

Recent Votes Show Neuberger Changing His Political Tactics

WASHINGTON — The Wayne Morse-Richard Neuberger political honeymoon ended last summer when the two senators fell to writing uncomplimentary letters to one another about their differences on the civil rights bill and Morse's comparison of President Eisenhower with Dave Beck. It was sign Neuberger is trying to make a sharp change in his political tactics.

Two recent votes illustrate Neuberger's new approach. He was instrumental in the Senate's passage of the administration's postal rate increase bill, and he opposed the Democratic proposal for a hefty tax cut. Morse was on the other side both times.

Neuberger said he thought he would be a hypocrite if he continued to advocate projects which require federal spending, such as dams, highways, access roads and school aid, and also voted for lower postal rates or cuts in tax revenue needed to finance federal programs. Morse replied by saying he had never heard a more absurd non sequitur in his 13 years in the Senate.

As evidence that his attitude may not be so absurd, Neuberger cites a letter he received from Sen. Carl Hayden (D-Ariz.), dean of the Senate and chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Said Hayden:

"By voting to cut down the postal deficit, you were actively assisting me to provide more federal funds for dams, locks, transmission lines, reclamation projects, harbor dredging and other needed public works in the state of Oregon. Federal funds, first or last, have to come from the taxpayers of this country. When we must divert such funds to cover postal deficits, it means less money for public improvements in such regions as the Pacific Northwest. I want to thank you for your courage in not flinching from the question of a 5-cent postal rate."

Neuberger has had Hayden's letter mimeographed for distribution. Probably the most crucial case in point of Neuberger's new tack is over the Klamath Indian problem. As sponsor of a bill for outright federal purchase of the reservation, he expressed disappointment in January when the Interior Department came up with a bill to give private industry first call on the timber, as long as sustained-yield management was observed.

Looks for GOP Support
But as the Klamath hearings he personally conducted dragged on, it became apparent to Neuberger that it would be tough to get any bill enacted. So he decided to back the administration's bill in hopes of getting more GOP support. In his current newsletter, Neuberger sums it up:

"Candidly, I doubt if this measure is quite as good as my own bill for outright federal purchase of the timber and marsh of the vast reservation. Yet I believe it will fulfill the mission of preventing a disastrous termination, which could have broken Oregon's lumber market wide apart by dumping 4 billion feet of choice pine timber into sales channels during less than two years. Had I insisted upon my bill for a straight federal taking of the reservation, there probably would have been a bitter partisan fight. . . . It seemed to me that I had to put aside pride of authorship and political partisanship, in order to prevent a result that could be ruinous to southeastern Oregon."

Neuberger doesn't wish to persuade Morse to depart from the role of the gadfly, only to draw from that role himself.

"Sen. Morse serves a very useful role in taking out after the administration for all its faults," observed Neuberger. "He doesn't need too much assistance from me in that."

Willing to Go Over Halfway
As for himself, said Neuberger, "When the administration is willing to go halfway, I think I've got to go halfway—and in some cases, like the Klamath Indians, more than halfway."

Neuberger has already been criticized by some Oregon Democrats for his new approach of moderation toward Republicans, but he avers: "This is one of the things we have to do if we are going to get things done."

Some have asked why he doesn't go all the way and become a Republican. Asked if it's possible he might do a reverse-Wayne Morse, he replied:

"I've been a Democrat since I was 21. I think the Democratic party is heading in the right direction because it has the interests of all the people at heart. I can't conceive of any circumstances that would change that. On the other hand I don't think everything the Republicans propose is bad. This administration is going to be in office for another three years and within the limits of partisan differences I think I should try to work with it for the best interests of our state."

Teachers' President Selected

Election of Wallace E. Turnidge, Liberty School principal, as president of Marion County chapter of Oregon Education Association was announced at an executive council meeting Monday in the courthouse.

He will succeed Irene Roubal, Silverton. Installation will be at a general membership dinner meeting to be set in April at Salem Heights School.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Margaret Feller, Aumsville, vice president; Mrs. Ione McAmara, Leslie Junior High School, secretary; Richard Hodges, Salem Heights School, treasurer.

Nona McClure, Central Howell, Kenneth Mohney, Haystack School, and Rudy Sherwood, Hoover School, were elected to two-year terms as delegates to the state representative council. Elections were conducted by mail.

It was also announced at the meeting that a booklet, "100 Years of Education in Marion County," prepared by the association last year was judged the best in the public relations category in Oregon and at a regional National Education Association meeting recently in Spokane.

It will be submitted for possible further honors at the national NEA convention in July at Cleveland Ohio.

Turnidge was chairman of the committee which prepared the booklet.

Pupils Turn Talents to Salem Float

Working on the theme "Historical Events," Salem area high and junior high school students began turning their artistic talents Monday to creating a design for Salem's annual float entry in the Portland Rose Festival parade.

The contest, sponsored by Salem Cherrians, will close at noon on April 7 with announcement of the winning design to come on April 11, according to design chairman R. P. Lankow.

Rules of the competition require that the historical theme depict all manner of events with preference for state and local happenings. Any design which displays tragedies or public disaster will be rejected, according to judges. All entries must show name, address, age and telephone number of the student and name of entrant's school.

Entries must be in color on poster size paper. Prizes, including a $25 first prize savings bond and a $10 cash award second prize, will be based on conformity to theme, adaptability to float limitations and general appearance.

The Cherrians are also sponsoring a three-day auction April 10-12 at 233 Commercial St. NE to raise funds for the float construction.

The British Treasury is again minting some gold sovereigns for circulation abroad, to combat counterfeiting.

