

MISSING FLIER STORY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

Wing overhead about 2 a. m. Saturday. Other reports came from Gates, about 25 miles southeast of Salem, that residents had heard a plane between 2 and 2:30 a. m.

Ben Cagle, night watchman at a mill at Mill City, said he heard a plane as he prepared to go to work at 2 a. m. Today the group of searchers was to take the air in formation in hope of finding some trace of Young's plane.

Malcolm Rasmussen, of Portland, flying one of the searching ships, said the elevation near Mill City is about 1,000 feet. "On the line of flight Young was taking," he said, "from all evidence we can gather, he was heading toward Lookout mountain and Table Rock which are about 5,000 feet high. Our informants said he was flying low and it is very probable that he may have struck one of the two mountains."

Airway lights north of Eugene were turned off at 1 a. m. Saturday under a new always lighting schedule. It is believed Young may have gotten beyond this point and unaware of the new regulation, lost its bearings through not locating the lights which can be seen for miles.

COAST BRIDGES STORY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

per car with an additional five cents per passenger on the big buses. With the contracts ready to be signed, word was received that this agreement had been found insufficient and the state was required to agree to bridge fees of tolls, paying of the loan from the $150,000 fund appropriated annually for the maintenance of the present five ferries. This commission has held inadvisable, inasmuch as it constitutes incurring a public debt in the future and that the commission should not do under mandate from the state legislature.

Demands Come Fast
Conferences with state, highway and governmental officials, held during the past 48 hours, resulted in the commission according to this demand, only to be met with the further demand that complete plans for the five bridges be submitted almost at once. The commission was thus faced with the proposition of completing plans for four bridges within the next three months, an almost impossible task. However, in a final attempt to secure these all-important structures, the commission is prepared to promise these plans together with the stipulation that the federal loan be paid, not from tolls, but from the funds appropriated for the maintenance of the ferries.

Final Disposition of the matter was being awaited Monday afternoon. Thus, if the bridges are secured, the probability is they will be toll-free. Members of the Oregon congressional delegation were working with J. M. Devers, attorney for the commission, now in Washington, in an attempt to get the bureau of public roads to sign the contracts for the five bridges.

Bridges Mean Jobs
The construction of these bridges, cost of which has been estimated at $5,600,000 but which likely will exceed this figure, will mean a considerable increase in employment in this section of the state during the next two years, highway officials declare. It is estimated that ten times the actual money spent for the bridges will be spent in this part of the state in connection with the work. This means the expenditure of approximately $40,000,000 during the coming two years.

As 91 per cent of construction costs goes into labor, it can be seen that these bridges mean to the state, it was stated.

In a statement issued from Salem Monday, R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, declared there would be no delay in preparing the designs for the bridges.

"The work will be rushed to speedy completion," he said, "so that the designs can be submitted to the bureau of public roads on a definite schedule. The design for the first bridge will be completed in two weeks, the second bridge in 30 days, the third bridge in 60 days and the fourth and fifth bridges in 90 days."

"It would appear that this is an exceptional opportunity for the state of Oregon and one that should not be passed up," Baldock's statement read. "It would mean a free gift of $1,000,000 from the federal government, the employment of a large number of Oregon citizens and would eliminate an obligation which the motorists of the entire state will otherwise have to bear."

Task Difficult
"Under the past circumstances it was impossible, on account of funds, to prepare the complete plans," Baldock continued, "which necessarily would have been started nine months ago. The cost of the design of these five bridges will amount to approximately $75,000, not including the cost of the necessary surveys, and the budget made no allowance for either of these items. Quite properly, the highway commission was conserving every dollar possible to be in a position to meet bond payments and to stay within the revenues provided."

"Immediately after the refunding bonds were sold on April 1 the highway commission started on the design of one bridge and the surveys for the remaining four, in anticipation of a government loan. However, there was nothing definite even at that time and the matter of organizing the necessary augmented drafting force, hiring additional bridge designers and otherwise equipping the department for the tremendous task involved in the preparation of detailed plans was completely out of the question as far as state funds were concerned."

