Miss Taylor Goes To Richmond For Meet

Miss M. Ethel Taylor left Wednesday for Richmond, Va., where she will attend the national convention of the Business and Professional Women's clubs as a delegate from the local group. The convention meets July 6 to 11.
Miss Taylor will join a group of delegates from Oregon and Washington in attempting to bring the 1935 convention to Seattle. Washington will send about 40 delegates to Richmond and a strong bid will be made by them, backed by Oregon and other northwestern delegations, for the big meeting here four years from now.

TODAY'S RECIPES

By SISTER MARY

FROZEN desserts always are greeted with delight, and they are so easy to make that it seems advisable to use them often during the warm weather.

Plain ice cream and ices can be given to small children without any fear of ill effect, provided the frozen mixture is eaten slowly. Small bits on the tip of the spoon and not too close together prevent small tummies from being chilled by the cold dessert.

If you can freeze your dessert in an electric refrigerator so much the better, for you save the time and effort of crushing ice. But it is not a very arduous task to crush ice, and there are many mixtures which can be frozen without turning a crank.

Slow, steady freezing rather than much and vigorous stirring gives ice cream its smooth texture. It is usually hurried freezing instead of stirring or not stirring that is responsible for a coarse, granular ice cream, although the amount of cream used in the recipe also has much to do with the texture of the frozen mixture.

The smaller the amount of salt used in freezing a mixture the more velvety the texture, too. This of course lengthens the time required for freezing.

In the case of mixtures frozen in electric refrigerators—mousses and parfaits and mixtures which ordinarily are allowed to stand undisturbed until frozen—the refrigerator makes a perfect substitute for the freezer. However, a smooth ice cream cannot be obtained unless the recipe is adapted to this method of freezing. The addition of a small amount of gelatin helps to prevent formation of crystals and frequent stirring of the mixture as it freezes breaks up the ice flakes. Since milk contains water which naturally crystallizes when it freezes, mixtures containing a large percentage of milk are inclined to be icy. Mousses and parfaits which contain a large percentage of cream are of perfect texture, but they are more expensive to make and are too rich for many persons.

Mixtures sometimes fail to freeze in electric refrigerators if they are too sweet or contain too much egg, gelatin or starch. Of course the temperature of your refrigerator also may be the cause of the failure.

Gelatin should be added in the proportion of one teaspoonful to each cup of liquid. This gives body to the mixture preventing the formation of ice crystals.

Junket, cornstarch, and flour also can be used. If flour or cornstarch is used, care must be taken that they are well cooked before the mixture is frozen. Minute tapioca also is used as a thickening agent.

Vanilla Ice Cream
Two cups milk, 2 teaspoons gelatin, 3/4 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups whipping cream, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon vanilla.

Sink gelatin five minutes in one tablespoon cold water. Heat milk and sugar. Heat the boiling point, stirring to be sure sugar is dissolved. Add softened gelatin and stir until this is dissolved. Pour over slightly beaten eggs and cook this mixture over hot water until it coats a metal spoon. Cool and add cream whipped until stiff, salt and vanilla. Turn into freezing tray or crankless freezer and freeze until firm. If a crankless freezer is used, pack in eight parts ice to one part salt.

Serve plain or with a sauce. Serves ten persons.

Miss Hall Marries On Tuesday

Miss Leona Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hall, and Orville Kingman were married Tuesday evening at the First Baptist church, Rev. Brant Wilson officiating. Miss Ethel Thompson and Cecil Pierson attended the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Kingman are residing at the Baldwin apartments.

Discussional Meet Held Tuesday

Pi Lambda Theta sponsored the first of a series of discussion meetings it is giving during the summer session, Tuesday evening in the women's room of Gerlinger hall. Dr. Frederick Starr talked on the schools in Japan. About forty attended. Next Tuesday evening, Floyd Wooten is to address the members and guests of the organization an "Some Aspects of European Schools."

On Thursday evening, the society is giving a picnic for members at the home of Mrs. W. H. Maxham at five-thirty o'clock.

NEW evening wraps which exclusive houses are beginning to show sound the death knell for the useful little jackets that are so ubiquitous this summer.

