

SUMMER SCHOOL HAWAII CRUISE TO START ON JUNE 19

The University of Oregon summer session cruise to Hawaii will leave here June 19 with approximately the same enrollment as last year, with a possibility that the total of 70 may be exceeded, it was stated here today by Alfred Powers, director of summer sessions, who also announced the faculty to accompany the venture.

Headed by Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of liberal arts and sciences, the faculty will include S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English here; Samuel H. Johnson, associate professor of sociology, and Miss Agnes Campbell, instructor in art, Holmby College, Los Angeles.

Miss Campbell, a sister of the late Prince L. Campbell who served as president of the university, is well known in art circles in Oregon, and is regarded as one of the leading artists of the Pacific coast. She will instruct in this subject, a field which is particularly attractive in Hawaii where not only scenic effects are world-famed, but where unusual cloud and marine subjects can be obtained.

Miss Campbell is a graduate of the university with the class of 1915. She is well known to the campus, since she taught in summer session last year.

Mr. Smith, whose latest book, "The Craft of the Critic," is attracting wide attention, is the author of numerous articles in his field, and has won high recognition as a teacher. He plans special courses in literature that are of unusual interest to students on the cruise.

Much of the teaching in sociology, to be done by Dr. Stephenson Smith, is in the nature of practical laboratory work, since Hawaii, due to the many races there, is noted for studies in this field.

The cruise this year will be on the Empress of Japan, vessel of the N. Y. K. line. The ship is the largest and most luxurious on the Pacific, and makes the run from Vancouver to Honolulu in five days.

Only a limited time remains for signing on with the cruise. Full information may be obtained from the extension offices at the university either on the campus here or in Portland.

Already hailed as "The Baedeker for the Critic," a volume recently completed here by S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English at the University of Oregon, has won national acclaim and praise by leading men and women in education, according to word received here from the publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell company of New York.

The book, on which Mr. Smith has been working for some time, deals with book and play reviewing, and has been so written that it reads easily and entertainingly while it instructs. It is expected to prove popular as a text in colleges and universities all over the country, as well as being a valuable addition to the libraries of journalists, authors and reviewers.

"I have been reading 'The Craft of the Critic' with constantly increasing pleasure," says E. N. Voorhes, of Columbia University, who is quoted in the publishers' announcement. "It is too humbly warm and personal to be called a handbook, and these are the very qualities which I believe will make the book a guide to new vistas for the author speaks with the authority of a scholar and the charm of an artist."

"I shall list Professor Smith's 'The Craft of the Critic' in the recommended list of books on criticism and shall recommend it in my course in American Literature," says J. Dunsmuir, of Princeton, one of the outstanding men of letters in the United States. Others who praise the volume are Warren Beck, of Lawrence College; Norman R. Coleman, president of Reed College; Robert W. Jones, University of Washington, and a number of leading critics and educators of the country.

Kitchen Shower Is Held For Teacher

BETHEL, May 30.—(Special).—A kitchen shower was given Miss Johanna Seelye, teacher of the intermediate grades at Bethel, Wednesday, May 27, at the schoolhouse. Mothers of pupils in her room sponsored the affair, aided by the other teachers and the ladies of the Community club, and were able to keep it the complete surprise they intended it should be.

At the close of school for the afternoon, the other teachers escorted Miss Seelye into the club room while the guests sang a parody on "Here Comes the Bride," and Mrs. Howard Hunt solemnly walked forward all decorated with all the gifts she could possibly have tied or pinned on. On her head she wore a coronal from which was draped a veil of dish towels; the dragging end of the "veil" was carried by little Marilyn Hults acting as "page."

Brides carried in lieu of a prayer book, a case of hot dish holders and a bouquet of red roses which she presented to Miss Seelye, then proceeded to read a poem composed by one of the ladies present, which was both amusing and yet carried the good wishes of her friends.

Sentimental about a large table decorated with pink and red roses, the company were served cake and tea, after which Miss Seelye opened her gifts.

Miss Seelye's mother, Nina Day Seelye, was a surprise guest. Mrs. Northam and Mrs. Larson of Eugene and Mrs. Woodruff of Brownsville, were additional guests.

