

Coast Air Spill Kills 2 Persons

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP)—A man and a woman, believed to be Dr. Jack Leonard McMillan of Vancouver, B. C., and his wife, were killed outright Sunday when their private plane crashed while attempting to land at the Newport airport on the Oregon Coast.

The bodies were badly burned and identification at the scene was not possible, police said.

Tentatively Identified

The victims were tentatively identified from papers in the plane. And at Vancouver, B.C., Ross Edwards, a partner of McMillan, said the doctor and his wife, Ruth, had left Vancouver in an airplane earlier, bound for a medical convention at San Francisco.

The plane first was noticed over Newport—on the Central Oregon coastline—at about 1:30 p.m., flying low over the beach in rain and fog.

Burns in Dense Brush

No one reported seeing the crash. Police said the plane apparently was coming in for a landing when it crashed and burned in dense brush about 250 feet south of the runway.

The wreckage was scattered over an area 40 feet in diameter. One half of the propeller flew off and was imbedded in the ground about 25 feet from the runway.

McMillan's address, according to papers in the plane, was 4622 N.W. Marine Drive, Vancouver, B.C.

Man Lays Helpless 5 Hours

By ALLEN MORRISON Staff Writer, The Statesman

A Salem man lay injured and helpless for five hours at a service station in West Salem before he was found early Sunday morning by a pair of alert city policemen.

Off-duty patrolman Melvin Scofield, riding with Robert Howard, were on routine patrol when they discovered the man lying on the sidewalk at the intersection of Edgewater St. NW about 1 a.m. After the two had driven a mile from the station, Scofield said "there is something wrong back at that service station."

Scofield had noticed the station lights on and, thinking a burglary was in progress, decided to investigate. They heard noises when they approached the door. A man's voice cried for help and the two officers smashed down the door.

Foot of 20 Stairs

Lying at the foot of 20 stairs was Lewis Melvin Jeffers, 57, mechanic at the station. He had fallen from the stairs about 8 p.m. and could not move because of back injuries.

He was taken to Salem General Hospital where hospital attendants said his condition was good this morning.

Jeffers would have been found Monday morning when the station opened, officers said. He lives upstairs at the station.

Five Elderly Women Die In Car Plunge

NEWTON, Mass. (AP)—Five elderly occupants of a nursing home drowned Sunday when their driverless automobile rolled down a hill and plunged into Crystal Lake.

Half a dozen policemen and William Bruce, an assistant dean at Harvard Law School, made heroic but unsuccessful efforts to rescue the women—all 80 or over.

They plunged into the water but were unable to open doors of the submerged vehicle.

Police said the automobile with the women in it was left momentarily unattended while Mrs. Kenneth Watson, owner of the nursing home and driver of the car, went back into the house to get a coat.

As she was about to re-enter the automobile, the brake apparently released, police said, and the car began rolling with Mrs. Watson vainly in pursuit.

The dead were identified by police as Gertrude Cummings, 85, Hattie Gordon, 96, Esther Ross, 92, Bothilda Henrick, 80 and Ina Dowling, 85.

LONDON, April 20 (AP)—One ship sank and three others were damaged Sunday in two collisions with 60 miles of each other in the fog-shrouded English Channel. One seaman is missing.

The 1,447-ton Italian ship Peppinella sank after a collision with the 8,584-ton Norwegian motor vessel Sunok 30 miles east of Ramsgate. The Sunok, which was slightly damaged in the crash, picked up 18 of the Peppinella's 19-man crew. A French tug and helicopter joined Ramsgate life guardsmen and the Sunok in search for the missing man.

Another Italian vessel, the 5,127-ton Enrico Mazzarella, was in collision an hour earlier with the 3,310-ton Panamanian tanker windward passage. Both were able to continue.

Rockefeller Unit Urges Tax Slice To Aid Economy

NEW YORK (AP)—A wide-ranging economic study Sunday recommended a cut in taxes as the quickest way to counter the down-cycle in business and employment.

No specific figure for the proposed reduction was given in the report, released by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, but it said: "Of the anti-recession measures available to the federal government, tax reduction can be effective in the shortest time. This panel believes that a tax cut would help overcome the current recession and expand employment."

Tiny Heir Baptized In Monaco

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP)—The 37-day-old heir to the throne of Monaco was baptized Sunday—Albert Alexander Louis Pierre. This tiny nation pulled out all the stops to celebrate.

Flags of Monaco, France and the United States fluttered in dazzling sunshine from every corner of the half-square-mile domain of the tiny principality. Prince Albert is destined some day to rule. The U.S. flags were there in honor of Albert's mother, American actress Grace Kelly.

