

W. G. BROWN WILL SELL STUDEBAKERS IN THIS DISTRICT

W. G. Brown, for three years Hudson Essex dealer in Eugene, has been appointed Studebaker dealer in this territory succeeding the Sweet-Drain Auto company. The dealership will be taken over immediately by Mr. Brown.

It is understood that Mr. Brown will retain the Hudson Essex sales in this territory, and with the two lines will have automobiles representing a price range from $505 to $2,700.

A complete line of automobiles of the makes handled under the two dealerships will be on display Friday at the Brown Motor company headquarters, 842 Pearl street. This will include Studebaker cars and trucks.

Mr. Brown, in a statement, assured both old and prospective Studebaker owners of his intention to give the best possible service. In connection, he is sending Claude Shell of the local company to the Studebaker factory at South Bend, Indiana, where he will attend the Studebaker school to obtain a thorough training in Studebaker sales and service work.

Mr. Brown, it was said, was selected for the dealership here because of his reputation as a sound, progressive business man who enjoys the confidence of the public.

Mahlon Sweet, who has held the Studebaker dealership here for several years as head of the Sweet-Drain Auto company, said that he was not ready to announce his plans for the future.

Port Flood Lights To Be Raised Soon

Flood lights at the Eugene airport will probably be raised about five feet higher in an effort to eliminate a shadow which is cast on the field with the lights at their present height, according to W. C. Clubb, Jr., city engineer.

All other lighting equipment at the airport is working efficiently, Mr. Clubb stated. The runways at the field are in good condition and have not been damaged by the recent heavy rains.

Eugene is expected to send a good sized delegation to the meeting of the Willamette River Development association at Oregon City next Monday night, according to A. F. S. Steele, secretary of the chamber of commerce. Springfield will also be represented.

At this meeting the organization will be perfected with the election of a board of directors, officers having already been selected.

A report on the survey of potential freight tonnage for a barge line on the river when the improvements are made in the channel will be submitted at this meeting, said Mr. Steele. He and Foster Steele of the Cascade national forest office were busy Friday compiling figures on timber and possible lumber tonnage.

The next meeting of the association will be held at Junction City on Dec. 28, it was announced.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE LUNCH HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE

Twenty-two persons from various parts of the county attended the Christmas seal sale luncheon Thursday noon in the home economics department building at the university.

The seal chairman were entertained by Mrs. J. Bishop Tingle, county chairman. The luncheon was prepared and served by the home economics classes of the university.

A general discussion of the program of the Lane County Public Health association and the Oregon Tuberculosis association was held. Dr. W. W. Hicks of Junction City told the chairman that there is now only one death from tuberculosis for every 12 active cases. There were 18 deaths in Lane county last year from tuberculosis, he said.

Bessie Williams, county health nurse, said Lane county has 20 persons in the sanitarium near Salem, and there are 14 on the waiting list.

Beth Konkelt, executive secretary of the Lane County Public Health association, compared the work in Lane county with the programs of other counties, particularly in regard to expenditures. She pointed out that although Lane county is larger than other counties in southern Oregon carrying on the work, the other counties are spending more for health and prevention of disease.

Jackson county, with a population of 32,905 budgeted $12,500 this year. Douglas county with 21,938 people budgeted $8,000. Coos budgeted $11,129 for the work among its 28,338 people.

Lane, it was pointed out, budgeted $3,395 last year for a population of 54,464.
