad ran.

"Workers Needed. Elect a proven, honest policeman for a policeman's job. Send your name, address to: Independent Citizens of Cook County for Jack Muller for Sheriff, c/o Harold Margulies, 35 N. LaSalle."