Alternate Designs Needed
"The bridge structures in question are the most important ever undertaken by the state highway department. Preparation of designs for these structures entails weeks and, in fact, months of effort by squads of experienced structural designers.

"Alternate designs must be prepared and estimates made; different schemes must be tried in order to provide for the public the most suitable and economical structures for each location involved.

Moreover, the matter of location presents many difficult and intricate problems. These are not questions which may be hurriedly decided. Public interest can only be conserved when such matters are given careful thought and painstaking study.

"The engineering department will make every effort to speed up the design of these great structures to the end that the state of Oregon will not lose this opportunity."

DEVERS ENCOURAGED

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—J. M. Devers, attorney for the Oregon highway commission, said here today he had received "encouragement" from the federal public works officials in connection with proposed construction of five bridges on the Oregon Coast highway.

Devers said he expects bids for one of the bridges will be advertised within two weeks, and that bids for three of the spans will be advertised within 30 days. He was unable to say which bridge would be considered first.

Baseball Scores

NATIONAL LEAGUE
At New York—	R. H. E.
Chicago.....	0 3 0
New York.....	3 7 4
Root and Hartnett; Schumacher and Mancuso.

At Philadelphia—		R. H. E.
Cincinnati.....	7 14 2
Philadelphia.....	8 12 2
Johnson, Frey, Quinn and Hemsley; Hanson, Liska, Elliott and Davis

At Brooklyn—		R. H. E.
St. Louis.....	5 15 0
Brooklyn.....	6 10 1
Walker, Johnson, Carleton, Haines and J. Wilson; Thirston, Haute and Lopez.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
At Detroit—	R. H. E.
Philadelphia.....	4 6 2
Detroit.....	9 13 1
Groves, Coombs and Cochrane; Fran- sier and Hayworth.

At Chicago—		R. H. E.
New York.....	3 7 0
Chicago.....	4 10 1
Gomez, MacFayden, Brown and Diekey; Durham, Faber and Berry.

At Boston—		R. H. E.
Boston.....	5 10 3
Cleveland.....	2 5 2
Pipgras and Gooch; Brown, Hudlin, Craghead and Spencer, Myatt.

Rotary to Hear Mr. Hicks' Talk

The feature for the weekly luncheon meeting of the Eugene Rotary club Tuesday noon at the Oahm hotel will be a talk by T. M. B. Hicks Jr. of the McMorran and Washburne store on the industry control bill. Club singing will be featured for the music.

Over the Fence is Out in This Game

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Charles Miller, a trusty at county jail, was at bat. He got his eye on a sizzler and swatted it over the wall. After rounding the bases, he went to look for the ball.

Now the police are looking for him.

HERR MAX WINS

Miss Anny Ondra (Above), one of Germany's most beautiful film actresses, will become the bride of Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, in July. Max announced on the eve of his departure from New York for his homeland.

Our prices are not high though our furniture does look exclusive—

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

Applegate Furniture Co. Powers Old Store 11th & Willamette Sts.

COMING WITH STAGE SHOW!

Clarence Tolman, above, KGW radio star, will be featured with the "Covered Wagon Days" troupe when it shows on the Rex theatre stage Friday and Saturday. Tolman is a popular northwest singer.

"PRETTY BOY" SAID STATION GUNMAN

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Lottie West, a witness of the shooting here Saturday in which four police officers and their prisoner were killed at the union station, today identified a picture of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious Oklahoma outlaw, as that of one of the machine gunners who attacked the party.

Mrs. West, Travelers' Aid worker at the station, picked the photograph from a group spread before her.

Floyd was in the vicinity of Kansas City Friday night, when he liberated Sheriff Jack Killingsworth of Polk county after holding him a hostage throughout the day. The killings at the station occurred shortly after 7 a. m. Saturday.

