

WIFE KILLS HER HUSBAND DURING FIGHT IN HOTEL

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—(AP)—Patrolman Charles E. Munn, 53, was shot and killed by his wife in a hotel room here last night. Police said she confessed to shooting following a quarrel.

Police quoted her as saying she killed him with one of six bullets she fired after he had called her a "bun" as he lay on a bed in the room. She said they had returned from a drinking party and she had tried to persuade him that his drinking was ruining his record in the department.

"Afterward I turned the gun against my breast," she told police, "but it would not go off—I guess it was empty."

She said that at the height of the quarrel she rushed to the bureau drawer where Munn kept his revolver, setting it on the floor six times. Fire went wild and the sixth struck Munn in the stomach. He died within a few minutes. They were married at San Jose last December.

Another roomer at the hotel, Frank Fields, narrowly escaped the stray bullets. He was reading in a room adjoining that of Munn with his wife, Margaret. As the first shot came through the wall he threw himself to the floor. Another shot whizzed over him and imbedded itself in the opposite wall.

Mrs. Munn was charged with murder.

Noted Harvard Geologist To Be In Oregon

Dr. William Morris Davis, emeritus professor of geology at Harvard university, and one of the foremost geologists of the country, will visit Oregon some time in August to study the Oregon shoreline, according to Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology department here. Dr. Davis taught in the summer school here last year, and is at present at Stanford University.

The geology of the Oregon shoreline was presented to the geologic section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which met last week in Pasadena, by Dr. Smith. His paper was discussed at length by Dr. Douglas W. Johnson, outstanding authority on the Atlantic shoreline, and professor of physiography at Columbia university. The discussion aroused a great deal of interest in Oregon geology, which Dr. Smith said had gained the attention of geologists all over the country.

Plans for the marine biological station to be erected on Coos Bay by the University were described by Dr. Smith at the Oceanographic dinner held during the meeting, which was presided over by Dr. William Vaughn, director of the Scripps Institute at La Jolla, California. Those present showed great interest in the station, according to Dr. Smith, and expressed the hope that erection would take place in the near future.

EUGENE STUDENTS LISTED IN SPRING TERM HONOR ROLL

Though spring is popularly supposed to be the worst time in which to concentrate on studies, the spring term honor roll at the University of Oregon contains the longest list of names since the practice of compiling this list was instituted, according to Earl M. Pallett, registrar, who released the roll Wednesday. The names of 132 students appear on the roll, which is made up of those who make no grade below I and II, an exceptionally high record.

Of the 132, 62 are from Portland, 38 from Eugene, and the remainder from Oregon and out of state points. Honors were divided about equally between men and women, with men having the advantage a little with 78, and the women with 54.

Arthur Ireland, Joseph Saslavsky, Frances Frazier, and Willmadene Richardson, all of Portland, were among the 15 students to get no grade below a I, a perfect rating. The others were George Layman, Walter Pritchard, Doris Hardy, Hazel Lewis and Home Sheller, Eugene; Philip Coffin, Powers; Stanley Darling, Bend; William Kuykendall, Klamath Falls; Joe McKeown, Marshfield; Lee Medford; and Lorna Scheden, Gresham.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR LAMB MEETING

The "eat more lamb" movement will be given a big impetus at a meeting to be held at the Eugene chamber of commerce to 1:30 p. m. Friday, July 10. This is one of a series of meetings to be held in the western and central portions of the state to inaugurate a campaign to educate the people of the United States to buy more lamb meat.

O. S. Fletcher, county agent, is temporary chairman of the committee. He is in charge of arrangements for this meeting and other members of the committee are E. A. McCormack, of Eugene; H. C. Wheeler, of Goshen; Alfred White, of Cottage Grove; W. L. Parker, of Elmira; Roy Foster of Lorane; V. A. Parker, of Blachly; F. H. Stieckler of Eugene and Frank Williams of Junction City.

Other meetings will be held at Prineville July 9 and at Oakland July 11, it is announced.

These meetings are scheduled for the purpose of discussing the problems in connection with the profitable marketing of lambs. Unsatisfactory lamb prices to the producer during the past two years make this topic of keen interest to sheep men.

It is announced that facts and figures will be presented in graphic form, showing the true causes of depressed lamb prices. The problem has been receiving the study and analysis of leaders in the sheep industry, both state and national. Many of these leaders will be present at these meetings. Eric Racey, representing the National Wool Growers' association, will present a series of illustrated charts in explanation of the carefully worked out plans for permanently solving the problems in connection with low lamb prices.

Active Delegates To Report Meeting

Delegates attending the Active International convention at Vancouver, B. C., the past week are to report for the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Eugene Active club Thursday noon at the Osburn hotel.

Those going from here and who will make the reports are Donald Husband, Dave Barnhart, Merle Saunders, Edwin Johnson, Phil Nordling, and Loy W. Rowling.

HANDSHUK CASE IS DROPPED BY STATE

The case of the state versus Dr. M. L. Handshuk of Eugene was dismissed from circuit court Wednesday because of inability of the state to get its witnesses here for trial. One witness has died and the other was not available.

Dr. Handshuk was charged with practicing medicine without a license. He had been convicted in justice court and had appealed to circuit court.

In the justice court case, the state claimed Dr. Handshuk had prescribed drugs to a patient, which it claimed he could not do under his license to practice naturopathy or chiropody. Dr. Handshuk declared he did not prescribe drugs.

A Swedish statistical society has calculated that, including losses from revolution, famine and pestilence, the Great War deprived the world of no fewer than 40,000,000 lives.
