tending the coast conference meeting and could not be reached for statements here.

Word from Salem stated a group representing the Salem chamber of commerce planned to confer with Chancellor W. J. Kerr here Thursday, but the chancellor was in Portland and the delegation did not come here.

SALEM FIGHTS MOVE

SALEM, June 8.—(AP)—At a hastily called mass meeting here last night, plans were laid to combat the proposed removal from Salem of the state high school basketball tournament.

Word spread rapidly here yesterday afternoon that the state board of higher education had authorized an invitation to the state high school association for the tournament to be held alternately at Eugene and Corvallis.

Appreciation for the attitude expressed by Eugene citizens and the president of the chamber of commerce there, of not desiring to take the tournament away from Salem and Willamette university, was expressed. A chamber of commerce committee from here will interview Chancellor W. J. Kerr of the higher education system today. Another committee was named by the aroused Salem citizens to interview John L. Gary, secretary of the high school athletic association board of control, to ascertain what the purpose behind the threatened removal may be, and determine what steps may be taken to prevent it.

Gym Enlarged

Heads of the athletic departments of the State college and university will also be contacted to learn whether they are considering invitations for holding the tournament at those institutions.

Authorization of the invitation for removal of the tournament was made by the board of higher education at the suggestion of the state high school association through its secretary, Gary, who is a graduate of Willamette university.

The state tournament was developed from an invitational tournament into a recognized state tournament under auspices of Willamette university. Two years ago the Willamette university gymnasium was enlarged to accommodate larger tournament crowds, and terms were brought from 16 instead of 12 districts, eliminating byes.

Commenting on reports that the Willamette pavilion was inadequate for tournament crowds, Roy S. "Spec" Keene, Willamette university athletic director, said: "We have never turned anybody away from a tournament game because of lack of seating capacity."

"We have enlarged the seating capacity by 1000 seats in the past few years solely to meet increased interest in tournament games. The previous capacity was sufficient for our college contests."

Keene continued: "I was completely surprised to read that the state board of higher education had authorized an invitation for the tournament to be held alternately at Eugene and Corvallis, at suggestion of the state high school association board of control."

"State officials have always commended Willamette university and Salem on the fine way the tournament has been handled each year. High school coaches have had nothing but praise for the fine treatment extended their teams."

"We are going to do all possible to hold the tournament in Salem. We feel that our past record should entitle us to continue it here. I speak for Willamette university and for Salem, where the tournament has grown into an institution."

NO REFLECTION, GARY

WEST LINN, Ore., June 8.—(AP)—In a statement to the Associated Press, John L. Gary, secretary of the state high school association, declared the proposal to hold the annual high school basketball tournaments at either Eugene or Corvallis is in no way a reflection on the way the tournaments have been managed at Willamette university.

Authorization by the board of higher education of the invitation to hold the meet at University of Oregon and Oregon State college on alternate years, does not necessarily mean, Gary said, that the invitation will be accepted. Invitations from Willamette university and other schools will still be considered, he declared.

The proposal that the board invite the association to hold its tournament at either the university or college, was suggested by Gary, he said, at the request of the board of control of the state association because there had been some feeling among the smaller high schools that they were not given an equal chance in the tournament under present conditions.

Gary explained that should the tournament be moved to larger quarters, either at Eugene or Corvallis, a four-day meeting would be held, with two days devoted to the larger schools, and two days to the smaller institutions.

Neither the university nor the college "campaigned" to take the tournament from Salem, Gary said, although he remarked that alumni of the two schools, including the principals of several state high schools, had for some time expressed belief the high school association was "unfairly favoring" Willamette by awarding the tournament to that school over since the play-off was started.

ACTION TO WAIT

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., June 8.—(AP)—Paul T. Jackson, president of the state high school athletic association and principal of Klamath Union high school, refused this morning to give an opinion in connection with the proposed removal of the high school basketball tournament from Salem to Eugene and Corvallis. No formal action will be taken until the December meeting of the association, he said.

INVITATION SENT

SALEM, June 8.—(AP)—An invitation for the state high school basketball tournament to be held at Willamette university again in 1934 was sent to the state high school athletic association last night. Roy S. "Spec" Keene, director of physical education at Willamette university, sent the invitation to Paul Jackson of Klamath Falls, president of the state association.

NAVAL FLIERS KILLED

OCEANSIDE, Cal., June 8.—(AP)—Lieutenant Jack C. Richardson, 30, and Chief Machinist Mate F. C. Glasgow, 40, of scouting squadron No. 2, naval air station, San Diego, were killed at the emergency landing field near here today when their plane struck high tension wires and crashed while they were attempting to land.

amendments, is a federal function, derived not from the people of that state but from the constitution. The action of the general assembly of Ohio, ratifying the proposed Eighteenth Amendment, cannot be referred to the electors of the state, the provisions of a state constitution itself requiring such a referendum being inconsistent with the constitution of the United States.

The supreme court of Maine in answer to a question submitted by the senate of that state ruled: "A convention is a body or assembly representative of all the people of the state. The convention must be free to exercise the essential and characteristic function of rational deliberation."

"Whether the validity of the convention in Oregon shall be contested or not must wait the election on July 21 and is not now the concern of the dry forces. They seek the protection of no legal technicality but are ready to go before the people on the merits of the dry cause. They appeal for a thorough but honest discussion of the question involved during the campaign. Both sides should do this. Let us frankly face all the facts of the case and set them before the people of our country that an enlightened and deliberate vote may be cast."

