The Oregon group urged favorable consideration of the measure providing federal aid in the unemployment situation this fall and winter, declaring local and state funds for this purpose have been depleted and government assistance is essential.

RELIEF PLAN DRAWN

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21—(AP)—Mobilization of the state's resources in a war against hunger in Oregon is contemplated under a general plan of action adopted by Governor Meier's state-wide conference on unemployment and relief.

The first step planned by the conference, which met here yesterday for the first time, is a survey by local forces throughout the state in an effort to find crops which might not be harvested or which cannot be profitably marketed. Under the plan recommended the unemployed would be put to work conserving this food against future needs. Details of this plan are to be considered at a meeting of the conference executive committee with Governor Meier later this week.

The conference also expressed itself as favoring congressional enactment of a bill providing for a loan of $300,000,000 to the several states by the federal government. The money would be used for relief purposes.

Although unemployment was considered by the conference it was the general opinion that the relief council would have all it could do in dealing with the question of converting agricultural surpluses into foodstuffs which may be administered at the lowest possible cost. It was proposed that scrip be issued against these supplies to workmen employed under the emergency plan.

tricts and someone in each district will have charge of the work of gathering the crops and canning them, it was announced. The county court will provide a number of fireless cookers for use in canning and the needy families will do the work themselves under the direction of Miss Gertrude L. Skow, county home demonstration agent, and her assistants. In Eugene it is quite probable that the produce will be canned at the plant of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association. J. O. Holt, manager of the association, Tuesday expressed his willingness to cooperate.

Each community will work out its own plan whereby the needy will work for what they get, it was announced. The names of the people needing assistance will be furnished by the Red Cross, which handles all relief work of the county court, and Miss Skow's department will handle the actual work of canning the fruits and vegetables.

Tin cans, which can be had at a very reasonable price, will be furnished and in every instance each family will be required to turn back the one in six to pay for their provisions and the expense of canning.

After the fruit and vegetable season is over, exchange of products between communities in different sections of the county will be arranged. For instance, canned beans put up in the valley portion of the county will be exchanged for salmon canned in the coast communities and in the case of other vegetables and fruits similar arrangements will be made, it is announced.
