Ray W. Jones, formerly of Seattle, arrived in Eugene Tuesday to assume management of the Fox West Coast theatres here, following the resignation this week of R. E. Abeglen. Abeglen has been with the Fox McDonald and Fox Rex theatres here for the past two years.

Jones, appointment was announced by Jack Retlaw, district manager, who has opened his offices in Eugene. Jones has been managing the Fox theatre in Seattle and in assuming the management in Eugene, is re-entering the Fox West Coast organization after an absence of four years.

Jones does not plan any changes in the personnel of the organization. He is moving here with his wife and daughter and is living at the Florence apartments.

Abeglen has not announced his plans for the future.

The McDonald theatre plans a season of big attractions, the first of which will be Constance Bennett in "What Price Hollywood." "Grand Hotel," one of the biggest pictures of all time, will be here soon, Jones announces.

He is writing backwards with his left hand. Thompson is here to perform feats of par-optic vision for Eugeneans. Register-Guard readers will remember his feats of former visits here.

THOMPSON FEATS STORY

Interested in the actual phenomena of par-optic vision.

Thompson, a business man, engaged in the hotel business in Los Angeles, Cal., operating the two hundred room Chelsea hotel, Sixth and Bonnie Brae streets, told the story of the cause of "depression" as it exists today.

He related how he has met the "times" and how he has been able to keep the Chelsea filled to capacity even when all things seemed against him. It will be a revelation to hear this man's story. Not only is he endowed with a keen sense of showmanship, but also has the most remarkable abilities ever recorded in scientific annals. He has an analytical mind. He is a student of human nature. It will prove a revelation to you as he will also send you gratis the first tests in mental telepathy, which can be mastered by anyone in a few minutes.

Tomorrow in the Register-Guard you will receive, first hand, Hayward Thompson's personal story. It will be replete with thrills. It will give you an understanding of the nature of this man who has become internationally known through an accident incurred during the World war. ### Officer of Coast Artillery Is Here

Colonel R. F. Woods, executive officer of the coast artillery, was in Eugene Monday night to confer with reserve officers of the coast artillery here.

Seven officers were present at the meeting, according to Major Van Swerend, who arranged the meeting. Colonel Woods discussed various mat-by and see its people starve when they are willing to work.

"Must Provide Work"

"Enough work must be provided to keep the people from starving and we shall be fortunate indeed if this irreducible cost minimum does not greatly exceed the amount provided in the relief measures which I sponsored.

"Before genuine and permanent relief can be accomplished, the finances of the basic industries of this nation must be placed on a sound basis thereby removing the spectre of receiverships and foreclosures and restoring their buying power and ability to employ labor."

"International trade must be re-established by the restoration of international confidence and credits. Honesty among nations is as essential a virtue as honesty among individuals.

"An individual who borrows and makes no honest effort to pay is dishonest; the same applies to a nation.

Talks About Debts

"If foreign debts should be cancelled the credit of the nations involved would be destroyed and they cannot borrow again.

"The government of the United States owes it to its citizens to collect the greatest amount of taxes to the extent of their ability to pay and there should be no film-fam accepted as to that ability to pay.

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed, I, as a member of congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed.

"Cost Can Be Cut"

The cost of government—city, county, state and national—can and should be reduced not less than one-third.

"The principal obligation of a government, established in accordance with the American principles and traditions, is to protect the rights of its people in the free enjoyment of the fruits of their labor and the pursuit of happiness.

"The constantly increasing tendency toward socialism and communism is the gravest menace to the government should use every means within its power to prevent their further spread and they should receive no encouragement from any American citizen, high or low."

"The democrats of California and of my native state, Texas, are sending delegations to the national convention in Chicago instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency.

"This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity."

Garner's statement was regarded by his friends as in the nature of a "keynote" address.

Later Representative McDuffie of Alabama, the democratic whip and staunch supporter of Speaker Garner told newspaper men prohibition should be submitted to the people on the straight question of repeal.

"I believe there is sentiment enough in this country to justify submission of the straight question of repeal," said McDuffie, long counted among southern dry forces.

"I think the speaker's statement is honest, straightforward, manly and courageous. In these days and times the American people are not interested in pussyfooters on any question.

"No one has ever learned insofar as I have ascertained how President Hoover stands on prohibition."

Walter Newton, one of the president's secretaries was shown a copy of the Garner statement while standing in the speaker's lobby. He had no comment.

Comment Widespread

Garner's declaration for repeal brought widespread comment from other democratic leaders.

Senator Sheppard (D. Texas) said that though he disagreed with Garner on prohibition, he would continue to support him for the presidency. The co-author of the 18th amendment said:

"I do not agree with Speaker Garner on repeal, but this does not affect my support of him for the presidency. I regard him as sound on all other vital questions."

