Nocl Phillips, Lawton, Okla., contractor uses this ad to keep a promise he made when a prayer of his was answered in prison:

"Man or boy 18 to 23 years old Mint have const second. Perfer man on parole. Bring paper, apply in person."

In a boys reformatory, Phillips prayed for a parole, and promsed to help others like himself if he got out. He is doing it by hiring ex-prisoners in his successful contracting

Saturday night:

"You can't calculate the value of a soul in dollars and cents. Jim Vaus has been trying to win some of his former underworld associates for Christ, including Mickey Cohen."

He addressed about 17,000 persons in the 16,500-seat Cow Palaccas he concluded his sixth week here.

Ex-Wiretap Artist

Vaus, a former wiretap artist for Cohen, was converted by Graham in 1949. He later became an evangelist.

Cohen testified Friday at his assault trial in Los Angeles that he has been living on loans from friends, including $7,000 from Vaus.

Graham's sermon was televised on 170 stations in the United States and Canada.

Composer-rancher Stuart Hamblen sang two of his works, "This Oi' House" and "Until Then."

Also present were Vaus and Southern California youth worker Lou Zamperini, noted for tearing down a Nazi flag at the 1936 Olympics because Hitler walked out on American winner Jesse Owens, a Negro.
