

Congress Tangled in Official Version for National Anthem

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has begun considering whether to adopt an official version of the Star-Spangled Banner.

And almost before you could say, "O say can you see," it got itself tangled up in questions. To anyone except, possibly, a congressman, the issue seems simple. In 1931, Congress adopted the song as our national anthem. Unfortunately, it didn't spell out either the words or the melody. Many a patriotic person thinks this should be corrected, and several bills have been introduced in congress.

Public Has Little to Say About TV Fare

By EVE STARR
HOLLYWOOD — STARR REPORT: There possibly exists in the bosom of the viewing public the happy feeling that what is seen on the air comes as a result of long and careful planning by the three major networks, each dedicated to the proposition that nothing is too good for the public and the public's interest must be served.

of the more promising unsold pilots and making a series out of them. His argument: if just two of them are sold as a result of their being seen and liked by the viewing public, the network will get its money back, and the network will, in essence, be keeping a lot of capable producers in business by allowing them to recoup their $45,000 expended on each unsold pilot.

It rarely works that way. A TV film producer recently returned from New York after a sales trip involving some 11 pilots. He tells the following story:

The network will also be doing the public a favor by letting them, instead of a jaded agency executive, decide what is good and what isn't. It was the public that made "Mister Peepers" a success six years ago, not the industry itself. And it should be the public's decision.

"I showed one of these films, a Western in which I was not personally involved, to the top man at one of the leading advertising agencies. It was a good film. I would say a superior one."

Advertising men, by and large, are too close to the picture and can't see the forest for the trees. Half the time, they can't even see the trees.

"In its first 50 seconds it had more action and excitement and suspense than most shows can muster for the entire half hour. It's the kind of film you find yourself leaning forward in your seat to watch."

Six Accused Of Neglecting Ailing Mother

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (AP)—Two brothers and their four sisters have been charged in Circuit Court with failing to support their 64-year-old mother, who is bedfast in her home.

The charges were filed Monday by Prosecutor Fred V. Hall, who said Mrs. Annie Covey is without food or care except that provided by neighbors.

"I had known him from the old days at one of the major studios and I asked him, bluntly, what was wrong. Why hadn't he reacted."

County officials said reports of Mrs. Covey's plight have been made periodically since July 1957 and that officers have been called to the home at night by neighbors hearing her screams for help.

"He looked tired and beat. He told me, apologetically, that this was the fifth pilot film he'd seen that day. He said he averaged five films a day, every day, during the selling season."

Those charged are Herbert and Hubert Covey, Mrs. Elsie Winchester, Mrs. Delma Oakes and Mrs. Donna Calland, all of New Castle, and Mrs. Rixie Crawford Hudson of Muncie, Ind.

"The obvious question, then, is this: on what basis are the advertising agencies buying new shows for the coming 1958-59 season. The answer, according to this producer, is two-fold."

Hubert Covey says he has been living in his mother's home. All the children say "we are doing all we can," one official said.

"Given the choice between a relatively unknown producer and an old friend, the agency man will buy the old friend's show—even though the other one may be considerably better. And they are buying Western simply because Westerns have done so well this past season."

Smith, who was correcting papers at his classroom desk in the Negro school, said he jumped up when he heard the explosion and demanded: "Who threw that firecracker?"

"If you thought there were too many Westerns on the air this year, wait until you see what's going to be on next year. One Western after another."

"That was no firecracker, prof," a pupil said. "That was a bullet and it was aimed at you." The pupil pointed to a big hole in the wall behind Smith.

"Most of the old ones have renewed, and there will be plenty of new ones to add to the already top-heavy total."

"Why he should shoot at me," Smith said, "I do not know. I flunked him, but so did the other teachers."

BECAUSE PILOT FILMS cost an average of $45,000 apiece, a lot of money is going to be lost by a lot of producers who have hopefully turned out pilots only to find themselves unable to sell them.

Smith said he had been assigned for the second time to escort Montgomery on a visit to Toronto. The first time was four years ago. A taxi hit him then. His left leg and two ribs were broken.

What becomes of these half-hour shows? One of Hollywood's leading producers is in New York right now trying to sell one of the networks on the idea of buying up 30

Police Hold Lewd Film Distributor

NEW YORK (AP)—A man tabbed the nation's biggest distributor of indecent pictures was arrested Wednesday. He was said to have made $300,000 a year through a complicated setup involving agencies and studios both here and in Denmark.

Wife Reveals Quarrel Led to Highway Crash

BRIDGETON, N.J. (AP)—A teenage girl whose husband was killed when her car collided with his said Wednesday an argument led to the fatal crash.

More Singable
Many think it ought to be more singable. Those who think so include Lucy Monroe, who has sung the song 5,000 times, and very stirring to her. She favors some minor tinkering with the high and low notes which, she says, "would allow all of us to join in with greater assurance of joy."

Ten minutes later he was dead and she had a possible skull fracture. She was in good condition Wednesday.

In a raid on one of several agencies operated here, officers found mailing address plates containing names of 70,000 persons throughout the United States, it was said.

She wanted to take a test for a driver's license Tuesday. The couple borrowed a car owned by Walter Robinson, 56, operator of a service station on Rt. 45 near Salem. She wanted the other car because it had an automatic shift.

Circulars advertising pictures were even sent to children, Fruhling said. Customers for nude and indecent pictures, both still and movie, were told to send their orders to Denmark, Fruhling added.

She passed the road test but was not given a license because she didn't have a birth certificate with her. The couple returned Robinson's car.

Glanzman was said to have a large home at Lawrence, Long Island, N.Y.

Mrs. Wright wanted to drive their own car home. Wright wouldn't let her. He became angry and took off for Salem. Mrs. Wright again borrowed Robinson's car to drive home.

Ronald Reagans Have New Son

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Nancy Davis, wife of actor Ronald Reagan, gave birth Tuesday to an 8 pound, 4 ounce son. The baby, delivered by Caesarian section, was named Ronald Jr. They have a daughter, Patti Ann, 5.

Smalley said the woman told him she was driving 50 to 60 miles an hour when the cars collided at a country crossroads called Harmony.

Can't Understand Fuss
Rep. Basil L. Whitener (D) of Gastonia, N.C., said he can't understand what the fuss is about.

Smalley said Mrs. Wright will be charged with causing death by and Republican parties Tuesday said they will not seek re-election.

Whitener also fretted over possible bootleg Star Spangled Banners. "I mentioned it in the barber shop down home, to see what reaction I'd get," Whitener said.

Space Cone Tests May Result in 'Spacemen'

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—The method used for recovering test nose cones of two Army Jupiter missiles may be adapted to bring man back from rocket flight into space.

Officials of the Cook Research Laboratories of Morton Grove, Ill., disclosed Wednesday that at the invitation of the Army ballistic missiles agency the company has submitted proposals for a system to bring a man back through the atmosphere.

The laboratories devised the combination parachute - flotation equipment which made possible the recovery from Atlantic impact points of Jupiter test cones fired several hundred miles into space on Aug. 8, 1957, and last Sunday.

Spokesmen for the company, headed by Walter C. Hasselhorn, gave some details of the system at a news conference.

Improved Techniques
Plans are under way for improving the recovery technique to the point where it may be used for bringing back a man from a brief excursion into space in the nose cone, a spokesman said.

In experiments, chimpanzees have been fired to high altitudes, although not into the fringes of space, it was said.

Laboratory experts believe that later, with improved equipment, these or other animals can be used in tests to make the journey safe for man.

Space tests with a passenger in a nose cone may precede the attempt to put a man in an orbiting satellite vehicle. A brief flight to a point several hundred miles