"Mr. Earl's article in the Register-Guard of Sunday indicates that the repeal will have ample money for the campaign not all of which will come from Lane county. Naturally so! Distillers of this and other states will profit greatly from repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and doubtless are most willing to spend vast sums to control the repeal convention in anticipation of the large financial returns which will accrue to them if liquor be legalized. We had rather hope that 'liquor money' with its evil influence at election time like the old saloon was a thing of the past. But so eager does it seem to get on the job again that its ugly shadow already appears in the picture. Lane county voters should be well aware of the new evils that will come in with repeal. Distillers are not given to benevolence but expect to be paid back in some way with big interest."

"The very genius of our American government or for that matter any republic is based on the assumption that the electors will have a balanced judgment on the questions upon which they vote, and an honest purpose to exercise their citizen rights for the welfare of the people. Unbalanced and untrue arguments strike at the very root of popular government. Let us have none of this on either side.

"This leads me to propose that ten men who favor repeal and ten men who oppose repeal should spend an evening together and, without heat or multiplicity of words, each side present in clearest and briefest form the reasons which seem to support the views which they hold. We think in our day that nations should bring their disputes to the council table and settle them there. Should not smaller groups who differ in important matters that concern the people do likewise? After the arguments had been offered, the facts verified, the distortions corrected, the sham torn away, and the froth and hot air squeezed out, they would be worthy of presentation before an intelligent people as the best that good men can offer. We pledge the forces of the Lane County Dry association to this program. Will the repeal forces meet us?"

Thomas. Instead, one man on each campus will be appointed on a committee to do this work.

Governor Meier was asked by the board to apply for a $355,000 student loan fund under the terms of the Wagner bill, to enable many students to borrow money and continue in school. About $125,000 of this money would be placed in the student loan funds at Oregon and Oregon State; $87,000 would go to the medical school, and the rest would be divided among the three normal schools. It was said perhaps as many as 1,000 students would be able to obtain aid and remain at their classrooms. The student loan funds now are in bad shape.

The board approved appointment of George T. Scott as assistant football coach at Oregon State college at a salary of $2,200. He has been coach at Baker high school, is an alumni of Oregon State and a former teammate at Nebraska of Lon Stiner, new coach at the college.

A great volume of personnel work was passed upon by the board, the changes including the appointment of Dr. E. W. Warrington, professor of character education and religion at Oregon State, to teach this subject at both the college and university. Mrs. Sara Prentiss was promoted to head the household administration in the school of home economics at Corvallis, succeeding A. Grace Johnson who died recently at Salt Lake City. At the university, Dr. E. C. A. Lesch, George Williamson and Dr. Clara M. Smertenko were promoted in rank without salary change. President H. E. Inlow of Eastern Oregon Normal school at LaGrande was given a sabbatical leave of absence for the summer, as were the following normal school teachers: A. C. Strange, Katherine Arbuthnot for the summer, and Mrs. Lee S. Maske for one year.

What practically amounts to a merger of the music organizations of the college and university was approved when the board adopted a recommendation by Prof. John J. Landsbury, head of the music department at Eugene. Paul Petri, head of the department at the college, became head of all voice instruction on the two campuses, and in charge of all vocal organizations. Rex Underwood at the university, becomes head of the stringed instrument department on both campuses, and in charge of orchestral organizations.

there are facilities for fixing this stabilizer.

"I have already fixed the gas line leak and I am almost ready to take off as far as repairs are concerned. The only thing I shall I will wait a few hours until I get better."

Loses Track of Time

Asked if he had got any sleep, Matern replied:

"Not much. I have been working on the ship ever since coming down. But I am not very sleepy and I'll probably pick up some rest at Krasnoyarsk. How is my elapsed time from New York now?"

He was assured that he was all right. In response to a question about what his own log said, Matern replied:

"Hell! I have lost all track of time."

Asked the exact time he landed, the flier gave the same rejoinder.

"I can't tell you exactly," he explained, "but I was just four hours out of Omsk when I found out what had happened and I came down almost immediately."

Having left Omsk at 1:10 a. m. Wednesday, Moscow time, (5:10 p. m. Tuesday, eastern standard time), his landing would have been some time after 5 a. m. Moscow time (9 p. m. Tuesday, eastern standard time), or approximately one hour after he passed over Novosibirsk.

Fumes Spill Appetite

"I climbed out of my plane by myself," Matern continued, "although I was so groggy I could hardly stand. Before I knew it there were a lot of people around me but I could not understand the questions they were shooting at me."

"They took me into a nearby house and by that time they found somebody who spoke English. They tried to put me to bed but I only sat down a few minutes and they went back to the plane."

"They have been awfully good to me, giving me hot drinks and food, but I can't keep any of it down. As soon as I get these fumes out of my system I'll be all right."

Matern's landing place was five kilometers (about three miles) from the little industrial settlement of Belovo, where miners of the surrounding Kuznets coal basin have their homes.

To get him on the telephone it was necessary to communicate first with the manager of the Belovo telegraph station, in which is the town's only telephone line to the outside world, and to prevail upon the manager to send an automobile to get the flier. Some three hours elapsed between the time the request was made to the manager and the time the aviator's voice came over the telephone into the Associated Press bureau in Moscow.
