

OREGON FACULTY MEN TO ATTEND SCIENCE PARLEY

The following members of the University of Oregon faculty have been honored with invitations to attend the third annual Social Science conference which will be held June 14, 15, and 16, at the Cliff hotel in San Francisco: Dr. L. S. Cressman, Dr. Harold Crosland, Dr. Waldo Schumacher, Dr. Dan Clark, Dr. Robert Seashore, and Dr. Wayne L. Morse. This conference is held under the auspices of the Social Science Research Council of America and has selected for its central theme for this year the subject, "How Far Are Social Forces Controllable?"

The main addresses of the conference will be given by A. L. Kroeber, anthropologist; J. B. Canning, economist; J. W. Thompson, historian; W. B. Munro, political scientist; L. M. Terman, psychologist; W. F. Ogburn, sociologist. After the main addresses, which will be given the first day of the conference, the individual delegates of the conference will join one of the following round tables: "Influencing Criminal Behavior," "Implementing the Peace Machinery," "Influencing Social Attitudes of Propaganda and Education," "The Tax System and Economic Stabilization," "Government by Dictatorship," "Nationalism."

Dr. L. S. Cressman of the University of Oregon will serve as chairman of a committee on social statistics. This committee is studying plans for the development of a uniform system for the recording of social statistics. It is recognized by research workers in the field of sociology or crime that accurate research investigation will be handicapped until data can be gathered and recorded which will permit of comparison.

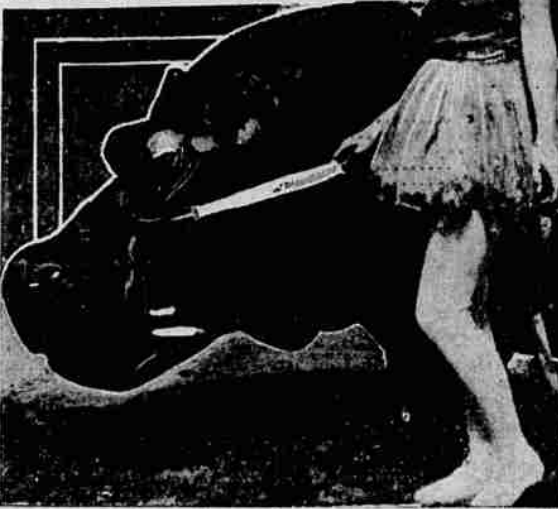

In addition to the meeting of the Social Science conference there will also be held at the same time a meeting of the Pacific Coast regional committee of the social science research council. Dean Wayne L. Morse of the school of law represents the University of Oregon on this committee, and is chairman of one of its sub-committees on the organization of a Pacific Coast Institute of Law and the administration of justice. Two years ago Dean Morse proposed a plan for the establishment of such an institute and at the meeting of the Pacific Coast regional committee last March his plan was adopted as one of the projects of the social science council. Further, the committee decided to hold the first institute at Eugene, Oregon during the summer of 1934, in connection with the University of Oregon law school summer session. It is the plan of the committee to hold an institute each year on the campus of one of the universities on the Pacific coast.

Dean Morse's plan calls for an institute program consisting of a series of round tables led by outstanding members of the various social sciences and by leaders of the bench and bar. Speaking of the institute Dean Morse stated, "I have always felt that many of the members of our profession could profit by attending such an institute and thereby acquainting themselves with some of the most recent findings of the social sciences. It seems to me that such an institute would promote a mutual exchange of points of view and would undoubtedly interest many of the leaders of the bar in the contentions and contributions of those disciplines which are closely related to the law."

Beauty And The Beast!

Margorie Gay, 18 years old, who turns somersaults on the broad resined haunch of her horse Gipsy, with the Al G. Barnes circus, chooses for her bohemoth of Holy Writ who answers playmate a mammoth blood-sweater to the name of Lotus. The huge hippopotamus tips the scales at two tons, is 60 years of age and left his native haunts on the Nile river about the time Bryan was first running for president.

When not consuming bushels of car.

rots, turnips, heads of cabbage and bushels of other vegetables, Lotus does a submarine act into the bottom of the tank in the huge wagon that transports him. In fact the amphibian beast is as much at home in water as on land.

