The story concerns a business man who goes to Texas on business. There he meets a church organist. Later he returns to the city and marries another girl, the girl from the country going to New York to work and sets the big business man again at some dramatic incidents follow. Harold Lloyd, who has not been seen here for some time, appears at the Colonial for four days next week, starting Wednesday in "Movie Crazy." In this picture, one rag rolls to another and so many hilarious incidents popping up one after another that it is difficult for two people to determine the best. Zasu Pitts, Louise Fazenda, and other comedians. It is a satire on the fantastic production methods in Hollywood studios. Tuesday, "dime night" at the Colonial, brings Walter Huston, Anita Page, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt and others in "Night Court." The picture concerns a night court magistrate who uses his office to further his activities in the underworld.

The Fox-McDonald shows many leading stars on its screen this week. The Sunday-Monday show is, "If I Had a Million," starring Gary Cooper, George Raft, Wynne Gibson, Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, and others. The story is of a John Glidden, who when dying, determines to live long enough to hand out his money to others than the several score relatives impatiently awaiting his death. Promiscuously he hands out a million to each of eight persons whose names he selects at random. To some of the eight the money brings tragedy, to others frustration, to others romance, to some happiness. Their reactions, combined, making a lively story. "The Mask of Fu Manchu" will play at the McDonald Tuesday and Wednesday. This is one of those uncanny mysteries. A group of scientists plan to excavate a tomb. Dr. Fu Manchu learns of the plan and wants the sword, gold mask, and scroll buried in the tomb to aid in starting an uprising of all Asia. Many weird things happen as the doctor attempts to carry out his plans. Clara Bow in her comeback, "Call Her Savage," appears at the McDonald through Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Whatever your opinion of Clara Bow and the many sexy shows to her credit, "Call Her Savage," is a very fine show. It brings a new Bow, a much more impressive and lively one.

"Tom Brown of Culver," is the attraction at the State Sunday and Monday, the picture with a cast almost entirely composed of men and women of incidental characters. Tom Brown, Slim Summerville, H. B. Warner, Richard Cromwell are some of the well-known actors in the play. "Unholy Love," comes to the State for Tuesday and Wednesday, the film suggested by Gustave Flaubert's famous novel, "Madame Bovary." H. B. Warner, Lila Lee and Joyce Compton head the cast for this picture. "The Famous Ferguson Case," featuring Joan Blondell and Tom Brown will play at the State during Thursday and Friday. For Saturday only, the theatre will show Tom Mix and his horse, Tony, in "Destry Rides Again." Also on Saturday will be shown the eighth chapter of "The Last of the Mohicans."

The Fox-Rex offers five shows this week, starting with Will Rogers in his hilarious comedy, "Down to Earth," on Sunday and Monday. It is the story of a family living beyond its means and brought to common sense by the wholesome philosophy of Rogers' "Life Begins" will show at the Rex Tuesday and Wednesday. Loretta Young and Eric Linden head the cast. "Life Begins" is rated a bit unusual for its dealing with biological facts of dealing with Ralph Bellamy, Gloria Stuart, and Nina Best. "Air Mail" will be shown at the Rex on Thursday and Friday. It is the adventurous story of the government mail fleet. Saturday brings a double bill to the Rex, Tom Mix in "Hidden Gold," and the wise guy, Spencer Tracy in "Sky Devils."