Chief of Detectives T. J. Higgins and other authorities previously expressed doubt that Floyd had any connection with the shootings.

UNIFORM WAGE TOPIC
SALEM, June 19.—(AP)—The state welfare commissions of Oregon, Washington and California will hold a joint meeting in Portland Friday night for the purpose of considering a uniform wage scale and uniform working conditions for women employed in the canneries industry.

Man Falls From Train at Oakridge

Harold Lemon was brought in from Oakridge Monday afternoon suffering from injuries he received when he fell off a train. He is at the Eugene hospital.

He is suffering from possible head injuries and a broken collar bone. X-ray pictures were being taken during the afternoon to learn the full extent of his injuries.

Caution Used In Celebrating Fourth

Exuberant youngsters bent on celebrating the Fourth in old fashioned style this year were warned by Chief of Police Carl Bergman to confine their fun to legal limits.

Firerackers up to an inch and a half in length are allowed by city ordinance and any one found using larger "crackers" will be subject to fines, the chief declared Saturday.

COTTAGE GROVE NEWS NOTES

(Special).—"The Aftermath," a religious temperance drama-debate, is to be given in the Christian church Saturday evening, June 24, as a part of the campaign against repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The two characters who give the debate-drama are Henry B. Hill, described as a young forceful speaker now in his thirties, and Judge M. C. Summers, former public prosecutor and founder of the court of general sessions in St. Louis, Hall and Summers were students of economics, lecturers and actors in 1914 and 1918 when the liquor question was the big issue and the prohibition amendment was adopted. They wrote a two-character play, "Wets vs. Dry," which was given over the nation and in Canada. Creation of "The Aftermath" resulted from the urging of friends of prohibition that they re-enter the fight against the liquor evil.

Mrs. Omer Moore entertained the Etopia club Thursday afternoon. The time was spent socially and a luncheon was served at the tea hour. The table was attractive with a centerpiece of roses. It was decided to hold their annual picnic July 30 at the Vinal Randall summer home on the Umpqua. Mrs. Georg Bjorset was a guest.

Mrs. Lee Ragan of this city was elected grand Electa at a meeting of the Order of Eastern Star this week in Portland.

Mrs. Clara Buckholder and daughter Belle spent the week-end at Winchester bay.

Vera Scott of Alamogordo, N. M., returned here Sunday to visit at the home of Margaret Short, after spending the week in Eugene at the home of Charles Adams.

HOUSEWIVES STORY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

A little water—10 or 15 minutes or until water is all cooked out. Dry the onion. Cook the macaroni if uncooked. Mix all together and bake in oven about an hour.

Kasoury (American Dish)
Mrs. C. F. Andrews, 1255 Mill street, has given us a family dish that makes dinner a feast. It is kasoury, American style, and the recipe is as follows:

Two pounds of short ribs of beef. One cup of rice (raw). One chopped onion. One large can of tomatoes. One large cabbage (loose leaf if possible).

One large green pepper chopped. Salt, pepper, paprika to season; one-eighth teaspoonful of chili powder if the dish is desired hot.

Directions: Separate the leaves of the cabbage and wilt in boiling water until tender enough to roll without breaking the leaves. Cut out the thick part of the cabbage as you roll it.

Cut the meat off the bones and put through a food chopper (it is much more simple and easy to have the meat chopped at the butcher shop, asking that the bones be saved). Place the bones in the bottom of the kettle to place the rolls on. Add to the meat the bulk part of the tomatoes and all the other ingredients. Mix thoroughly in a soft mass. Shape large spoonful in long roll and roll up in a leaf. Lay the rolls together on the bones in the bottom of the kettle and pour over all the liquid part of the tomatoes. If there is not enough of the tomato juice, use water until the liquid is up to the top. Bring to a boil and boil one hour or longer, slowly, until the rice is done. Use toothpicks to hold the rolls together.