It started by the daily visit of the fair equestrienne to Lotus' cage armed with delicacies in the way of honey-coated popcorn and soon a fast bond was struck. Once a day Lotus is given a little exercise around the menagerie tent and in the back yard of the circus and Margorie is always on hand to accompany Lotus on his vagabond wanderings. When he gives voice the lions are humiliated and the tigers acknowledge defeat.

One of the world's largest traveling zoos will be seen in Eugene on Wednesday, June 21, when the big show arrives for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. There are cages of lions, tigers, pumas, leopards, jaguars in addition to an endless array of hay-eating

Dr. Miller Says Business Picks Up Through East

Dr. J. M. Miller, local dentist who went to the east coast a month ago, has written back to Eugene friends on his observations and comments made regarding business conditions. Dr. Miller is spending the summer in Boston and other eastern cities while Mrs. Miller and their son, Hugh, who accompanied him east have gone on to Paris, the family expecting to return here early in the fall.

Beginning at Pendleton and Baker, Dr. Miller says he inquired several times a day regarding business conditions as he progressed eastward. In eastern Oregon little improvement was reported noticeable. "At Ontario it was thought there was a recent pickup due to the thirsty citizens of Idaho just across the line coming across for Oregon beer," he said.

All through Utah a slight improvement was reported, but until the party reached Omaha, Neb., they hear all complaining of the depression. In Omaha, folks were sure business showed a decided improvement—the packing plants having put back several thousand men, Dr. Miller said. "An official of the Wabash railway said their business had increased. At Indianapolis, where we spent a week, my brother in the Western Union office said their business had increased 50 per cent in the last few months and that this was a barometer of business since few telegrams were sent in hard times. At Columbus, O., they were sure the depression was over because business was so improved. At Philadelphia I talked with the manager of the S. S. White Dental Manufacturing company located there, the largest dental manufacturing firm in the world. He was sure their increased orders from dental houses all over the country indicated a return to better business.

"In New York City there was such a mad rush on the sidewalks that I was afraid to speak to anyone lest I be pushed into the street and trampled to death. They look prosperous. The general eastern tone is more optimistic than the west," Dr. Miller added.

PITTSBURGH.—The National Tube company will resume operations at its McKeesport plant within the next week or ten days, recalling 4,000 men for substantial part-time employment, it was announced today.

BANKS SAYS DEAL FOR ORCHARD NOT IN PROPER LIGHT

In a letter to the editors of The Register-Guard, Llewellyn A. Banks asks for a correction on a story relative to the foreclosure proceedings on an orchard he owned near Medford. This was an Associated Press report and it gave $1000 as the cash paid down by Banks to L. F. Belknap in the transaction.

Banks submits the following letter from Belknap to prove that the figure should have been $10,000 instead of $1000 and that his dealings with Belknap at all times were on a thoroughly honorable basis:

MEDFORD, June 13. Mr. L. A. Banks. My Dear Mr. Banks: In regard to the statement you send me from the Eugene Register-Guard will say it is incorrect. Similar article has been in the Mail-Tribune here. I wrote them yesterday asking them to make correction. I never made statement to anyone that I received only $1000. Whenever asked about it I have stated it as it was, that on June 29 I sold the orchard property to you for $27,000, receiving at that time a payment of $10,000 and mortgage on the property for $17,000, with interest payable semi-annually. Later $1000 was paid on mortgage. Last winter you offered to turn the property back to me (if I so desired) which I considered fair and honorable owing to financial conditions. Later you did turn it back to me but I found it necessary to foreclose on the mortgage. Yours truly, L. F. BELKNAP.

(Editor's Note: The editors are very glad to make this correction for Mr. Banks. The error may have been one of transmission on the teleprinter or it may have been a typographical mistake in this office. This paper is always anxious to have the facts correct.)

Apple and Pear Spraying is Due

Spraying for the second brood of codling moth on apple trees should be done in the next eight or ten days, depending upon location, according to C. E. Stewart, county horticultural inspector. In the foothills the spraying can be done later than in the valley he says.

The solution should be two and a half gallons of lime and sulphur to 200 gallons of water and four pounds of lead arsenate. For pears the lime and sulphur should not be so strong, a gallon and a half being enough.

Arizonan Wants Oregon Bear Cub

Why anyone in Arizona should want an Oregon bear is hard to determine, but someone does.

W. M. Law, of Tucson, Arizona, has written the Eugene chamber of commerce asking them for information as to where he could buy a bear cub. Anyone having such an animal may get in touch with Law by writing general delivery, Tucson, Arizona.