TEXT BY WILLIAMS WIDELY RECOGNIZED

Described by the publishers and those familiar with the field as the first book to be written in any language that treats the chemistry of both plant and animal life adequately, "Introduction to Biochemistry," a text written by Roger J. Williams, professor of chemistry at the University of Oregon, is now being distributed all over the United States. It is expected to meet with success equal to that of his earlier volume, "Introduction to Organic Chemistry," which is now used as a text in more than 300 colleges and universities.

The volume, which has been printed by the D. Van Nostrand Company of New York, is the result of many years of study in the fields of both chemistry and physiology. One of the most important teaching points is the development of the discussion from single-celled organisms to multicellular organisms, and the student studies first the characteristics of simple organisms and then by logical progression moves on to study higher forms of life.

"Like the author's 'Organic Chemistry' this book contains a simple, lucid organization that permits a wide range without sacrificing a general unity," the publishers' announcement says. Three important questions to be asked and answered in the book are: first, of what are organisms composed? second—What do they take from their surroundings? and third—How do they bring about these transformations? Around these is the organization that is the secret of the success of the book, it is stated.

Dr. Williams, who recently achieved national recognition by discovering a new process of separating vitamins in yeast growth, is regarded as a national authority on chemistry. He has served as research chemist for the Fleischmann company, and for the past three years has been carrying on research here on yeast growth under a grant from this company. He has been a member of the faculty at the university since 1920.

Under plans for government control of radio broadcasting, the 23 radio stations now operating in France will be reduced to 15, of sufficient power to adequately cover the country.

NASH

Of course...you can get along without Twin Ignition

...but you don't get along so well

You could, if necessary, see with one eye. You can drive with one hand. Two make a better job of it.

The same applies to Twin Ignition. People who drive the Nash Twin Ignition Eight-80 or Eight-90 (16 spark plugs, 16 firing points, instead of 8) have a distinct advantage over cars still using single ignition. The gasoline mixture is burned more quickly and more completely.

By engineering test, the same motor with Twin Ignition instead of single ignition, produces 22% more power, 5 more miles per hour top speed and 2 extra miles of travel from a gallon of gasoline.

Of course, you can get along without Twin Ignition. But we say, and these cars will prove it, that you don't get along so well!

Just compare the pep, power, smoothness and gasoline consumption of the Nash Eight-80 or Eight-90 with cars of the single ignition type at the same price, and you'll agree with us, and with Nash owners, that there is a most desirable improvement.

Buy no car today until you have made this interesting comparison. We will gladly arrange a demonstration. Just phone... we'll send a car.

WILDERNESS AREAS STILL TO BE FOUND IN WESTERN REGION

One can travel in the western regions of the United States today and would not meet a stranger in a filling station in a day's journey on horseback, a map released by the U. S. bureau of census showed.

The census bureau on the basis of the 1930 count has prepared a map showing these places still beyond what most persons regard as the civilized world—the remaining bad lands, the desert, the swamps and the still impassable mountain country.

The largest area includes all of Nevada except for a strip of the western edge of the state, and the central part of Idaho and most of the eastern part of Oregon, also are included in this category.

Montana also has large sparsely populated areas, and down in the California's Mojave desert and in the Yuma country of Arizona, the population thins out to a white mark on the census map. Remote Apache country, Arizona, is another point where few come and fewer remain.

East of the Mississippi, the hardest place to meet a stranger is in the everglades, Collier county, the largest area in Florida, has 2,833 inhabitants to its 2,042 miles.

The great industrial east is almost at a standstill, while in the south there is nothing but heart rending stories of poverty. Be glad that you live in Oregon, and do not desert the ship. This is a wonderful state and the Lord certainly blessed it in many ways."

Mrs. Laura Graham, special deputy, and Mr. Joseph, assistant state manager of the Pacific Woodmen Life Association, spoke about the different organizations they represent.

Several pictures were taken of the kiddies and of their parents which will be used in The Tidings, a national publication with a circulation of over a half million.
