LEGISLATURE STORY

The University has already been cut $72.2 cent below its 1929 figure for state support, that faculties have been curtailed by more than 60 eliminations of teaching positions, and that remaining teachers have sustained pay cuts ranging from 9 per cent on the first $1000 of salary up to 27 per cent on the last $5000.

It was pointed out that the cutting on the Eugene campus has been heavier than in any other division of higher education and that further cuts here, even of the slightest degree, could not be sustained without serious damage.

The delegates were asked if the legislature had taken the cutting of the millage as an alternative to the cutting or elimination of $308,000 in continuing agricultural appropriations as proposed by Budget Director Henry Hansen.

The members of the delegation said they could not say that this was a matter of policy but that in their opinion all divisions and all appropriations would be reduced before the session is over.

Militia, Lumber Problems
National guard members represented by Major Del Stander told the delegation that guardsmen here were willing to take their share in the general program of retrenchment but hoped that cuts would not be made to the point where units might have to be abandoned.

They pointed out that national guard pay in many communities has become quite an important item in the support of families. They said cuts ought to be made without jeopardizing the pay of the men or the maintenance of units.

J. S. Maglady presented the opposition of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association to the proposed severance tax to replace ad valorem taxes on standing timber.

The severance taxes, Maglady said, would provide relief for certain mills holding huge stands of timber and for various large timber speculators, but the savings he predicted would be at the expense of the operators who have a big cut and small holdings and also at the expense of all other classes of taxpayers.

"I do not see how this scheme can possibly produce the equivalent of present revenue from timber," said Mr. Maglady. "That means that other classes of taxpayers are going to be penalized and incidentally that means a huge loss in the millage to which we look for the support of higher education."

Members of the delegation promised to study the militia situation and the severance tax bill with great care.

GRANGE AGAINST SALES TAX LAW

WALTERVILLE, Jan. 14.—(Special)—The Walterville Grange met Friday evening last week for their regular bi-monthly session. The new officers were in the chairs and A. W. Frazer of Leaburg presided with Kenneth Jennings, overseer. The grange went on record as being unfavorable to the sales tax which is now under discussion in the legislative body at Salem. Committees for the year were appointed as follows: Legislative: O. L. Clement, T. G. Becker, S. J. Godard and Kenneth Jennings; finance: T. G. Becker, D. F. Boyer and Harold Frazer; agriculture: C. F. Grant; home economics: Mrs. R. T. Koozer, Mrs. S. J. Godard, Mrs. Boyer, Marjory Grant; relief: Mrs. Frazer and Mrs. Becker. Discussions on school questions will be led next meeting night by the legislative committee and other features will be ready for the lectures hour.

A vote was taken which changed the meeting night of the Grange from the Friday night meetings to the second and fourth Tuesday nights in the month. The change is effective this month and the next meeting will be January 24. The third Saturday evening in the month the Walterville grange and the Jasper grange will make a fraternal visit to the Willakenzie grange. The program will be given by the visiting granges.

Five objectives to work for were suggested by the master during the coming year. After the business session a social hour was held in which visiting and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Harlow paid the grange a visit Friday night.

Easton, Gall Easton, Belle Milliken, Mrs. Cluster and three children, Mrs. Lewman, Mrs. Lawrence Milliken, Mrs. Joe Zehner, and the hostess, Mrs. Fred Easton.

Mr. and Mrs. William Huckey are to be hosts next Tuesday evening, January 17 for the fun night of the Presbyterian Guild.

PRINTING FOR FOOD

Louisiana State university recently bartered education for beef by trading tuition to a pretty co-ed, daughter of a farmer, for nine cows. Illinois Wesleyan accepts potatoes, chickens or what-have-you and serves them in the college dining room. At Antioch College, in Ohio, a farmer recently paid his daughter's tuition with young fruit trees which the college swapped to other farmers for food.

At Oklahoma Baptist university, trustees have announced that pigs, chickens, corn and wheat will be accepted instead of money.

