THIS IS MEDICAL EDUCATION WEEK

Each of the nation's 82 medical schools does for more than train physicians. They provide instruction for over 57,000 other students, a group twice as large as the medical student enrollment. Included are dental, pharmacy, and nursing students, technicians, graduate students, interns, and residents. While the benefits of health and medical education are daily with us, it is fitting to devote a special week to the consideration of the wider training of physicians.

Each American has a personal stake in our country's medical schools. The schools which train the physicians required by our growing source for the health of our people and the strength of the Nation.

Today, we are enjoying the greatest era medicine has known. American medical leaders stand among the foremost scientists of the world. I am sure the American people appreciate the skilled and devoted attention of their physicians and realize that the continued advance of medicine requires their understanding and support.

Novel Costuming for "Don Juan"

Novel ideas in costuming, staging and acting will be experimented upon by Willamette University's drama department, when it presents "Don Juan" by Moliere May 2 and 3 in the auditorium. Following a modern translation of the 17th century play, the cast will attempt to create the feeling of timelessness through costuming and speech mannerisms. The costumes will range from Roman togas and clothing from the middle ages to Puritan garb, 18th and 19th century fashions and even a contemporary white tie and tails.

The acting style of each person will depend upon how he is dressed—the Roman senator orates, Don Juan uses the modern jargon, his aide is from the comic vanderbilts era, others speak in a stilted Victorian style. General staging techniques are being borrowed from the various areas and periods of the theatre, another device to eliminate the feeling of time and place in the play.

Crew heads for the Moliere comedy are stage manager, Ken Remshaw, Burlingame; stage crew, Bob Braddy, Monterey; lighting, Wayne Harris, San Mateo; costumes, Lois Wickersham, Portland; properties, Donna Leonard, Milwaukie, and makeup, George Neilson, Bend.

Sen. Lewis to Speak

Senator Jean Lewis of Portland will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Jane Jefferson Club, Democratic women, on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Max Shusterwitz, 3363 Alberta St., at 8 p.m. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Wallace Murdock and Mrs. Thomas Bachelor. The nominating committee will also be appointed.

The Fairfield Grange Home Economics Club will hold a baked food sale at the Jonesway Grocery, Hopmere, on Saturday, April 27.
