FOR U. S. SENATOR—STEWER.

WHEN you go to the polls next Tuesday, you will have your choice of six candidates for United States senator. Frederick Steiwer, of Pendleton, is running for re-election on the Republican ticket. His principal opponent is Walter B. Gleason, Democratic lawyer, of Portland, who came into the limelight for the first time last spring by defeating the veteran Elton Watkins on a straight "wet" platform.

The other four candidates are: Sverre Jacobsen, of Portland, a Socialist-Labor party man; Joe A. Thomas, of Medford, orthodox Socialist; A. G. Krueger, of Portland, a communist, and F. E. Coulter, of Portland, an independent, who runs on a "cheap money" platform. None of these four is a serious contender. The various Socialist candidates say their main purpose is to preach the new political philosophies they believe in. The race is between Steiwer and Gleason.

In brief, their records: Frederick Steiwer—Born and reared near Salem, Ore., educated in public schools. Graduate of both State College and University of Oregon. Lawyer by profession with many years practice. Represented Umatilla county in legislature. Elected to U. S. Senate in 1924. Has been an active champion of farm relief legislation, development of water power resources. Himself a veteran of actual war service he has supported veteran welfare programs. Helped draft home-loan bank bill. Voted against labor injunctions. Main achievement was emergency tariff to protect Northwest lumber. Favors resumption of prohibition.

Walter B. Gleason—Born in Portland in 1859. Educated at Hill academy, Cornell university, University of Oregon law school. Captain of artillery at Camp Taylor during war. Has long been active in Democratic central committee of Multnomah county. No previous public office. Advocates repeal of 18th amendment, lower tariff, federal guarantee of bank deposits, full bonus payments and federal economies.

As we see things, Fred Steiwer's superiority is outstanding. Senator Steiwer's abilities have been tested thoroughly. He is liberal in his political principles without offering promises which are rash and impossible of fulfillment. For a first-term he has won exceptional prestige. His usefulness is just beginning. In breadth of view and grasp of great national problems, his growth promises outstanding leadership in the future. He is prompt and diligent in the service of Oregon.

We believe Fred Steiwer deserves re-election and we recommend him without reservation.

RIOTS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

HUNGER riots have broken out in Great Britain. When Englishmen, known as the most law-abiding nation on earth, resort to violence and threaten revolution, conditions have indeed become dangerous. Industrial England, dependent on world trade for prosperity, is an index of the world-wide economic maladjustment.

Great Britain weathered similar disorders in the '40s. Great Britain will probably weather this storm. Yet there is a difference between present problems and those of the last century. The problems of the early manufacturing period could be met by reforms almost entirely within the power of the British government. Today's problems are difficult to meet without world-wide adjustments.

In this country which is relatively self-contained and self-sustaining we do not feel the full force of world depression, and we might even be able to solve our problems by almost complete isolation, but future safety does not lie in this direction.

The world is paying for the most expensive and destructive war in history. We could not, if we chose, view the collapse of Britain or any other nation with indifference. It is necessary to approach such problems as tariffs and international debts with caution because we are dealing with peoples which are just as blind and just as selfish in their nationalism as we are, but it is necessary to meet those problems.

The dangerous situation in Great Britain is a reminder that if our prosperity is dependent on world prosperity, we are going to be compelled to approach world problems with careful preparation. It is dangerous in these times to accept the leadership of politicians who claim to have panaceas for all that ails the nation.

It will take more than a few doses of tonic and a few applications of salve to restore health to a world-wide economic structure. Rash promises as to what can be accomplished are foolish in a period where policy may have to be adjusted to rapidly changing situations.

CANDIDATES FOR WATER BOARD.

FOR the first time in a good many years, there are no contests for city office except water board. Mayor Large, Recorder Bryson, Treasurer Wentworth are unopposed. V. D. Sobert runs for Large's old seat in the third ward. G. A. Simon, in the first, Fred Lamb, in the second, and E. W. Zumwalt in the fourth are all unopposed for re-election. Just why all contests should be for water board this year is a bit hard to determine except that after the death of C. A. McClain and before the definite appointment of J. W. McArthur as superintendent and engineer there were rumors that policies might be changed.

