Dear Ann Landers

Son Risks Chance of Unwanted Wedding

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Our 21-year-old son always has been a fine boy but lately he's worrying us to death. He's dating a 17-year-old girl who works in a dime store. She quit school and has a poor reputation. Her parents are divorced and her mother is a bar-fly .

This girl keeps no hours and doesn't have to answer to anyone. Our son has been coming in at 4 and 5 in the morning, clothes a mess, smeared with lipstick. This is NOT the type of girl he's interested in marrying and we know it.

Dad and I haven't said a word to him about her. Should we continue to ignore the situation and hope for the best? He dates other girls now and then-lovely young ladies who attend college here, but this tart seems to have a strange hold on him. Please

This "strange hold" could result in a sudden and unwanted marriage for your son. Have a frank talk with him and point out that he's putting himself in a vulnerable position.

Make no attacks on the girl or he may feel compelled to defend her. This would open a whole new can of worms. Simply let him know this relationship has all the ingredients of a real trouble. If could ruin his life.

Dear Ann: I've been married three years and my husband has brought me one dress ($9.95) and one pair of $3 canvas shoes. I had to have the shoes because the tongue fell out of my only other pair and the lace holes were cutting my feet. In this same period he bought himself two $75 suits and is now looking for a

Last night we played gin-rummy and he promised if I won he'd give me money to buy material and a pattern so I could make myself a pair of pajamas to wear in the hospital. I'm going to

I lost the game and now I have to pay him out of the grocery money. Honestly, I'm getting so fed up on his stinginess that don't know what do do

He says if I want "extras" I should go out and work for them like other women. All our friends think he's a grand guy. What

Ask this "grand guy" how you can go out and work for "extras" when you're pregnant all the time. No woman should put up with the humiliation of begging for money and wearing tennis shoes while her husband buys himself Tell him if he doesn't give you a decent allowance you'll take him to the Court of Domestic Relations and the judge will order him to straighten up and fly right. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems end them to her in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped
