

O. S. C. STUDENTS RECOVER PEP AND HOLD HUGE RALLY

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 5.—(UP)—Everything apparently was again serene on the campus here today following a huge pep rally last night which sent the Orange football team off to the University of Southern California on the heels of an outburst of criticism following the Stanford game in Portland last Saturday.

Sam Dolan, Pacific coast conference referee and former Oregon State and Notre Dame grid player, addressed the rally and severely criticized both the student body and "embryo journalists" as well as the team itself for lack of spirit.

The Daily Barometer, which Dolan accused of "dragging out the family skeleton," commented editorially today that "it took a bitter pill to cure us from what looked like certain death. That pill proved to be just what was needed and that goes for the students and the team. Too bad the alumni couldn't have witnessed how the patient recovered in the rally last night. The Barometer is not back-tracking from what appeared on the sport page Tuesday morning. The editor believes that the explosion played an important part in the recovery. Putting the coach on the spot has not dampened the belief of the team in his leadership; on the other hand it has challenged them to stop their horse-play and give him a fair trial."

RAIN, FOG, AID PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 6.—(UP)—Fog, clouds, mists and a forecast for rain brought hope throughout Oregon and Washington today that the forest fire menace, which two days ago was the worst in history, would soon be at an end.

Some rain had fallen in spots throughout the whole region today and the fog and mist covered all areas. The humidity at Portland this morning was 90 per cent, two per cent above the normal.

It was believed all imminent danger to towns and habitations had passed. The smoke pall, with some fog, was so dense that at noon automobiles had to operate with headlights on downtown Portland streets.

A trace of rain fell in Portland Wednesday. Bend's long dry spell was broken by slight rain today. Medford received two-hundredths of an inch and rain fell on the Olympic peninsula. Edward J. Wells, district forecaster said showers probably occurred at other points which failed to report.

COTTAGE GROVE, Oct. 6.—(Special).—Although at times during the past several days smoke hung over the city in a pall that obscured the sun, there have been no serious forest fires in this section and the portion of the Umpqua forests in the Layne creek ranger district has escaped entirely except for one or two incipient blazes that were quickly extinguished.

LANE TEACHERS STORY

1900. This was the period of great high school development in the country, which shows that improvement in education has gone hand in hand with an increase of the literacy of the people and an increased interest in learning.

The speaker said that the span of life of the individual has been lengthened eight years from 1901 to 1926 through education. Education in the schools, and the study of a people interested in education accounted for this, he said.

Mr. R. R. Gould spoke on the subject, "What's Wrong With Our Reading, Writing, and 'Rithmetic?'"

"Organization of education to fill the needs of the individual pupil is necessary, and instructors must outline their work with a view to developing the individual abilities of the pupils," Mr. Gould said.

Critics of present-day educational methods who declare that "frills and fads" are pushing the three R's out of education are unfriendly with not only the potentialities of these other subjects which are styled frills, he said.

"Time spent in teaching reading, writing and arithmetic" is several times as great as that given to those basic subjects years ago. In reading, present methods are designed not to teach pupils only to read, but to teach them to read to learn something.

Formerly grade school students in the first few grades read only one book a year. Now they read as many as 25 books in a year, and learn something of history, geography and science as well.

Backgrounds Vary "Students come to school with varying backgrounds. The city boy's background for art may be found in a museum, while the country lad's background is in the sunset and autumn colors. The city boy's interest may have been inspired by a gas meter, while the country boy's interest in the same subject was probably inspired by watching the Babcock tester. These two boys look upon the same subject from varying viewpoints. Their instruction must be carefully planned to develop the abilities of both."

Dean Jewell spoke on the "Education of Feelings." "People do not feel," he said. "If you can affect a person's feelings you can guide his conduct. If one can get a person to feel loyalty to a school or a city one may expect him to act according to his feelings and help the city or school. We school teachers can do a great service by guiding the student's actions by inspiring a feeling of interest in him for things that are good and a feeling of hatred for undesirable actions."

Finances Discussed Paul R. Washko of the U. of O. school of physical education outlined upon the same subject from the Boy Scouts and urged aid in the educational program of the Scouts. He outlined the survey that is being made in Eugene schools.

In the afternoon a special conference for school directors and clerks was addressed by C. A. Howard, O. A. Houghlin, cashier of the First National Bank of Eugene, and County Assessor Ben F. Krenney. Problems which confront the directors in administration and finance were discussed.

L. J. Allen, assistant state club leader, R. C. Kuehner, county club leader, Mary Annin, executive secretary of the Red Cross, Dr. R. C. Romig, Della Fitzgerald and Bessie Williams of the county health unit, led discussions pertaining to their work. School teachers led conferences on various phases of instruction.

Friday's program will be led by addresses by H. S. Tuttle of the university school of education and by Gordon S. Wells, Eugene lawyer, who will speak on the Zorn-Macpherson school wrecking bill.

SCOUT SURVEY IS UNDER WAY HERE

Classification of the reports of the survey of boys of scout age in Eugene schools is expected to be completed by Wednesday of next week, it was announced Thursday. H. R. Gould, superintendent of city schools, distributed forms in the schools Wednesday and it was expected they would be filled and turned in by Monday of next week.

The survey is being made to determine the number of boys of 11, 12 and 13 years of age in the city schools, those who are already in scouting and those who are not enrolled in any scout troop. The survey is being conducted under the auspices of the Willamette council and is part of a national ten-year scout plan which has as its objective the enrollment of ever fourth boy of scout age in a scout troop in the next ten years.

This plan has the personal endorsement of President Hoover, as a project for aiding citizenship.

When the forms distributed in the local schools have been returned, the committee in charge of the plan here will classify the reports after which the possibility of establishing new scout troops in order to enroll more boys will be discussed.

A survey is to be conducted in the three counties comprising this council, Lane, Benton and Lincoln, and it is expected that many more troops will be established.