Four Plead Guilty in County Circuit Court

William Emery, 22, 2323 Liberty Rd. SE, pleaded guilty Monday in Marion County Circuit Court to a charge of larceny involving a $600 camera stolen last December. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered by Judge George R. Duncan.

A preliminary hearing for Emery on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile was continued to March 31 at 10 a.m., said court officials.

Imposition of sentence was suspended Monday in Marion County Circuit Court against Charles Miller, 14, Jefferson, on a charge of breaking and entering a structure other than a dwelling.

Miller was placed on two-year probation on the charge, which concerns a break-in at the Santiam Oil Co., Jefferson, last January. He had pleaded guilty in earlier court action.

Joseph Frank Hunegar, whose address is listed as 805 Church St. NE, was sentenced to 30 days in Marion County jail Monday in Circuit Court action. The jail sentence was ordered suspended upon payment of $150 fine.

Hunegar was found guilty last week on a charge of assault and battery concerning the beating of Marys Hunegar last December.

Donald Eugene Smith, San Francisco, Calif., changed a plea of innocent to guilty Monday in Marion County Circuit Court on a charge of larceny. The charge concerns the theft of a car from Marion Car Rental Co. of Salem last month.

The court sent Smith to Oregon State Hospital for a 30-day observation period before further proceedings, said officials.

Carroll Edward Ford, Lake Orion, Mich., was sentenced to six months in the Marion County jail in Circuit Court action on a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses.

The jail sentence was to be suspended upon restitution of a $25 check given to Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., last February, said court officials.

Harvey Benton Perkey, Salem Route 5, Box 815, was placed on probation Monday in Marion County Circuit Court after a year jail sentence was suspended on a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses.

Perkey was charged concerning a $60 check given to a Salem tavern last October. He was ordered to make restitution on the check within a year, said court officials.

Ray Milan Love, 1345 Lee St. SE, pleaded innocent Monday in Marion County Circuit Court to a charge of knowingly uttering and publishing a forged bank check.

Trial was set for April 3 at 9:30 a.m. on the charge, which concerns a $117 check cashed last January at a Salem grocery store.

Marion County TB Association Okehs Budget

A $18,065 budget was approved for the Marion County Tuberculosis and Health Association at the group's monthly meeting Monday evening. This is a $175 drop from last year's figure.

The drop was mostly due to a slump in Christmas Seal money, said Mrs. Ruby Bunnell, executive secretary of the association. So far $21,974 has been received as compared to last year's $23,318.

Budgeted funds are to cover work in health education, tuberculosis case finding, rehabilitation of TB patients, industrial health education, human relations and Christmas Seal sales program.

The annual public meeting of the association was set for April 23 at Knight Memorial Church, said Mrs. Bunnell. A business meeting and panel discussion by state institution representatives on "Tuberculosis as an International Problem," is planned.

It was decided at the meeting to discontinue the "Talk Time" series of public health education meetings because of a lack of interest, said Mrs. Bunnell.

Association president, A. L. Reiling, Hillsboro, will preside.

Leon C. Jones, president of the National Association of Frozen Food Packers, will attend from Caldwell, Idaho.

PUC to Hear McMinnville Route Case

Petition by The Greyhound Corporation to discontinue bus service between McMinnville and Corvallis will be heard by the Public Utility Commissioner of Oregon 10 a.m. April 16 in Room 210 of the Public Service Building.

Petition by The Valley Stages of Salem to institute service between McMinnville and Moonmouth will be heard at the same time.

Valley Stages also is asking authority to put its present alternate route between Rickreall and Brunk's Corner on its regular schedule. Brunk's Corner is at the junction of highways 22 and 51 west of Salem.

Neuberger has already been criticized by some Oregon Democrats for his new approach of moderation toward Republicans, but he avers: "This is one of the things we have to do if we are going to get things done."

Some have asked why he doesn't go all the way and become a Republican. Asked if it's possible he might do a reverse-Wayne Morse, he replied:

Woman Charges She Was Injured By Door at Office

Ione L. Thielke filed a $10,450 damage suit against Horace McGee, Salem physician, Monday in Marion County Circuit Court. The suit charges that the woman was injured Dec. 28, 1956, when the doctor opened a door at his office striking the woman.

The suit seeks $450 for alleged physical injuries and $10,000 general damages.

Monuments Restored
TOKYO (AP)—More than 70 ancient cultural monuments have been restored in Kaesong, the old capital of North Korea, Radio Pyongyang reports.

The broadcast said many of the monuments were neglected during the Japanese occupation and later were damaged extensively in Korean War bombing.

Entries must be in color on poster size paper. Prizes, including a $25 first prize savings bond and a $10 cash award second prize, will be based on conformity to theme, adaptability to float limitations and general appearance.

The Cherrians are also sponsoring a three-day auction April 10-12 at 233 Commercial St. NE to raise funds for the float construction.

Police Release, Then Arrest Two Suspects

City police had two burglar suspects in custody early Monday morning but didn't know it until after the two were questioned and released.

Officers stopped a car about 12:30 a.m. on South 12th street and took Charles Arthur Bostright, 18, Lakewood, Calif., and another 16-year-old California youth to the station after tools were found in the trunk of the car.

After releasing the two city police received a burglary report from Valley Welding Supply Co., 225 High St. SE, in which about $185 in tools and a pistol were stolen.

Officers, remembering the description of the tools found in the car, put out a teletype message to stop the two. A few hours later Bend police said they had two youths in custody and that they admitted the burglary, Salem police said.