These rumors we believe to have been unwarranted, but be that as it may, there is a contest for each of the three positions open this year and in each case the candidate for re-election and his opponent offers "support of established successful policies as his program." Meet the candidates: AT LARGE (Whole City)

Walter P. Fell—present chairman of board. Born in Illinois in 1870. Came to Oregon as boy. Reared on sheep ranch near Heppner. Many years in various branches of wool business at Pendleton and Portland. Came to Eugene in 1911 as manager for Mason-Irwin, wholesale grocers. Insurance business since 1924. On water board since 1922. Member Elks, Rotary, Chamber of Commerce.

Clarence F. Hyde—Born in Idaho in 1888. Educated at Boise, Eastern Oregon Normal, Monmouth Normal. Ten years in Seattle postoffice as auditor. Studied at University of Washington. Came to Eugene in 1920. In realty business ever since. Married. Four children. Mason, Member Christian church. American Legion. President of Farm Loan Association.

SECOND WARD (Veatch Vacancy)

Cyrus J. Fulton—Born in Colorado in 1873. Came to Oregon as a child. Educated at The Dalles. Many years in clothing business at The Dalles, Tacoma, Portland, Eugene. Has been in clothing business here since 1914. Also widely known as landscape painter. Twice winner in exhibits of Portland Art Association. Married. Mason. Eastern Star. Methodist. No previous public office.

O. L. Coldren—Born at Silverton in 1882. Educated there. Came to Eugene in 1907. All life in transfer business. Present firm, Coldren and Mitchell, truckers. Member of Elks, Homesteaders. Married. No previous public office.

THIRD WARD

Orlando John Hollis—Born in Eugene in 1904. Graduate of Eugene schools and University (law 1928). Trust officer at First National Bank till 1931. Now professor at University of Oregon law school. Single. Elk. Presbyterian. Member of water board since V. D. Sobert resigned nearly two years ago.

D. W. James—Born in Nevada in 1894. Reared and schooled at Oakland, Ore. On Southern Pacific as trainman and engineer since 1918. Secretary of local B. L. F. & E. Resident of Eugene since terminals moved here in 1926. At present on lay-off list. Operates service station, 8th and Blair. Married. Two children.

In our opinion all of the candidates are "qualified," all men of fine character and more than average ability, and the margin of choice is slight. In the race at large, we recommend Mr. Fell on his record of long and conscientious service. We likewise recommend Mr. Hollis in Ward 3 on the basis of his record on the board; he is not only well prepared for service of this sort, but he has shown exceptional grasp of utility financing and firmness in economical operation. In the second ward, our preference is Mr. Fulton because we feel sure he will give intelligent and effective cooperation.

The Soviet government has changed the name of Nishnynovgorod to Maxim Gorki. It's no bargain, either way you take it.

A Toronto man, blind for 45 years, regained his sight after being hit suddenly on the head. He must have suffered quite a disappointment.

It's remarkable how many candidates discover during a political campaign that they have been farmers all their lives.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

STIMULANTS, NOT SEDATIVES
 (Capital Journal)

THERE is, it would appear from press reports of addresses delivered before the annual Pacific Logging congress in Tacoma this week, a divergence of opinion among lumbermen as to cause and cures of the depression that has slowed their industry down to a walk.

While one speaker, viewing the industry's struggle for the life-giving breath of trade, attributes its salvation from complete annihilation to an additional $3 tariff on lumber, others proclaim its recovery is dependent upon reestablishment of world markets. C. H. Kreienbaum of Shelton, keynoter of the congress said: "The battle-ground will have to be moved from among ourselves, where it ever has been, out into the open reaches of the four corners of the earth, where lies the consumer. The first problem of the logger, timberman and sales manager is proper trade promotion for our products in the consuming markets."

As Mr. Kreienbaum points out, the reestablishment of the American lumber industry lies in the reestablishment of world markets; in the re-opening of foreign outlets which have been largely destroyed by retaliatory duties and embargoes provoked by discriminatory tariff rates imposed by the Smoot-Hawley tariff act.

