

MEIER, HOLMAN STAGE BIG ROW AT BOARD MEET

break occurred, but before the meeting was adjourned, five more newspaper men deserted legislative coverage to attend, attracted by the loud reports hurled back and forth.

The fore part of the meeting was taken up with routine matters of no major importance. During discussion of these matters it was noted that the governor was studying the recent list of legislative suggestions issued by the state treasurer. This fact was also noted by Holman, who apparently was prepared for the question of the governor "Mr. Holman, did you issue these charges against the board of control?"

Holman replied he did and that he thought they were very good suggestions. He declared there was secretiveness in the board of control office and charged William Einzig as conducting a "Reign of Terror."

Hoss Demands Probe

"It is unfortunate that you should use these methods to present your case," the governor told Holman. William Einzig, secretary of the board as well as state purchasing agent, charged that Holman's statements were false, and he challenged the treasurer to prove them.

At this time the "fight" became a four-sided affair with Hoss declaring he took exception to the method of Holman's probe into the affairs of the board, as it was a reflection against the other two members. He asked the matter be investigated, and if found true, he would be for a general house-cleaning.

Einzig further charged that Holman had signed his name to all budget issues and that it was absolutely a false statement that no departmental budgets had been presented him for study before submitted to the budget director. This was likewise charged in Holman's list of suggestions.

Intimidation Charged

The treasurer then attacked Einzig for his "intimidation" which he termed "no employer would tolerate." He declared that Einzig had forbidden his employees to speak to Holman on the threat of being discharged. He declared three employees had come to him and reported that was the case. Einzig again took issue, declaring he demanded only that before any files were taken out of his office, they get his permission. This action was upheld by the other two members of the board.

"You have intimidated every employee in my office," Einzig charged Holman. "You have taken out files which have never been returned, which is something Hoss would not let you do."

"I have not kept your files and I can take them out whenever I like. Why, you are nothing but our chief clerk," Holman retorted. The governor and Hoss both concurred with Einzig that the taking out of files should not be permitted.

Holman Asks Bids

Einzig further declared there was nothing secret about his activities, and that whenever bids are opened all members are invited to attend and that Holman had never done so, "but waits to criticize me afterwards."

Answering the governor's statement that Holman's methods were "unfortunate" in this matter, the treasurer replied he would go the limit to stand on his grounds and that he would do it "as I please." "I will do it because I was elected by 55,000 more votes than you were," he hurled at the governor.

It was at this point that the governor said "It's getting about time I apologize to the public for appointing you state treasurer."

"Yes, and it is about time I wear sackcloth and ashes," Holman retorted. "And your being governor is the only thing that keeps your face from getting slapped."

The governor retorted "Then get out of here, if you don't like it, why don't you resign. I demand you to get out."

"You can't demand me to do anything. I do as I please and I shall continue to do so," Holman came back.

Meier Asks Proof

At one point the governor branded one of Holman's charges as "a lie." "Prove your charges," the executive challenged. "It should be easy to get employees of the purchasing department to testify as you yourself hired most of them," Holman denied he hired "most" of them.

The governor then moved, based on undetermined tactics of Holman in making these charges of intimidation, secretiveness and "reign of terror" that a legislative investigation be requested. "This motion was not carried, but Holman said he would vote for an investigation."

"Alright, I will draw up a motion," the governor said.

"Yes, you'll wait until Henry (Hansen) writes it for you," the treasurer again came back.

"I presume Miss Austin (Holman's secretary) helps you a lot too. You can take her out to lunch at some of the institutions and—"

The governor was cautioned by Holman at this point to "be careful what you say."

The governor adjourned the meeting with "The Reign of Terror" is adjourned."

A RICHER BREAD for growing children

New loaf gives extra nourishment and energy to local youngsters and adults.

We have been experimenting for some time to get a loaf which has more nourishment than ordinary bread, is easily and quickly digestible and which sells at no advance in price. At last we have perfected it, giving it the name Williams XXX Bread.

It differs from other loaves; first, in the materials we put into it; second, our secret recipe which can not be duplicated by other bakers.

Actually, XXX bread carries a higher percentage of proteins (muscle building elements) and calories (energy units) than any loaf ever before sold on the local market. We use generous portions of 5% butter fat, whole milk, extra malt and sugar, unusually high grade flour and the finest shortening on the market. There is no other bread like XXX. Order it instead of ordinary bread. Full 1 1/2 pound loaf at no advance in price. Order from your grocer today. Williams Bakery, Eugene, Oregon.
