Harlow was a special guest. A picnic luncheon was served at noon and the afternoon was spent in swimming, sewing and other diversions. Plans for the next meeting of the club have not been announced.

TODAY'S RECIPES

By SISTER MARY

If you are interested in simple puddings that are delicious, economical and nourishing, I am sure the following recipes will appeal to you:

Summer Rice Pudding
One-third cup rice, 3/4 cups milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 cup strawberries, 1 cup whipped cream.
Wash rice through many waters. Let stand in cold water to more than cover for thirty minutes. Drain and add to milk. Pour into a baking dish and bake in a slow oven—250 to 275 degrees F. Stir several times during the first hour, then add sugar and salt and bake about one and one-half hours longer without stirring. The mixture should be creamy and slightly thickened when the baking is finished. Chill thoroughly and skim off the crust on top. Add vanilla and fold in preserves and whipped cream. Turn into individual serving dishes and chill until wanted for serving. Any kind of preserves can be used that are at hand.

Baked Peach Pudding
This pudding is made nourishing with eggs and milk.
Two cups milk, 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/2 cup sugar, 5 eggs, 6 peaches, few grains salt.
Scald milk. Mix cornstarch to a smooth paste with a little cold milk and stir into milk. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add sugar and salt and cook over boiling water for ten minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and add the yolks of eggs well beaten. Stir well and fold in the whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Peel

Miss Schoenberg Gives Recital Tuesday

Dances which harmonize rhythm with dramatic pantomime were presented by Miss Hessel Schoenberg in recital Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Underwood, 1038 Twenty-first avenue east. Miss Schoenberg is a daughter of Mme. Rose McEwen, of the music faculty at the University of Oregon. Mrs. Underwood played the accompaniment.

For her program Miss Schoenberg chose:
I. Chorale Bach
II. Lullaby, Belgian Madrigal Frescobaldi
III. Ghetto Lament Scriabine
IV. Three German folk songs.
1. Wander song.
2. Love song.
3. Dance song.

Miss Schoenberg's grace and artistry delighted her audience. The first two numbers interpreting medieval themes and atmosphere were remarkable for feeling portrayed by delicate pantomime and gesture.

In the Ghetto lament, a fragment of New York life, the young artist gave a picture which was vivid in its understanding and originality. Hardships make life a lament to the Jewish immigrant woman. Hope is born only in sacrifice. It was a character sketch which the young artist enacted—simple and artistically effective.

The last three presentations were jolly. Familiar folk songs and dances were merged in the pantomime dance which indicated the words and rhythms. They caught the audience in gaiety.

Miss Schoenberg will return soon to New York to continue her studies.

In dance and drama, Drama probably will be her field and Miss Schoenberg's early command of pantomime and posture, the two most difficult arts of the stage, give promise of a brilliant career. Stage presence should be the natural gift of a talented mother.—W. M. T.

Lodge Will Hold Picnic Thursday

The Neighbors of Woodcraft lodge will hold a picnic supper Thursday evening at six o'clock at the park behind the butte. Those attending are to bring a basket lunch and dishes and silver.

The affair will honor Mrs. Alice Taylor and family, who will soon go to Corvallis to reside. Mrs. Taylor is a member of the drill team of the lodge.

Christian Groups Hold Picnic Meeting

Mrs. Raymond Wells' group three and Mrs. Gladys Collins' group six of the First Christian Missionary society held a joint picnic meeting Tuesday afternoon at the park behind the butte. A large crowd attended including nine visitors.

A picnic luncheon was served at one o'clock with a program following. Mrs. Wayne Robertson was in charge of devotional and Mrs. Guy Barton was leader. Musical number was given by Fern and Elsie Robertson, playing their own accompaniment on the triangle. Dorothy Jackson gave a reading and Mrs. R. M. Day, leader of young people's work of the state, reviewed the Turner conference. She also read an article on prohibition. Mrs. Harold Roberts also gave a paper and Mrs. Barton gave a reading on "Education and the Church."

The next meeting of group three will also be a picnic on August 5, back of the butte and Mrs. Harold Roberts will be leader.

Sewing Room To Be Conducted Thursday

The Welfare League's service sewing room will be conducted Thursday evening at six o'clock in the evening in the rooms over the Hendershott Gun store. The project is carried out to assist mothers who might otherwise have difficulty in making suitable clothing for their children for school.

Older girls are also invited to come to assist in making these clothes for school.

Members of the league will assist and advise at the service sewing room.

The modern girl of 1932, sophisticated yet so feminine, will be delighted with the Hansel and Gretel utility bags made by her own hands! Upon snooping around in the art needlework departments and gift shops in New York, I saw the latest crop of debutantes busily making them.

The two utility bags illustrated here are not only decorative for your closet, but they are very useful for hiding away handkerchiefs and socks. The roomy skirt and trouser bags are made of red and blue checked gingham. Colorful percale, chintz, and felt complete the gay outfit of this cute Dutch pair. Bright flozies were used for the simple embroidery and yellow yarn for the wig. The set of two can be bought containing everything necessary to complete them, including the stamped bodies and tinted faces, for about $1.00.

The girls I saw making them seemed to have drifted back to the days when they were dressing their dolls, but they appeared to be deriving an even greater kick out of making them for their "hope chests."

The laundry bags with the adorable dogs are one of the other accessories which every bride will want to have. The one shown above can be purchased in practically every department store or art needlework shop, ready-made, of cream crash, finished with a double draw string. The design is suited for simple touches of embroidery. This one can be bought wrapped in an envelope containing everything necessary to complete the bag, and you can buy it for about $1.00.

If you are really handy and happen to have unbleached muslin or cream crash, there isn't any reason in the world why you can't make the complete bag yourself and trace the design on it.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

PLEASE do not forget to give the baby a drink of water.
Of course he gets water in many forms. Milk formulas are composed of so many ounces of water according to his age. Also his cereal and vegetables are boiled in it and his fruit juices diluted with it, either enough or too much. But this is not enough. Every human being, young and old, craves a good straight drink of cool, fresh water every little while. When such craving sets up there is a real bodily need for it, you may be sure.

Tiny babies nursing or on straight diet do not seem to suffer from thirst, have to be coaxed sometimes to drink plain water out of a bottle. Whether they seem to want it or not, water should be offered them at regular intervals between feedings, even if they take only a swallow or two.

I have seen babies who have refused water over and over suddenly one day drink several ounces of it. One day baby whose mother had become discouraged over his continued refusal to drink had given up any attempt to offer it.

A Sudden Liking for Water
The baby cried most of a day one time, and finally the mother called up the doctor. "Try her with water," he suggested.

She had no hope, but got the water. In the next few hours the baby consumed six or eight ounces and stopped fretting after the first good drink. It would be hard to say why she became so thirsty all at once, but she did. She developed into a great water drinker and began to gain steadily in weight.

Older babies on varied diets—cereals, vegetables, fruit juices, custards and perhaps eggs, that contain thick producing substances, sugar and salt cannot help but be thirsty.

After they have had a meal give them a little drink of water. The big drinks should be between meals. Do not allow them to get into the habit of drinking just before they eat, if you can avoid it. Some doctors do not recommend drinking after a meal either.

But I do not think that it matters if the stomach is not flooded by large drafts that dilute digestive juices. The great part of water should be taken between meals, however.

In summer we need to take more fluid because we lose more through the pores by perspiration. Tissues take up the water all over the body very quickly. In fact water constitutes by far the greater part of our body's weight being not only contained in our blood and other fluids but in the bones themselves.

So please do not forget on these hot days to give the baby plenty of water. Feed water should never be given. If you are not quite sure of your water supply, boil it for all the children.
