YOUR CHILDREN BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

ARE we interested in what our children are doing, or more interested in what concerns ourselves? By "selves" I mean those things concerning the children that represent us rather than them.

For instance, the other day, at a junior high school commencement in which a 12-year-old girl took part, this happened:

All week the child had studied her part. She was too much excited over plans for the great day to eat her meals.

Every second she was out of the class room she was in the auditorium watching the decorations being tacked up. Every second she was at home she was going over her speech, talking about the program—what this one was going to do, what that teacher said, what pupil had forgotten his lines at rehearsal.

Her mother was working on her dress. It was of simple plain white with a little white cape over the shoulders. During fittings this is a sample of the conversations:

"Mr. but I'll be glad when this is all over! If it weren't that you could wear this dress all summer for good, I'd never be bothered making it."

"But you want me to look nice, don't you mother? All the girls are wearing white."

"Yes, I'll be there. I want to see what kind of a dress Mrs. McKee made for Grace. She's talked so much about it, it must be wonderful."

"It couldn't be any lovelier than this, mother."

"Well, I hope not, after all my trouble. When you wear this dress, Betty, I want you to curl your hair. I'll put it up in those little waves I bought the other day with my hair curler. I look awful in waves."

"You'll do as I say, my dear. You must look your best."

"Oh, yes, I want you to please hear my speech to see if I know it?"

"I haven't time now."

At last commencement day came. But Betty had the feeling that her mother was not in the least interested. Even when it was over, the only thing she talked about was the dresses the girls wore.

Are we like this? Do we live selfishly in our children, or do we live their joys and their dreams and their plans with them?

Too often not. I am afraid.

Just-a-Wee Club

Mrs. Lena Mitchell entertained at a one o'clock luncheon for members of the Just-a-Wee club Friday afternoon.

ternoon. Cards were played following the luncheon and the group of prizes with Mrs. Elizabeth Berman winning first, Mrs. J. H. McClain second, and Mrs. Yeager, third. Mrs. Heytlen was named as permanent chairman for the group. The luncheon will be held at a home of the hostess at one o'clock covered with the butte. The next luncheon will be September 2 at the home of Mrs. F. L. Shinn.

Visitor Honored At Informal Parties

SEVERAL affairs have been arranged in the past week in honor of Miss Minnie Barton of Portland, who has been visiting here as a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burt. Misses Alice and Florence Hinshaw entertained at a party Monday evening for Miss Barton. Tuesday evening Miss Minnie and her friends gave a shower for Miss Barton. George, a bridegroom, who is to be married in October. Miss Ruby George was hostess for an informal party Friday evening as a compliment to Miss Barton. Saturday evening for Miss Barton. Miss Barton will leave this afternoon for her home.

TODAY'S RECIPES BY SISTER MARY

PARTICULARLY in summer, delicious and inexpensive meals are possible. The August appetites demand less substantial food and the market offers vegetable and fruits at minimum prices.

Whatever is most reasonable should be the basis of the dinner. Plenty of vegetables, a little meat and a dessert are all that is needed.

A stuffed vegetable dinner furnishes an interesting meal. It has little tax on the food allowance, it is amazing how many vegetables lend themselves to interesting concoctions with well seasoned stuffing of meat or nuts combined with bread crumbs, macaroni or rice. Cabbage, eggplant, tomatoes, green peppers, cucumbers, carrot, onion, potatoes and onions are attractive and of increased nourishment when served stuffed and baked.

Cutting Costs The vegetable and meat casserole is another low-cost dish. The long slow cooking develops a rich, tender flavor that is decidedly appetizing. August meals, use carrots, lima beans, corn, tomatoes, onions, celery—any combination you have at hand will meet as a seasoning. Use bottled coloring to make it more attractive and son generously with kitchen herbs to give a pungent savoriness.

The cost of the meal also can be kept down by planning desserts to add to the meal. Jellied desserts and cereal puddings of rice, cornstarch and tapioca blend well with the flavor of fresh fruits.

A creamy rice pudding such as "summer rice pudding" (the recipe was printed here the last of July) is appropriate for the hottest day and rivals the most extravagant dishes. A soft custard perfectly made and thoroughly chilled makes a nourishing sauce for fresh peaches or other fruit. Fruit juices stiffened with cornstarch and molded with small pieces of fruit are delectable served with plain cream and powdered sugar.

Chattreuse of lamb and rice combines a little lamb, which has best cut in cubes and cooked, with onion, peas and carrots in a sauce of curry powder and a sprinkling of pepper are added for seasoning and the mixture is turned into a deep baking dish lined with cooked rice. Rice is spread over the top and dotted with bits of butter. The dish is covered and baked for 50 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmolto to serve.

Breakfast: Grapefruit, cream waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Stuffed baked cucumbers, banana and peanut salad, lemon-peaches with custard sauce, lemon-sauce.

Dinner: Meat and vegetable casserole, pineapple and cabbage salad with pimento dressing, tapioca cream pudding, milk, coffee.
