

OREGON TEACHERS TO HEAR FACULTY AT STATE MEETING

Many of the perplexing problems of modern education will be taken up at the 32nd annual convention of the Oregon State Teachers' association to be held in Portland, Dec. 28, 29 and 30 in the Lincoln high school building. A large number of the University of Oregon faculty members will take leading parts in the program.

The university school of education will be generously represented at the conference in a wide variety of subjects. Dr. Harold S. Tuttle, expert in child character training, will lead the discussion in this work, and will present a research study he has just completed. Dr. Nelson L. Brossing will present a paper called, "From the Standpoint of the Teacher Training Institution," to the section on higher education. How to teach international affairs in United States history will be discussed by C. E. Rothwell, of the University high school, and he will also describe visual instruction methods in history. Mrs. Edith Dutton, also of the University high school, will present a paper on the teaching of high school French.

His South American experiences will be described by Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology department, in the geographical section, while Dr. Edwin T. Hodge, of the geology department, will describe the history of the Columbia river. Dr. Roger J. Williams, of the chemistry department, will present a paper called the "Newer Knowledge of Vitamins."

As in a number of years before, Professor Frederic S. Dunn, head of the Latin department, will have charge of the division of the conference devoted to classical teachers. Mrs. Edna Landros, also of the local Latin department, will give a talk on the myths involved in the origin of speech. Dr. Ray P. Bowen, head of the romance language department, Dr. C. B. Beall and Louis McEvers, of the same department, will have prominent parts in a program on this subject.

Kenneth Shumaker, of the English department will tell his experiences with placement tests, and Dr. John L. Casteel, head of the speech department, will lead the discussion of the topic on debating as a preparation for democratic citizenship.

All University of Oregon alumni attending the conference will be entertained at a luncheon held on Wednesday, Dec. 30, in the Lincoln high school cafeteria. Homer D. Angell, president of the alumni association, will preside, and Dr. H. D. Sheldon, dean of the school of education, here, will speak on the subject, "The Present Situation and the Way Out."

Miss Hayes Here In Great Picture

Helen Hayes, the Broadway star who proves that a lady can be beautiful and an actress at the same time, turns in a brilliant performance in "The Sign of the Cross" which opened Sunday for two days at the McDonald theater. She is supported by a splendid cast and the picture is one of the best the season has produced.

The title role is a difficult one, for Miss Hayes is caused to appear as a French peasant girl who later becomes one of the reigning beauties of Paris, and who is finally driven by circumstances to a heart-breaking old age.

The mother of an informal son, Madeline Claudet is forced into the Paris streets in order to provide him with an education and the means of becoming a great doctor. Jean Herholt is the kindly old man who keeps the son's parentage from him, and helps him to achieve his ambitions.

The son believes his mother dead, and though there are a good many tears in the picture, it ends happily when the young doctor befriends an old lady whom he believes has been attempting to rob him, unmindful that she is the one whose sacrifice has made his career possible. The picture will close Monday night, is one that should not be missed.

U. S. May Want Free Coinage of Silver

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Should Germany go off the gold standard and carry France with it, former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas said today, we will not talk next summer of the mistake of President Hoover, but the bimetallicism and the free and unlimited coinage of silver at any ratio that will enable us to have cheap money.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Alexander Pantages, wealthy theater man, treated the jurors who recently acquitted him on a charge of criminally inducing a single, co-ed dancer, to a dinner and theater party Friday night, he disclosed today.

"They found me innocent, therefore I am a free man," said Pantages. "As a free man, asking nothing and expecting nothing from the jurors, I invited them to my home for dinner and later to a theater as my way of personally thanking them for vindicating me."

"What other reason could I have for inviting them? They already had acquitted me."

Some of the jurors were reluctant however, to discuss the party. Four jurors said they did not attend, others found Pantages a "fine host" and had a wonderful time.

WOMEN'S STYLES RENEW BYGONES

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Fashion that recently has been taking style tips from the Second Empire and other historic periods has happened onto a new field for inspiration—the nursery days of the women who wear its creations.

As a result next summer will see red and white striped dresses that revive childhood memories of peppermint stick candy and seersucker frocks that recall one's pinafore age.

These two fashions are prominent in the Palm Beach and winter resort showings which indicate what will be worn generally in the coming hot months.

It looks like a season of hand crochet and hand crochet effects. The racks are heavy with crochet dresses, crochet sweaters and skirts, crochet roll-your-own-hats, crochet trimmings—crochet bathing suits, jersey lined.

In addition there are many new lace and mesh weaves in all threads.