Other comments follow:

Senator Wagner (D. N. Y.): "That shows the drift. I hope the convention will recommend repeal. A declaration that a repeal amendment should be submitted would, however, be free from ambiguities and could be understood by the people."

Senator Pittman (D. Nev.): "I think he made a very clear expression of his views, past and future. It is evidence that it will have a popular majority at the convention."

Senator Copeland (D. N. Y.): "That's good. I'm glad to hear it. It is very significant that a man who has occupied the position he has should express himself as he has. There will be a bitter contest over the plank and Garner's declaration plus the liberal stand of McAdoo makes it probable that the Garner delegates will vote for a liberal plank."

Repeal Story Predicted

Senator Fess (R. Ohio): "I have no doubt the convention will come out for repeal."

Senator Blaine (R. Wis.): "They turn out very quickly, don't they?"

Representative Howard (D. Nrb.) one-time secretary to William Jennings Bryan: "The speaker's statement will make a repeal plank in the platform."

Representative Cullen, leader of the Tammany delegation: "That is great language. There is no evasion here. It is the kind of a statement the people expect and demand from every man in public life."

Representative Bankhead (D. Ala.) another house leader said: "It is a good statement. All of it is in accord with good, sound democratic doctrine. Any democrat can support it."

Representative Rainey, the democratic leader: "I voted in the house to re-submit the 18th amendment, and I think the time has come to re-submit it to the people unqualifiedly."

Airman Killed in Bomb Explosion

MANILA, P. I., June 21.—(AP)—A hundred pound bomb, exploding just after he released it from a rack under the fuselage of his plane, killed Lieut. Elwell A. Sanborn today over Fort Stotsenberg, 50 miles north of Manila.

A crowd of soldiers and visitors saw the flying lieutenant fall to a flaming death as fragments of the bomb burst his plane's gasoline tanks and sent the ship on a fiery plunge to the ground. Two other pursuit planes flying in formation with Lieutenant Sanborn 400 feet up, were not harmed. Sanborn was alone in his plane.

An inquiry was ordered.

Daniel Webster, who was the greatest orator of his day, had difficulty in reciting his lessons when a boy because of bashfulness.

are about to converge on the convention scene to combat the threat of a new and common foe—Governor Roosevelt of New York.

The Rooseveltians are putting every energy into a last minute drive to nominate the New York governor on the first ballot. They are counting on 90 of New York's 94 votes and about 20 or 25 from Illinois to turn the trick.

Tomorrow comes the master of the 1928 campaign, Former Governor Smith, and of his strategy even the confident Roosevelt forces are wary.

Late today or early in the morning comes Mr. McAdoo whose battle of more than 100 ballots with Smith in 1924 established him, too, as one to be reckoned with in convention contests. He is for Speaker Garner, whom he helped to defeat Roosevelt in California.

So, democratic political leaders are rubbing their eyes at this strange alliance of Smith and McAdoo and watching intently for the showdown between these enemies of old and their new rival. That showdown is expected before the balloting begins but New York's announcement will not necessarily bring it.

It is common gossip in the rapidly filling corridors about convention headquarters at the Congress hotel that the anti-Roosevelt strategy is to give the governor his maximum strength on the first ballot. It is figured that cutting him down after the first ballot will be destructive.

Challenge Accepted

The Roosevelt men have accepted that challenge and James A. Farley, spokesman here for the governor, says he will go over the top on the first ballot.

Meanwhile, speculation over abolition of the two-thirds rule persists as the Roosevelt camp nears the majority mark in the number pledged, instructed and claimed delegates.

The announcement in the senate yesterday by Borah, of Idaho, that he would not support President Hoover for re-election stirred democratic leaders here but little faith was placed in discussion that the powerful oratory of the Idahoan might be turned to democratic use in 1932.

On the contrary, it evoked speculation over a third party and here again the Rooseveltians quickly leaped into the situation to reassert that the best way to avoid a third party split was to nominate their man.

A lot of fun is ahead in the divided and aroused democratic fold where the prospects of victory this year, since Borah spoke, are regarded brighter than ever.

The singers were to assemble at their headquarters, the Seattle Elks club, immediately upon their arrival. Then they sing over KJR. Then they sing before the banquet for the northwest district of Rotary. Two other banquet programs are to follow. At 3 o'clock this evening they will appear at the Fifth Avenue theater.

Busy Time Sisted

During Wednesday morning they will appear from one Rotary program to another, relieving the 10 o'clock Wednesday morning they will appear on a special program at the Fredrick and Nelson department store where they will do their broadcast over KOMO.

The start home will be made sometime Wednesday afternoon.

The Gleemen are being "sponsored" everywhere, a picture being taken at every stop. The Fredrick and Nelson store in Seattle has had a window given over to the picture of the Eugene singers.

Dr. Charles E. Hunt, president and John Stark Evans, well known director, have worked for weeks to get the arrangements carried through for the Gleemen and the trip to Seattle is the most pretentious thing Gleemen have done.
