

200 AT DISTRICT LEGION MEETING HERE THURSDAY

Nearly 200 American Legionnaires and their wives attended a district meeting and dinner here Thursday night, the occasion being the quarterly district council session.

Proceeding the meeting a dinner was held at the Lee Duke cafe with Ray Talbot of Albany, district commander presiding, and among the distinguished guests being Jack Eakin, state commander, and Jerrald Owen, executive secretary of the World war veterans state aid commission.

Mr. Eakin spoke of the necessity of increased activity among the posts of the state and Mr. Owen spoke of the work of the state aid commission, stating that there are on file at the present time 5028 applications for loans or cash bonus from veterans who have never taken either and that there are 8000 more veterans in the state who are eligible to loans or bonus but have never made application. Of the latter a large number have moved from the state.

Mr. Owen said that the matter of the continuance of the activities of the state aid commission will come up at the present session of the state legislature. Veterans probably will attend hearings in large numbers to urge the retention of this service, he said. Of course, something will have to be done to place the commission on a better financial footing, he stated.

Others who spoke at the meeting were Carl Connett of Albany, in charge of Boy Scout work in the Legion, and Carl Mosier, state adjutant.

A. E. Gerimont of Westfir, Creed Brattain of Florence, George W. Mathews of Cottage Grove and Merritt B. Huntley of Springfield gave reports on their respective posts. Relief of the needy was stressed by all speakers and this, in the opinion of all, will become one of the major projects of the Legion this year.

Citations from the past national commander to S. S. George of Eugene, national committeeman and past state commander; Robert Fromm of Cottage Grove, past district commander, and Peter Nelson, past commander of the Cottage Grove post were read.

NIGHT WATCHMAN IS FOUND DEAD

Peter Fred Pedersen, night watchman for the Gustina brothers mill near Dexter, was found dead early Friday morning by a group of friends who started investigation after it was discovered he had not made his rounds Thursday night.

The man had apparently dropped dead shortly after getting to work about 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it was said by Charles P. Poole, coroner. The mill shuts down at 3:50 o'clock and Mr. Pedersen usually came to work shortly afterwards. The fireman at the mill came on at 8 o'clock as usual Friday morning. He discovered that none of Mr. Pedersen's work had been done during the night and was unable to find the watchman. Robert Evans, Chris Pedersen, a brother, and H. E. Brown, began a search, and found Mr. Pedersen's body about a step from his bicycle. He apparently dropped dead as he started to work, falling face downward.

Mr. Pedersen was born in Denmark, 61 years ago. He came to America when 21 years old. He lived in Nebraska and Kansas. For the past five years he had been at Dexter. He and his brother owned a farm, living about a mile from the mill. Mr. Pedersen was an active church worker and was a member of the Lutheran church and the Danish Brotherhood.

He is survived by three brothers, Chris Pedersen of Dexter, Frederick E. Pedersen and Severin Pedersen, both of Denmark, and one sister, Katrina Pedersen, also of Denmark. Funeral announcements will be made later from the Poole-Gray-Bartholomew chapel.

"Queen's Husband" Is Humorous Play

"The Queen's Husband," the play to be presented by the University high school's senior class Saturday evening, brings to the audience the revealing facts of what happens when a gentle and hen-pecked king suddenly takes the reins out of the hands of the queen and settles a few scores to suit himself.

"The Queen's Husband" was first played four years ago in The Playhouse, New York City. It was accorded immediate success by the public and has been a popular theater offering ever since. Harry Jones, Maurice Colbourne, and Grace Lane with their company have just ended a seven month's run in London with the play and are now in San Francisco giving performances to enthusiastic audiences. The senior class of the University high school is bringing the play fresh from the professional footlights of London, New York and San Francisco.

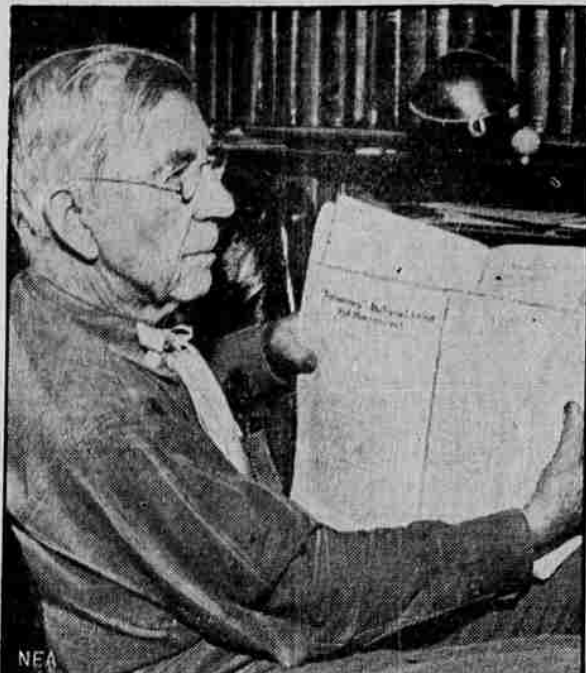

Man Bound Over On Larceny Count

Ray Smith of Wendling was bound over to the grand jury late Thursday afternoon on a charge of larceny. He waived his preliminary examination. Bail was set at $1000 and was not furnished.

