WILL IT PAY?

Six months ago many people in Salem decided not to buy homes on the theory that prices would drop. There are still a number who are much in need of homes but putting up with extraordinary inconveniences on the theory that prices will drop in the near future. But will they?

There are indications now that we will soon have order instead of economic chaos but each move towards settlement carries with it a slight increase in prices and wages. Saturday morning's news announced an increase in wages for those who haul lumber, sand, gravel, etc. Simultaneously, announcement was made of an increase in the price of lumber. The steel strike was settled by authorizing an increase in the price of iron and wages in the steel mills. That means increase in the cost of plumbing.

There is considerable unemployment at the moment but there is not much indication that there will be any serious unemployment when our production indication that there will be any serious unemployment when our production machinery gets into high gear. Naturally, it will take a little while for people who came out of the war service to adjust themselves to other vocations but in the end there will be employment for all who are willing to work at the jobs In the light of these facts, will it pay to delay buying a home if you are in real need of one right now?