Radio Programs

Monday, June 19
KOAC, Corvallis—6:30 p. m., In the day's news; 8:45, Four-H club summer drama, program by delegations from Portland and Umatilla. Morrow, and Jefferson counties; 7:30, Farm hour; 7:45, Market and crop reports and weather forecast; 8:15, Philosopher of the crossroads; 8:30-9:15, Oregon Loggers.

KGW, Oakland—7 p. m., Amos 'n' Andy; 7:15, Everett Marshall, baritone; 7:30, Demi-Tasse revue; 8, Hollywood on the air; 8:30, Richard Cole orch; 8:45, Ferde Grofe's orch; 9, Charles Hart, instrumentalists; 9:30, Drama hour; 10, Richfield news flashes; 10:15, Melody mixers, orch; 11, Organ concert. 11:30-12, Arion trio.

KFI, Los Angeles—7 p. m., NBC, Amos 'n' Andy; 7:15, NBC, Mitchell's orch; 7:30, NBC, Demi-Tasse revue; 8, S. L. A. schools music program; 8:45, NBC, Ferde Grofe's orch; 9, Makers of history; 9:30, String quartet; 10, NBC, Richfield reporter; 10:15, "Souvenirs," orch; 10:30, NBC, Amos Weeks' orch; 11, NBC, Abe Lyman's orch; 1:30-12, Arion trio.

KGW, Portland—5 p. m., Piano surprises; 6:15, NBC-KGO programs to 6; 6, Ervin traffic talk; 6:15, NBC-KGO programs to 8; 8, Covered wagon days; 8:30, Dance orch; 8:40, Musical comedy miniatures; 8:45, Ferde Grofe's orch; 9, Four shades of rhythm; 9:30-12, NBC-KGO programs.

KNN, Hollywood—7 p. m., Frank Watanabe; 7:15, Black and Blue; 7:30, Landmarks of southern California; 7:45, Count of Monte Cristo; 8, Hatch's dance orch; 8:15, Concert orch; 8:45, Drury Lane, tenor; 9, News, tenor soloist; 9:30-11, Dance music.

Cushman Store is Robbed Once More

Earl Hill's store at Cushman was robbed again Sunday night and state and county officers are working on the case. This is the second time this store has been entered by burglars within the past three weeks. Two men were arrested for the first robbery and are now in the state penitentiary serving time for the crime.

Entrance to the store was effected Sunday night by breaking out a window. A number of pairs of shoes and some groceries and gloves were stolen. Mr. Hill reported to the officers.

Bread, Butter Cases To Get State Jobs

SALEM, June 19.—(AP)—Only so-called bread and butter cases will be considered by Secretary of State Hal E. Hoas in selecting temporary employees in the state motor vehicle department during the annual license rush.

"We have more than 600 applications from persons wishing work during the license period," Miss Alene Phillips, acting deputy secretary of state, said. "More than 50 per cent of these applications represent persons who need the compensation for actual necessities."

HEILIG

LAST TIMES TONIGHT
MERRY-GO-ROUND
with LEE TRACY
Constance Cummings
Starts Tuesday
"The Death Kiss"
Bela Lugosi, David Manners
Adrienne Ames, John Wray

STATE

LAST TIMES TONIGHT
TODAY IS OURS
TOMORROW
with ERIC LINDEN
SIDNEY FOX

IN KIT DEAL!

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

Top—Robert Fechner, Conservation Corps director, who signed the order for the kits at a price of $1.40 each. Center—Richard B. Bevier, the salesman who obtained the $280,000 order in three hours' time. Below—Major General John de Witt, Quartermaster General of the Army, who told the committee he could have obtained the kits for at least $100,000 less than the Bevier contract.

Here are three of the principals in the controversy over purchase of 200,000 toilet kits for the Civilian Conservation Corps, photographed as they testified before the Senate's Military Affairs Committee investigating the transaction.

