Priest to Take Trip To Native Germany

LEBANON — In observance of his 25th anniversary as a priest, Rev. Plus Baur, pastor of St. Edward's Catholic Church, plans to leave here Monday for his native home in Hallfanger, Wurttemberg, Germany. Next Sunday he will perform high mass at St. Laurens, the same church where he said his first mass on June 29, 1933.

Sunday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock, Father Baur will be honored at an anniversary reception in the church parish hall.

Rev. Baur received his education in his own country, as well as additional schooling in London, Austria and Rome. He studied theology at the Pontifical University, conducted by the Jesuit Fathers, and belongs to the International College.

Following five years at Jordan, he was assigned to the Ashland parish; coming to Lebanon seven years ago.

In addition to visiting with relatives in Germany, Father Baur expects to visit the Holy Land, Brussels and Rome before returning to Lebanon in early September.

Religious Forces Join Road Safety Programs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religious Writer

Churches today are giving driving lessons. But not the usual variety. They're teaching that handling an automobile is not just a mechanical process but a spiritual one.

It's a new kind of program to combat slaughter on the highways.

Religious forces are now joining to point up the relationships of morals and motoring.

"The growth of the movement has been phenomenal," said John T. Kenna, of Chicago, director of the recently established Church Safety Activities Division of the National Safety Council.

"In just one year, it has developed from virtually nothing until new leaders of every denomination in every state are becoming the strong right arm in the work to save human life."

All this has focused a stern, old theological rebuke on reckless, rude and negligent driving—"It's a sin." And its wages are 40,000 American deaths and 1 1/2 million seriously injured each year.

"The waste of human lives springs from sinful carelessness, arrogance and disregard for the rights of others," says the Rev. Dr. Roy G. Ross, general executive of the National Council of Churches.

In many pulpits, sermons have hammered at the point. Religious journals are discussing it. It has been injected into Sunday schools. Interdenominational councils have issued statements, set up committees, launched crusades.

"There's a flood of religious slogans and tracts on driving. Some samples: "By their drive, they shall know them." "Drive prayerfully." "Christians should drive like Christians." The Outdoor Advertising Assn. recently dotted the roadways with this sign:

Morally Responsible "You are morally responsible for safe driving."

For the first time this spring, the President's Committee on Traffic Safety included religious leaders at regional planning conferences—at Chicago, Atlantic City, Miami Beach and San Francisco.

Five states, by action of their governors, have set up continuing religious advisory councils on the matter. Others are forming elsewhere.

About 50 cities, Kenna estimates, have set up similar interfaith programs locally, the most active in Akron, Ohio; Portland, Ore.; Greenwich, Conn. and Lincoln, Neb.

To give over-all direction to the effort, a National Church Safety Committee of about 100 members, representing all major religious groups, now is forming under chairmanship of Louis B. Seltzer, editor of the Cleveland Press.

Roman Catholic, Jewish and Protestant leaders have cited selfishness, power urges, impatience, lack of consideration for others—all in defiance of religious principles.

Ike Opens Drive for Trade Pact

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration opened its drive for Senate approval of a five-year extension of the reciprocal trade program.

President Eisenhower won a lopsided 317-88 victory in the House June 11 but is running into trouble with his own party leadership in the Senate. Democratic leaders are supporting the President.

Carrying the administration ball Secretary of State Dulles went before the Senate Finance Committee Friday with a plea that it would be reckless to discount Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threat of economic war.

"You have heard repeatedly Mr. Khrushchev's threat of 'war' in the peaceful field of trade and his boast that the Soviets will win this war because of the superiority of their system," Dulles said.

"I have said before—and I say again—it would be reckless to treat this threat as negligible."

"The strategy of Communist imperialism involves the subversion of country after country until the United States is isolated and subject to economic strangulation," he said.

As passed by the House, the trade agreements bill would authorize the President to reduce U.S. tariffs on imports as much as 25 per cent over the next five years in return for foreign concessions on U.S. exports.

A reciprocal tariff cutting law on the books for 24 years, is due to expire June 30 unless renewed by Congress.

Eisenhower has urged a five-year extension, to permit flexibility in negotiating with other countries, but Sen. William F. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, wants to limit the renewal term to three years.

Ned H. Dearborn, National Safety Council president, says church support "in the war on accidents may well turn the tide of battle and halt the mounting toll of death and destruction from traffic accidents."

The spreading program was born in Greenwich, Conn., last fall, sparked by a retired financial executive, Sherburne Prescott, who later gave $75,000 to launch the National Church Activities Division.

The United Christian Youth Movement, embracing most major Protestant denominations, has set "Christian action on the highway" as its 1958 emphasis. The National Council of Catholic Women has the same study theme this year.

Archbishop Michael, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, has directed all his pastors to devote a sermon to the problem around Labor Day.

At 5 p.m. Sunday, youth of the church will meet for recreation and fellowship, followed at 6:30 with study.

Dr. Wayne Grene, pastor, will lead the 7:30 evening worship and communion service.

Live Mystery Show 'Unbelievably Bad'

By EVE STARR HOLLYWOOD — STARR REPORT: There has been a good deal of bemoaning the fact that the coming 1958-59 season will be virtually bereft of live dramatic shows.

I have been one of the chief mourners at the wailing wall, and shall continue to be. Especially after what I saw last week.

That was my initial introduction to something which should have been an event—a real, live, hour-long dramatic show done in New York, fountainhead of our latter-day dramatic culture and lost home of "Kraft Theater," "Studio One," "Celanese Theater," "Philo Playhouse," "Robert Montgomery Presents," "Pulitzer Prize Playhouse" and so many others.

What I saw was something called "The Investigator," a series of live mystery shows designed to replace the Fisher-Gobel show for the summer and all done up in color just to compound the error.

It is never any particular fun for a columnist — or at least this columnist — to find abysmal faults with any given show. It is much more exciting and rewarding to watch television attain the heights rather than the depths, and there is already enough unhappiness in the world without further contributions from me.

But if TV is going to give over an entire hour of prime evening time to "The Investigator," then TV must answer for it. I shall at least forebear from mentioning the name of the guilty network.

Reviews and comment on the first of "The Investigator" shows were not good. I saw for myself that the second show was not only not good but unbelievably bad.