Smith is charged with stealing a purse with $75 in it.

John Mencke of Trent was acquitted in justice court of assault and battery Thursday afternoon. Arden Mencke, his son, was tried also, but the jury disagreed.

FATHERED TECHNOCRACY!

"Technocracy"—National Industrial Management

Practical Suggestions for National Reconstruction

By William Henry Smyth

William H. Smyth, above, retired patent attorney of Berkeley, Cal., claims to be the original technocrat. He coined the term in a series of magazine articles written in 1919. Beneath his picture you see a magazine clipping dated 1919 in which Smyth discusses technocracy by that name. He had studied the problem of social effects of engineering for years, and its possibilities were demonstrated, he claims, by operations of the War Industries Board during the World War.

LODGE HOME TO BE OFFICIALLY OPENED HERE SATURDAY

Peter Gilroy, head consul of the Woodmen of the World, is expected to arrive in Eugene from Denver, Colo., Saturday afternoon to attend the dedication of the new home of the Eugene camp of the order at the corner of Eighth avenue west and Lincoln street. J. O. Wilson of Portland, deputy head consul, is also here for the exercises and it is expected that many visitors from nearby camps will attend.

The event will start at 5:30, Saturday afternoon with a banquet at the Eugene hotel, in honor of the visiting officers and charter members of the Eugene camp.

The late Dean John Straub was the first consul commander of the local camp, taking the chair May 4, 1892. The Eugene camp was organized with 64 charter members of whom only 17 are still living. APPLEGATE PLANS TO CONTINUE HIS FURNITURE STORE

Albert D. Applegate, veteran Eugene furniture merchant, announced Friday that with the close of the sale of the Eugene Furniture company he will reopen for business at once under his original firm name, the Applegate Furniture company. The grand windup of the auction was scheduled for 7:30 Friday night.

The new Applegate store will be in the same building at Eleventh and Willamette, occupying the northern half of the front and the entire rear of the building. Ira F. Powers, of Portland, who owns the property is planning to remodel the structure and make a separate store of the corner section which will be leased to another line of business.

Mr. Applegate plans to leave next week for the furniture markets at San Francisco and Los Angeles where he will lay in new stock. In the meantime, the new Applegate store will continue without interruption under the staff which has been with Mr.

Applegate for many years. Ucal Mountjoy will be in charge of sales and decorations. Frank Aldrich will be on the floor; Mrs. Bessie Galway in charge of draperies; Ross Padden, finisher, and George Smith, upholsterer.

"In order to meet the constant demand for service work on furniture and furnishings, the store will continue without interruption," said Mr. Applegate. "I expect to have a complete new stock in place by March 1 and we will continue with exactly the same quality policies which we have followed for years."

The closing out of the Eugene Furniture company marks the end of the arrangement by which that concern, Johnson's and Charlet's pooled their service and delivery facilities during the last three years.

Work Needed On Deadwood Project

Ditching and clearing of slides on the Deadwood road at a cost of between $200 and $300 will be needed to put that road in condition, according to P. M. Morse, county engineer, who inspected it Thursday with Walter Taylor, road patrolman of the Deadwood district.

The road connects the Siuslaw highway with the Alsea highway, serving a number of people. The mountainous section of the road was damaged by rain and slides.

FOUR-DAY EMERALD MUST GET PERMIT

The Oregon Daily Emerald, university student publication, must apply to postal authorities for admission as a four-day newspaper and pay a $10 fee if it is to be mailed as a four-day publication, according to Postmaster D. E. Yorcan.

The executive council of the Associated Students of the University of Oregon ruled that the paper will have to stand a budget cut and be reduced to a four-day a week publication. The paper has been published five times a week.

"According to postal regulations," said Postmaster Yorcan, "when the frequency of publication is changed the paper must apply for re-classification. Application for this costs $10. This office did not lay down this rule arbitrarily. It is a general regulation. The head of the paper will not have to be changed, contrary to a report given circulation Friday. Pamphlets of the board of higher education, published now in Eugene, have had to pay the same fee."
