If what last night's sneak preview, or "dress rehearsal," revealed still holds the remainder of the week, Pentacle Players are opening their season with one of their best productions.

Apple Lover Proves Point, Lives to 92

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The man who helped popularize the slogan "an apple a day keeps the doctor away" died Saturday at the age of 92.

Troublesome Cowboy

Jim Kroepflin, who plays Bo, the troublesome cowboy who really isn't tough at all, is a newcomer to the Pentacle Theater. He does an excellent job of bulling his way but comes to a full stop when he meets big Bill Gallaway as Sheriff Marsters. Incidentally, the beard Bill wears is not necessary for warmth, it is there because of the line "He looks like Moses, don't he?"