The famed industrial research laboratory of Antioch College, backed by Charles F. Kettering, General Motors' ace engineer, recently found business dull and traded research to a Cincinnati soap factory for soap, which was exchanged for farmers for produce. Similarly, the college's print shop did a lot of printing for in Indianapolis conserve company and got canned food in return.

Nations, like individuals, are short of cash and barter between them is developing. The United States Farm Board swapped 25,000,000 bushels of surplus government wheat to Brazil for 150,000,000 pounds of coffee.

Canada is talking about bartering surplus wheat and cattle to Soviet Russia for oil and manufactured goods. Nova Scotia is trying to effect a three-way barter of fish, shoes and crude oil between its maritime fish industry, upper Canadian shoe manufacturers and Soviet Russia. Persia and Turkey, short on cash, are trading natural resources for what they can get.

All business began with swapping or bartering. They found money a more convenient method of exchange and eventually developed a credit system which began to pile up debt. When debt gets out of hand business goes back to a cash basis and when the cash disappears there is a reversion to barter.

The present depression has seen debt get out of hand, has seen cash disappear and has seen the return to barter. So today countless thousands of unemployed—too poor to buy, too proud to beg—are leading the way in showing a nation how to live without money.

CONCERT SERIES STORY

All of the concerts will be held on Sunday afternoons; most of them in McArthur court to accommodate the capacity crowds which are expected to attend. The first of the series of twelve, presenting the university symphony orchestra, with Frances Brockman as soloist, will be given next Sunday, January 22. The last of the series will be given as an outdoor concert on May 28.

The organizations which will present the concerts, all well known to Lane county audiences from past performance, are the Eugene Glenn, directed by John Stark Evans; the university symphony orchestra, directed by Rex Underwood; the polyphonic choir, directed by Arthur Boardman; the polyphonic chorus, directed by Roy Bryson; and the first and second divisions of the university concert band, directed by John Stehn. The orchestra will present five of the concerts, the polyphonic organizations two concerts; and the concert band four.

Jane Thatcher and John Landsbury, widely-known Eugene pianists, will appear as soloists in two of the orchestra concerts. Mrs. Thatcher on April 23 and Landsbury on February 19. Miss Brockman will be the violin soloist next Sunday. Soloists for the remaining two orchestra concerts will be announced by Underwood later.

The idea for the series of twelve community concerts originated with Graduate Manager Rosson after curtailment of the A. S. U. O. budget compelled cancellation of plans for a series of concerts by visiting artists, such as have been given for the past four years. He took his new plan up with members of the Associated Students' music committee, who gave it their enthusiastic support and drew up the schedule of the twelve concerts. The faculty of the school of music offered their full cooperation.

Dean Landsbury, of the music school, expressed hearty approval of the new lineup yesterday.

"One of the finest things that ever happened to Eugene in a musical way," was his reaction. "To be able to throw the doors of music open to the public without any question of cost should go a long way to give the people of Lane county the concert habit before this series is concluded."

"In times like these we cannot afford to pay for fancy labels as freely as we used to. We may discover, in music as in other things, that the home-brand, though not so widely advertised, may be of equally high quality."

Band Director John Stehn and the choir directors, Arthur Boardman and Roy Bryson, expressed endorsement of the idea of the series and gave assurance that the programs under their direction will present the best in music and performance.

"There is no reason why temporary cuts in our budgets must mean the suspension of the fine musical traditions which the university and the people of Eugene have built up in recent years," declared Hugh Rosson. "It would be little short of a crime to deny the public and the University students the privilege of fine music when we have so much first-rate talent within our own organization. Everybody's cooperation is making it possible to stage this series of concerts with only nominal expense, and we're passing the saving on to the thousands of people who have loyally supported our concert series in past years."

Rosson explained that the Gleemen concert of January 29 has been scheduled for several months as the annual winter concert for that organization, and that expenses incurred before the change in price-policy makes it impossible to give absolutely free admission to that concert.

The concerts scheduled for May will be given in the outdoor amphitheatre just south of McArthur court, with the building of several thousand on the south lawn and in