Held by Godmother The baby—held by his godmother, ex-Queen Victoria-Eugenia of Spain, widow of Alfonso XIII—was baptized in Monaco Cathedral by the Most Rev. Jean Delay, Prince Louis de Polignac, the godfather, stood by at the baptismal font.

The baby wore a white lace dress in which his father, Prince Rainier, was baptized in 1922. The baby also was wrapped in a white satin coat decorated with the red and white Order of Grimaldi, Monaco's highest decoration, which Rainier gave his son last week.

Princess Grace, who followed the Roman Catholic ceremony with evident attention, wore a beige-pink brocade dress, a brown coat and a pink hat. Rainier was in the uniform he designed for his wedding. The cathedral was jammed.

Gangs Knife 3 in Ride to Coney Island

NEW YORK (AP)—At least 50 juvenile gang members went on a shouting, brawling subway expedition to Coney Island Sunday, bullying passengers and stabbing three other teen-agers. One was critically hurt.

The youths, all Negroes, were members of the Bishops, the Chaplains and the Elminogs—three gangs that range the asphalt battlegrounds of Brooklyn.

Police seized 44 youths as they left the subway at 18th and McDonald avenues in Brooklyn on the return trip from the amusement park. Others scattered and got away. Nineteen of the youths were over 16, the rest were younger.

Two Others Slugged

Two of the stabbing victims were white, one Negro. Two other boys—both white—were slugged and roughed up by the rampaging youths.

Douglas Baldwin, 16, was in critical condition at Coney Island Hospital. He was stabbed in the abdomen. In the same hospital was Herbert Goggins, 17, suffering stab wounds of the nose. Both were attacked at Coney Island.

A Negro youth, Herbert Saunders, 19, of Manhattan, was stabbed in the neck and arm while on the subway train, apparently no one notified officers after leaving the cars. Officers said they could have stopped the train and trapped the whole gang if someone had.

U.N. to Hear Russ Nuclear Flight Charges; U.S. Ready

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States will cite its disarmament record Monday in the U.N. Security Council when it denies Soviet charges of provocative American nuclear bomber flights across the arctic.

A spokesman said Sunday U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge would take this line in answering Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev, who is expected to speak soon after the 11-nation Council convenes.

"We consider it to be an important speech," the delegation spokesman said of Lodge's address. "It will rely heavily on our record of trying to reach an agreement with the Russians on mutual inspection and disarmament."

While denying that U.S. Air Force operations threaten peace, Lodge is expected to stress the need for some international system to prevent surprise attack and mention President Eisenhower's 1955 open skies plan of mutual U.S.-Soviet aerial inspection.

The Soviet complaint on the Council's tentative agenda is titled "Urgent measures to put an end to flights by United States military aircraft armed with atomic and hydrogen bombs in the direction of the frontiers of the Soviet Union."

MORRISVILLE, Pa.—Louis Felipe Marrero, 24-year-old Trenton, N. Man With Grudge Held In Shooting at Convent

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—A young father, who said he had a grudge against the Roman Catholic Church, admitted Sunday the shotgun wounding of three nuns in a convent shooting siege.

"I wanted to kill some nuns and priests," Louis Felipe Marrero, 24, said after surrendering to a guard at the Fairfairs works of the U. S. Steel Corp., in nearby Pennsylvania.

For an hour Saturday night the assailant had shot it out with police at St. Joachim's convent and school. In the melee, a passerby also was wounded.

Father of Two Police Chief James A. Dilone said Marrero, a father of two who worked in a local linoleum plant, signed a statement admitting the attacks. The youth is being held in Fairfairs Hills, Pa., pending an extradition hearing Monday in Doylestown, the seat of Bucks County, Pa.

Mercer County Prosecutor Stanley E. Rutkowski said Marrero told of writing a series of letters to such prominent Catholics as Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, suggesting a religious medal for space men in the U.S. armed forces and submitting his interpretation of the Bible.

Marrero was resentful because his suggestions had been ignored, Rutkowski said. Marrero will be transferred here and charged with the atrocious assault with intent to kill. He will not fight extradition, the prosecutor said.

Wounded Seriously Two nuns were wounded seriously but were reported improved and out of danger after operations. They are Sister Lorenzina Sassani, 50, who was shot in the chest, and Sister Madeline Fussie, 23, of Bayonne, N.J., who suffered a shotgun wound in the thigh.

The third nun, Sister Angela Bulla, 24, of Torrington, Conn., was wounded less severely in the arm.

Stephen Koncosl, 53, was hit in the mouth by shotgun pellets the gunman fired out a convent window.

In addition, two patrolmen were nicked by ricocheting pellets.
