

ENGLAND HEARS PROTESTS OVER TITHE SYSTEM

LONDON, July 25.—(U.P.)—Sharp protest against the ancient system of tithing has arisen lately in 16 English counties.

The tithing, non-existent in America, is a form of rent or taxation on a landowner or tenant crops or livestock, and the beneficiary is usually a church, a minister or ecclesiastical body, or it may be a private person.

In a report just issued by the tithing commission of Queen Anne's County, in which the ecclesiastical tithing throughout England is vested, recognition is taken of the fact that there has been an increasing effort to secure a revision of the tithing system, if not a complete cessation of payments. The loss to be caused tithing-owners in such a case may be readily understood from the disclosure that, as of Dec. 31, 1931, Queen Anne's County had tithing to the total value of $10,848,666, at par.

It is admitted that the payment of tithing has been complicated in numerous cases by the depression, and no unreasonable pressure was brought, states the report, against debtors in arrears. Since tithing recovery may be effected legally (corresponding to the American system of attaching property and selling to the highest bidder), and since this method has been followed in a few cases recently the tithing payers of 16 counties have called a national meeting to discuss the whole situation.

There has already been open agitation in the matter, and tithing-owners claim that the payers are trying to defeat the legal means of collection by breaking down the special system under which it operates.

The present government is reported to have stated definitely that it does not intend to introduce legislation, affecting the tithing system.

Tithing was first legally recognized in England in 780; the system has been regulated subsequently on frequent occasions, most recently by the Tithing Act of 1837.

Courts may be called upon to decide whether the $1,000,000 settlement which Smith Reynolds, 20-year-old heir to tobacco millions, made to his first wife, Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds (above), and their 2-year-old daughter, fulfilled all his obligations to them. Reynolds' death less than two months after his marriage to Libby Holman, Broadway "torch singer," has caused speculation over the settlement of his estate, estimated at $21,000,000.

highway. The state highway commission agreed on June 23, 1927, to build the highway between Lowell and Oakridge, he said. The county was to pay one-third, the state one-third and the bureau of public roads the other third. Under recent rulings, the county is only liable to one-fourth, so Lane will attempt to obtain credit for the difference between one-third and one-fourth, Judge Barnard said.

Highway Costs Million

"At the present time, or up to Jan. 1, there has been expended on the Willamette highway $1,001,349.52," Judge Barnard said. "When this highway is completed to connect with The Dalles-California highway, residents in the Willamette valley will be able to make a one-day loop trip, going up the McKenzie highway, down through the central Oregon country on The Dalles-California highway, and back to the valley on the Willamette highway."

Lane county is fortunate in being now engaged in completing her highway system since the county is benefiting by the advanced standards of highway construction, getting much better roads now than were built ten years ago.

Following the dedication ceremonies, which were held in connection with the regular monthly meeting of the Lane county chamber of commerce, visitors at the event looked over the bridge and enjoyed the several sporting events planned. The dedication ceremonies started at 1 o'clock after the picnic lunch. The Eugene I. O. O. F. band gave a concert at noon and the Cottage Grove American Legion drum corps gave a concert at 12:30. In addition to the chamber meeting in honor of this event, the Willamette Council of the American Legion also held their regular meeting at the picnic grounds.

Bridge Latest Type

Sports of the day included a greased pole stunt, in which no one was able to climb the greased pole to get a five-dollar bill tacked at the end; a tug-of-war in which the loggers defeated the mill men; a free-for-all on a raft in the river, in which 20 men struggled till only one man was left on the raft; and numerous races for various prizes.

Visitors were welcomed in an address of welcome by A. E. Gerimonte of Westfir and the response was given by E. A. McCorkle. Delegations from Eugene, Florence, Albany, Cottage Grove and every town represented in the county chamber attended the event.

Barnard bridge is constructed in the latest approved style for bridge building and is said by bridge experts to be one of the finest of its type in the state. The bridge consists of two steel spans, each 161 feet long and three-quarter inches in length, and five concrete steel spans, two on the Oakridge end and three on the Springfield end, each 45 feet long.

There are 140,000 pounds of structural steel in the bridge and 200,000 pounds of reinforcing steel in the concrete, including the five spans and the three piers.

M'DONALD FILM IS GRAND PRODUCTION

A picture that will probably be recognized as one of the ten best of 1935 is "Skyscraper Souls," which opened Sunday at the Fox McDonald theatre. It features a big cast headed by Warren William and Maureen O'Sullivan and is one of the best pieces of entertainment to play the theatre this season.

The picture tells the story of a financial genius whose biggest passion centers around the construction of a huge 102-story skyscraper. Having accomplished its building, he ruthlessly destroys all around him in order to satisfy his desire to own it completely.

Around the central plot, however, is woven a tender love story and there is plenty of good comedy as well as exciting drama. The entire story is enacted in the giant skyscraper which houses everything from swimming pools to a bank. The picture should not be missed. It's a great production.—R. C.

Farmers National and the board of trade that resulted in the government-sponsored cooperative's charge that the board had violated the grain futures act in denying it a membership in the board's clearing house association.

Through the Updike Grain company, a subsidiary, the Farmers National had clearing house facilities.

But the board charged the officers of the Updike company had avowed ownership of stock, whereas "in reality the company was owned by the Farmers National Grain corporation." After a hearing, the Updike company was suspended May 25.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the Farmers National, said today the government-sponsored cooperative had been granted clearing privileges in "every other important trading mart in the United States."

In all their hub and cry about being closed up, Milnor said, "President Carey and others of the board overlook that part of the government's decision that would set aside the closing order if the Farmers National were given clearing association privileges.

"It's just a plain case of Carey trying to lead the board to suicide." Through the Hall-Daker Grain corporation, a subsidiary, the Farmers National has clearing association facilities on the Kansas City board of trade, and has, in itself, been admitted to such clearing membership in the Minneapolis, Des Moines, Seattle and Portland exchanges, Milnor said.

"It seems," Milnor added, "that the Chicago board was the only one out of step."

lowers, after a few letters of disgust, followed him.

"Wall Street government," was the principal shout.

Several thousand spectators jammed the streets.

Both of the men taken into custody struggled fiercely with the police.

At Thirteenth and F streets, in the heart of the business district, as the main wing continued to their billets, one of the marchers snatched a policeman's pistol from his holster during a scuffle and ran rapidly down the street.

No shots were immediately fired, as police took up the chase.

The trouble at this intersection developed when an obdurate veteran refused to leave the sidewalk as ordered by a policeman.

He swung at the officer. Although most of his companions had followed police orders, some returned to join in the affray.

Soon there were half a dozen separate melees going full tilt, short-lived but active.
