Administration Seeking Military Pay Plan Cut

WASHINGTON — Administration fiscal leaders are asking senators to trim 163 million dollars from the new military pay increase plan approved by the House.

This was learned Sunday as Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas advised fellow senators that he hopes to call up and pass the new incentive pay plan this week.

To do this will require speedy action by the Armed Services Committee, headed by Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), which has had the pay revision proposals for months.

Ben-Gurion Wants Full Disarmament

WASHINGTON — Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion says he favors complete disarmament of all the peoples in the Middle East and is taking steps with this in mind.

Ben-Gurion said he is sending a letter to a chief "of a big state in the world" which deals with disarmament and he hopes it will lead to "final peace not only for us but for the world at large."

The Prime Minister did not explain what he had in mind nor to whom he was writing.

He touched on the disarmament question only briefly in a TV-radio interview filmed in Jerusalem last Tuesday and broadcast on CBS—"Face the Nation" Sunday.

Ben-Gurion said the United States could do more to promote peace in the Middle East by making the United Nations Charter "instead of a dead word, a living thing."

The United States, he said, could help "if they would do the same thing in regard to Israel as they have done to Turkey, when Turkey was threatened and they said that an attack . . . on Turkey means an attack on the United States."

Flapjacks at Yellowstone May Improve

WASHINGTON — The hotcakes may taste better next time you visit Yellowstone National Park.

The flapjack subject popped up at House and Senate Interior Subcommittee hearings on bills to give long-term contracts to concession operators at national parks.

Rep. Ullman (D-Ore) complained at the House hearing that his family tried to eat hotcakes at Canyon Lodge in Yellowstone Park last year, but gave up because they were "as much rubber as hotcakes."

Rep. Metcal (D-Mont) said the best hotcakes he ever ate were in Yellowstone, but they were cooked by his mother over a campfire in the early 1920s.

The subject was pursued by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), presiding at the Senate hearing, in questioning a spokesman for the Yellowstone Park Co., which operates park restaurants.

The senator, who had been talking to Mrs. Ullman, wanted to know just how good, or bad, park hotcakes are.

The witness confided that he and other officials of the company ate some fine hotcakes at the Statler Hotel here this morning "something we wouldn't do in the park."

He hastened to add, however, that there's nothing wrong with park hotcakes as a general rule although a cook may have a bad day occasionally. Possibly the Ullmans were there on such a day, he said.

Jordan Faces Famine

AMMAN — An economic expert says Jordan is faced with a serious famine threat and should appeal to the United States for help.

In a published report, Dr. Rajayee Khadra predicted the famine would come this summer in the wake of Jordan's worst drought in 20 years.

Solon Predicts Watering Down of Ike Defense Plan

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bridges (R-NH) predicted Sunday Congress will water down President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan and restrict his power to transfer military funds.

Agreeing that there will be modifications, Sen. Mansfield (D-Mt) called for establishment of an independent commission to supervise scientific research and development.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, and Mansfield, assistant Democratic leader, have joined in sponsoring legislation that would reduce the staff of the secretary of defense and limit some of his authority.

Eisenhower has asked for increased power for the secretary to set up unified defense commands and to assign combat functions. He proposed an increase in authority for the chairman of the
