YOUR CHILDREN

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

BELIEVE the greatest influence in the life of a boy of ten or eleven is his father. Just ahead of him is his mother. If the father is a good man, the boy will be a good man. If the mother is a good woman, the girl will be a good woman. This is why, if possible, I believe in the fatherhood of the home. It is bringing up children. The mother and father have certain duties. But those outside the home often try to do what is best for the child. The time a boy of ten I knew, who was to have the finest pair of pants a boy could possess, almost a hero of a no-don't-well-neighborhood. I could see what his parents did not see, that the smallest utterance of the older boy and the long and long conference were giving the child an unholy and unwholesome view of life.

His Hero Couldn't Be Wrong The boy was captain of the high school baseball team. Could Sam be wrong? Glamour gave him a little weight. A change occurred in small boy that nothing could ignore.

He has grown to manhood now and his early training has saved him. The friendship of his mother and father in the long run. But he had through a continuous wildcat and before that an undisciplined and mischievous child. I felt the older boy was largely responsible for it.

Set him ago I noticed a little in that quiet, serious little fellow. A rather spoiled little boy who in his sense of thrill by breaking into a neighbor boy five years older. He especially wasn't the older boy. The older boy represented something of which the child stood in awe. Fifteen years alone is a fetish not allowing for progress in the world.

Pleased by Greeting He approached silently, diffidently. He spoke first.

"Hello there, Sam!"

"Hello there, Sam!" answered Sam, thrilled to be noticed at all. To be noticed in such a chummy tone always pleased him.

"Hello, Sam, come up sometime and see me," said a big long ball that came over the fence. They allow you to see them now, you know. This was a game for Pittsburgh. Want to see it?"

"Yes," Evidently he wasn't waiting. The boy walked off together. The older boy was a real king of the boys. All the little fellows were his. And I consider him a more generous for kindness and all the more virtuous than six pairs of pants combined.

I believe he senses this. He did not go out of his way to be noticed. But I have noticed that he has turned satellite to the older boy. He is patient and friendly. He is highly possible that Sam is a more virtuous than six pairs of pants combined.

He is a small boy should never be noticed. This influence.

A GOOD LOOKING dress is worth repeating, which is probably the reason that these two didn't mind wearing white silk dresses sprinkled with gay red polka dots, exactly alike. The square necklines, high waists, and full sleeves that blouse just above the elbow are attractive features. White kid pumps with perforations, red hand bags and leghorn hats with red bands complete the ensemble.

Miss Tidball And Mr. Hinton Wed

Miss Minnie Edna Tidball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tidball of Veneta, and William Hinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hinton of Eugene were married Sunday, July 24, at the Church of God in Eugene. TODAY'S RECIPES

By SISTER MARY

QUICK breads come in the category of summer short cuts, and while they are decidedly labor-saving and easily prepared foods, they are in no respect makeshifts.

All breads are energy foods because their main ingredient, flour, is of great caloric value. The yeast breads are good sources of vitamin B, but the quick breads made with eggs, milk, molasses, fruits and nuts, add mineral salts and additional calories.

Consequently, yeast breads are not so essential during summer months when fresh fruits and vegetables cheaply and adequately supply vitamins, and quick breads may well be substituted.

Most all quick breads are excellent fat carriers. An extra amount of butter usually can be spread on this type of bread, making it a splendid food for undernourished children.

Sour Cream Muffins One cup white flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups bran, 1 cup sour cream, 1-3 cups molasses, 2 tablespoons water, 1 egg.

Mix and sift flour, soda and salt. Beat egg with water and add molasses and sour cream. Mix well and add to first mixture. Stir enough to blend and add bran. Mix lightly and drop by spoonfuls into well oiled muffin pan. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

Quick breads are made very successfully with sweet milk, too.

Egless Graham Bread One-half cup molasses, 3/4 cup granulated sugar, 1 1/2 cups sour milk, 1 cup whole flour, 2 cups graham flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon shortening, 1 cup chopped dates or raisins, 1 cup chopped nuts (optional).

Soften shortening and mix with sugar. Add molasses and blend thoroughly. Mix fruit and nuts with flour and add to first mixture. Add 1 cup milk and stir until smooth. Dissolve soda in remaining milk and quickly stir into batter. Turn into two small oiled and floured bread pans and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Tomorrow's Menu BREAKFAST: Blackberries with ready-to-serve cereal and cream, crisp broiled bacon, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Waffles with creamed stuffed tomato salad, graham bread, halves of honeyball melons stuffed with sliced peaches and raspberries, lead chocolate.

DINNER: Salmon loaf with mashed potato border, baked spaghetti and tomatoes, watercress, corn on the cob, Spanish cream with sliced pears, milk, coffee.

Plans were made for a picnic to be held next Wednesday. Definite announcements will be made later.

The department of the interior has recognized Dr. Steinhof as a critic on art and has asked him to visit the Indian schools in New Mexico.

Musical Program And Social Held

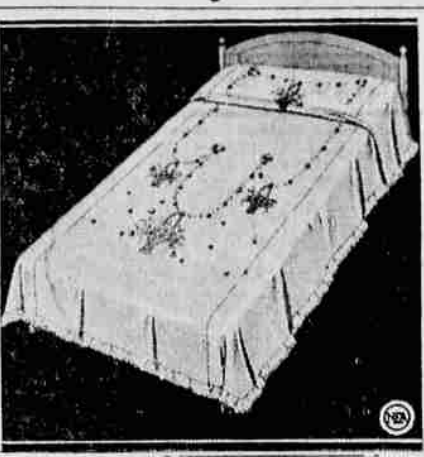

seem to have abandoned all extravaganzas. While originality in cut or trimming is not barred, it must never border on the bizarre. It can be a one-piece or two-piece affair—both are smart. The addition of a belt, besides being nearly always a necessity, contributes a good deal to the decoration and color scheme and also makes it seem less plain. Harsh color combinations or contrasts are to be avoided in swimming suits. To be perfectly candid, this garment does not permit of many elaborations. It must, above everything else, remain very sportlike in appearance and never be a pretext for unnecessary trimming or decoration.

WEDDINGS ARE SIMPLER

Wedding ceremonies are growing much simpler than they used to be, according to Miss Mary Hanlon, who has been church secretary of the Little Church around the Corner in New York for 30 years. Miss Hanlon says that 1150 couples were married in the church in June but only three weddings groups had as many as six bridesmaids.