HAMM FREED STORY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

he said, that he signed four notes, three of which were used.

"I have no idea how many men were in the other car," Hamm added. "Didn't See Faces"
During his captivity the "abductors were very nice" to him and he was not subjected to any abuse.

Hamm asserted he believed he was held in northern Minnesota. He was kept in a house, imprisoned in a room on the second floor. Windows were boarded but he was permitted to have a light on all the time. Furnishings were simple.

"I might have been a farm house or on the outskirts of some town," he added. "For I heard traffic noises."

Hamm said that at no time did he see any of the kidnapers after he was taken prisoner.

C. C. C. FORCE SENT TO MAPLETON CAMP

The first contingent of 30 men for the Mapleton C. C. C. camp, F-30, is expected to pass through Eugene Monday night by rail. The men will detrain at Heedsport, take a boat there to the head of tide or head of navigation and walk 15 miles into camp. Their baggage and other effects will be taken in by truck, according to R. S. Shelley, supervisor of the Siuslaw national forest.

Work on the several forest projects in the vicinity of the Cape creek camp in the northwestern corner of Lane county, was expected to be under way in full force Monday. Mr. Shelley said the men from that camp have all been assigned to the project in that locality and were to spread out to all of them Monday.

Fir Butte News

FIR BUTTE, June 20.—(Special) Mrs. Oliver's nephew, Robert Walters, and his friend, Mr. State, visited at the Oliver home last week-end on their way home from Chicago. They and the Oliver family and Mary Mack drove to Philomath Saturday to visit Robert Walters' uncle, Will Alexander.

Harry Miller and wife drove to Salem Friday and returned the same day.

Mrs. Clifford Gray and son, Joe, and little daughter Jane of Eugene, visited with Mrs. Hattie Mack Wednesday afternoon.

Wesley Oliver, student of O. S. C. and his uncle, Will Alexander, of Philomath, visited with Wesley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Oliver last week. Mr. and Mrs. W. Grover Pierson and Mr. and Mrs. Will Marks attended the wrestling match in Eugene Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen and Mrs. Hattie Mack and daughter Mary, attended a gathering at Franklin Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hughes, and son Loyd, drove to Coquille last Sunday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brinkley and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Johnson. Mrs. Brinkley and Mrs. Johnson are daughters of the Hughes'. They returned home Tuesday.

James Dunn and Sally Eilers had the cast of "Sailor's Luck," which opened at the Rex for three days Sunday. The picture has a lot of good comedy but there are several touching moments as well. Jimmy Dunn is his usual carefree, boyish self in this picture which James O'Connell, Rex manager, recommends as one of the best he has booked this month.

"The Thrill Game of the Screen" is the way Manager Ray W. Jones, of the McDonald theatre, characterizes "Race Night," the newest Hollywood picture which will be shown once a week for ten weeks starting at the McDonald Wednesday. "It's a motion picture but it's a game," said Jones, "and that's all I'm going to tell you! Every member of the audience takes part and it is the most thrilling sport I've ever seen in a motion picture." A group of ten leading Hollywood comedians are featured in the first "Race Night" film of the series.

VENETA, June 19.—(Special)—The Robert Heselton family of California is here visiting relatives and friends. They called at the Elmon, Ball and Burroughs homes Thursday.

Charlotte Dinsmore is home for a few days with her folks but expects to return soon to her grandmother's home in Eugene.

Dorothy and Lela Peters were guests at the Becks at Goshen last week.

All interested in swimming and life saving are asked to register at the postoffice.

Marvin Griffin of Cottage Grove is a guest of his aunt, Mrs. Roy Nichols. The Buckingham family is now near Salem to look for a job of berry picking.

Mrs. Elnan and Charlotte Jones went to Sweet Home Thursday to spend the summer with Mrs. Elnan's sister.

Miss Mabel Clark is home on her summer vacation.

<