If you have one or several, you might as well wear them out and have a good time doing so, for autumn evening wraps will be longer and warmer.

The new ones for mid-summer are exquisitely fashioned of soft, sheer velvets, satins, chiffons, pleated and embroidered, and of other rich but thin stuffs.

Styles Borrow Old Themes
They are tremendously individual in cut. Some of them ask that you be exceedingly tall and slender to show them off to advantage. Others, of course, are cut to flatter your short stature, if that is what you have.

Inspiration for these lovely garments comes from all kinds of sources. Some are quite medieval in their cut. Others with a tendency toward drapery here and there.

One of these is especially appealing, made of chartreuse chiffon velvet and cut in a design all its own. Sleeves Are Mere Slits
It is very Grecian in effect and so draped that description eludes you. However, the front is shirred up to the left shoulder, forming a soft, large scarf in the back and giving adequate room for the arms within the wrap.

For sleeves, mere slits in the gorgeous velvet allow your arms to come through, or just your hands, if you feel like withdrawing from the evening air.

Length is noticeably longer in this wrap. And it shows, too, the increasing tendency toward such intricate designing that the fitted, sleek obvious little jackets of early summer look quite gauche beside such a lady-like garment.

nous to many mothers. We seem to know instinctively the hallmarks of health in our children. But if any are sighing over the too-good-to-be-true vision, and cast despairing eyes at the little Flora or Lester, spiritless Lester, there is this to remember: Children are different. Some children are not born to have red cheeks. Some are naturally small eaters. All children do not bang around or whistle or climb trees.

However, if Flora or Lester show other signs of other disturbances, such as continued loss of weight, nervousness, sleeplessness, bowel irregularity, or nose or throat trouble, that is not as it should be.

There is no regular weight scale for boys or girls of any given age. The reason is plain because a child of two or six or eight may weigh twice as much as his neighbor of the same age and both be equally healthy.

Must Show Improvement
But one thing is emphasized. Regular gain in weight and height is more important than the weight itself, or the height at any one time. The characteristics of the parents, race and nationality must be considered, and they vary tremendously.

The children's bureau advises parents to have children examined twice a year.

VEGETABLE BASE
Creamed dishes in summer time should use vegetables instead of toast as a base. Try par-boiling spinach and using it under creamed fish.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE government checks up on its children regularly. Now it sends out a helpful word to parents about checking up on their own children. "Is your child well? This is the way to tell," says Dr. M. M. Elliot, director of child hygiene of the children's bureau.

"The healthy child has rosy cheeks and red lips. His eyes are bright. His skin is smooth, his muscles firm, and his body straight and strong. He grows tall and gains weight month by month. He is active, alert and interested in everything. He plays vigorously, creeping, running, jumping, climbing, according to his age. His mother may find him (or her) a strenuous companion, with his never-ending desire for activity. He is probably a bit noisy, getting pleasure out of banging and shouting and singing.

"But when it is bedtime he sleeps like a log. He is hungry at meal times and needs no coaxing to persuade him to eat. His bowels move daily. He has no abnormal discharge from eyes, ears or nose. His teeth are clean and not decayed. He breathes with his mouth closed. He does not have pains or aches."

Hour-Glass IS SYMBOL OF MODERN ROASTING METHOD
Accuracy Is Assured in Controlled Roasting — Hills Bros.' Patented Process for Roasting Coffee
Better than anything else, an hour-glass symbolizes the exactness of Hills Bros.' patented, Controlled Roasting process. For as the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow... a little at a time... so the wonderful, unvarying flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously... a little at a time.
This is very different from ordinary, bulk-roasting methods. The results are very different too. You can judge them yourself, if you compare Hills Bros. with other coffees.
Hills Bros. has a finer, uniform flavor. Roasting it a little at a time makes this possible. For every berry receives the right amount of heat. None is underdone, none is overdone. The same delightful flavor is assured in every pound. Bulk-roasted coffee can't guarantee these things. No wonder Hills Bros. Coffee has and holds so many friends!
Hills Bros. Coffee comes in vacuum cans that keep it fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.
