"STRANGER IN TOWN" COMING TO HEILIG

A very modern problem in a rural setting provides the theme for Charles "Chic" Sale's latest Warner Bros. picture, "Stranger in Town," which opens Wednesday for three days at the Heilig theatre, with Ann Dvorak, David Manners, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton.

As the proprietor of the only grocery store in the town of Bollsville, Georgia, "Chic" is suddenly faced with the old age with the competition of a chain store branch. This situation and the fact that his granddaughter falls in love with the young manager of the chain store, provides the starting point for a story which has all the elements of a real, down to earth human story presenting real life.

The audience will be given an opportunity to see the real "Chic" Sale as he is off-screen, for the opening scenes of the picture show him in his own home at the time he starts the town grocery store. It is the first time in his screen career that Sale has appeared without his whiskers and white wig which have fooled many people into believing that he really is a man of the town. In addition to the leading players, Eddie Egan, Lyle Talbot, John Mackin and Jessie Arnold are also seen to advantage.

"BACHELOR'S FOLLY" AT COLONIAL SOON

A lucky "break" will bring to the Colonial theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the first presentation in the entire northwest the feature, "Bachelor's Folly," which is announced by the management, following final completion of the contract Saturday. The picture is a faithful and sensational presentation of the stage play, "The Bachelor," which broke records both in New York and London, and is regarded as one of the cleverest comedy-dramas of the decade. The stars in the cast are the original players who made the vehicle famous both in this country and abroad. Herbert Marshall, Edna Best, Anne Grey and a number of the best known stars of the dramatic world are included. "Bachelor's Folly" is the story of a designing woman who steals a fortune, wrecks a husband, wages war on the heart of an honest man, and then loses everything to a wily butler. While the drama keeps the audience in a state of suspense, the rich comedy throughout keeps everyone in a state of merryment.

"KISMET" OFFERED AT STATE THEATER

The State theater, beginning Sunday, will offer "Kismet," the first National and Vitaphone production starring Otis Skinner and will run for three days.

"Kismet," based on Mr. Skinner's greatest triumph on the stage, is one of the most elaborate productions ever made at the First National Studios. The scenery and costumes are truly Oriental in their magnificence and according to those who have seen the picture in advance, its photographic quality sets a new standard of excellence for the industry. Over 4,500 people appear in the picture and the cast of principals supporting Mr. Skinner embraces such names as those of Loretta Young, David Manners, Mary Duncan, Sidney Blackmer, Ford Sterling, Montagu Love and Edmund Breese.

The original play by Edward Knoblock has been adapted to the screen by Howard Estabrook. It was first produced in London and New York in 1911, Oscar Asche playing the role of Hajj, the beggar, in the London production, while Otis Skinner created the same role in America.

"Passport to Hell" Comes to McDonald
The mid-week feature coming to the Fox-McDonald next Wednesday and Thursday brings the delectable Ellena Landi to the screen in a dramatic thriller, "A Passport to Hell," in which Miss Landi is supported by a notable cast including Paul Lukas, Warner Oland, Alexander Kirkland and a host of others.

BUCK STARTED BY CATCHING SNAKES

A small boy armed with a forked stick, went out one day about 30 years ago and searched for rattlesnakes in Texas. Less than one year ago a famous grown man, in pith helmet, revolver and a looped stick, captured a 30-foot python in the Sumatran jungle. Such is the brief history of Frank Buck, who led the expedition which resulted in "Bring 'Em Back Alive" which is being featured today at the Fox-McDonald theatre.

Following up this lead, the boy snake-catcher made good sums of money for the dexterity which he soon acquired. He left Texas and went to Chicago, where he worked as a bank clerk, always maintaining some contact with animals, and always following his self-planned study of natural history.

He scrimped and saved enough money to finance a personal trip to South America, and with his knowledge of ornithology and several "breaks," he was able to cover the expense of his trip and show a small profit. Obtaining financial backing, he began his career in earnest. In two years he made another trip to South America and his first to Africa. Since then not a year passed which did not find him, some of the time, in a part of the uncivilized world, "bringing 'em back alive."

NOT MUCH TO THEM
If all the outlying possessions of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, could be combined into a single area, they would total less than the area of the state of Montana.

Florida has the largest area of swamps and wet lands of any of the states—19,500,000 acres.

FOX REX OFFERS SOME OUTSTANDING FILMS THIS WEEK

"Letty Lynton" with Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in the principal roles of this attraction opens Sunday at the Fox Rex theatre for the first time in Eugene at popular prices.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayers sensational filmization of the book of the same name is an intriguing drama of modern morals with a vivid climax in which the heroine is faced with the loss of reputation or prison. A notable supporting cast includes Nils Astor as the menace, Lewis Stone, May Robson and Louise Closser Hale.

Tuesday and Wednesday of this week brings to the screen one of the most talked of pictures of a decade when "The Wet Parade" plays the Fox Rex theatre. It is the story of prohibition as it really is in this country. The picture takes no sides with or against the popular topic of the day but rather strives in its way to depict conditions concerning the prohibition problem just as they really are. No attempt is made to shield anyone and many say who have seen this production that it is almost brutal in its realism.

In its realism. One of the strongest costs ever assembled outside of the great "Grand Hotel" epic was used in the "Wet Parade." To mention a few of them the cast includes Dorothy Jordan, Lewis Stone, Neil Hamilton, Walter Huston, Jimmy "Shanley" Busante, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Joan Marsh and Wallace Ford.

Thursday and Friday brings the dynamic John Barrymore who is fast becoming America's greatest screen actor in a picture written for him, called "State's Attorney." The actor plays the role of a court room Don Juan who wins furies by his fiery eloquence and women by his debonaire personality. Blonde Helen Twelvetrees plays the feminine lead of the girl who teaches Barrymore the true meaning of the word love. The screen bill is completed with a travogue and a talker.

Saturday brings to the Fox Rex the vivid and dramatic "Disorderly Conduct," unquestionably one of the most gripping screen offerings of recent months. Spencer Tracy plays the role of a police officer who double-crossed himself—who found his refusal to touch tainted money led only to disgrace, and who consequently decided to "go wrong" with unexpected results. Sally Eilers, who rose to stardom in "Mad Girl," "Dance Team" and others is said to give a dramatic performance second to nothing she has done so far. El Brendel with his funny accent is to be seen again as Tracy's dumb copper pal. With this picture will be shown another exciting chapter of the serial thriller, "Heroes of the West."

Baby girls are still having their feet bound in certain districts of Peking and other cities of China.