The solution lies not so much in increased or maintained tariffs as upon negotiated trade agreements, as advocated by Governor Roosevelt, to open the markets of the world of American lumber on a reasonable exchange basis. What the lumber industry needs at this time is a stimulant, not a sedative.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 (NEA Service Writer)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—There is no voting in the District of Columbia, but there are about 50,000 persons who can vote in their home states, and that always causes plenty of local excitement at election time.

Republican and Democratic groups have pep meetings and listen to campaign speeches and sometimes a candidate for some office in the outside world comes and makes a speech for this few absentee voters here that will be cast for or against him.

The eligible voters are showing deeper interest in the privilege than they ever did before and the local Democratic central committee and the National Capital Republican club are all steamed up about it, claiming everything and expanding the facilities with which they seek to corral every possible ballot for Roosevelt or Hoover. Scores of partisan volunteers are making sure that everyone knows his or her franchise rights.

The Republicans would seem to have an edge in the fact that their candidate weeks here and has been working here in one job or another, for many years. Hoover has made his acceptance and other speeches here, whereas Roosevelt merely passed through on his way to Baltimore. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, appeared this year as he did in 1928.

There is no very good way to guess which way the District of Columbia would go if it had votes in the electoral college, unless you want to go by the straw votes. The Literary Digest has had Hoover running proportionately stronger against Roosevelt in its District of Columbia poll than he has been running in the country as a whole. Recent returns gave Roosevelt 4754 and Hoover 3577.

Although Washington's vote, most of which is cast by mail, isn't going to affect the result of any presidential contest, there are congressional districts within two or three hundred miles of the capital where it really assumes some importance. The government service is heavily loaded with employees from such nearby states as Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, not to mention the thousands who have their jobs here and their legal residences in the suburbs and the countryside.

One of the congressional candidates to come to make a political speech was Mr. Jennings Randolph of the Second district in West Virginia. They say there are nearly 2000 persons here eligible to vote in Randolph's district, an unusually heavy proportion if true.

Anyway, Randolph thought it worth while to come. And then in his speech he demanded elimination of "a lot of useless bureaus, departments and commissions." That sort of thing goes big in West Virginia and everywhere else—except in the District of Columbia, where it is often regarded as political hypocrisy and a threat to a lot of jobs.

SURVEY SHOWS MOST PEOPLE DON'T KNOW HOW TO SIT

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
 (Editor, Journal of American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine)

FEW people thoroughly understand how to sit for the proper benefit of their body construction. Manufacturers of furniture have tried all sorts of stunts in the development of chairs to force people to sit properly. Unfortunately, no chair has been developed that will make people sit correctly if they do not wish to do so.

It is possible to slide down in any of them and to throw the weight on the shoulders. It is possible to hold the legs in almost any position and to tilt the head either forward or backward.

In the correct sitting position, the upper part of the body remains in the same relative position as when standing. In this position the head is poised correctly on the neck without tilting forward or back, the chest is forward, the chin in, and the abdominal muscles fairly tight.

On the contrary, when one sits incorrectly the back is round, the chest flat, the abdomen protrudes and the head held in a tilted position to balance the distortion of the rest of the upper half of the body.

A survey was made at Harvard university and it was found that less than 10 per cent of the men had good posture. About the same number had fairly good posture and the remainder had poor posture. An examination of 10,000 people taken at random by one of the great medical groups indicated that at least 44 per cent of the people have bad posture.

Probably the most important factor in bringing about a bad position while sitting is what has been characterized as a sagging mental attitude. The person simply does not care and slouches into a position in which he thinks he is going to be comfortable.

There is no doubt that clothing that is too tight in the wrong places or that presses uncomfortably on certain positions of the body when a person sits may also be responsible for bad posture.

The first step in correcting faulty position in either standing or sitting is to develop a consciousness of error. This means that a person who wishes to correct his bad position must make certain that the spine is not curved and that the head is properly held. The correct curve of the spine will be brought about if the chest is held forward, and a correct position of the head will develop if it is held properly poised on the neck with the chin in.

In order to develop the proper position, W. W. Krueger recommends that the person should first sit down on a suitable chair, that is, one with a hard seat and a fairly straight back. He then draws the chin in and back which serves to raise the chest. He then pulls in the muscles of the abdomen while contracting the muscles of the buttocks. Thereafter he releases the muscles of the abdomen and then again contracts them.
