

SECOND SUIT FILED AGAINST BUS BILL

SALEM, June 20.—Suits asking that the bus and truck law be declared invalid was filed in the Marion county circuit court today by A. C. Anderson, president of the Truck Owners and Farmers' Protective association.

A temporary restraining order to prevent operation of the law while the issue is pending was also asked. Chas. M. Thomas, public utilities commissioner, is made defendant in the action.

This and other legal hurdles placed in the path of the new act were considered here as efforts to deviate it and force Governor Julius L. Meier to call a special session of the legislature to modify the law.

Anderson alleges specifically that he and thousands of other anywhere-for-hire truck owners will be forced out of business by the provisions of the new law, scheduled to become operative July 1; that the act, without his consent, compels him to become a common carrier and submits him to unlawful and unreasonable regulations.

A suit to enjoin Utilities Commissioner Charles M. Thomas from putting the new motor transportation law into effect was filed here last week by the Northwest Association of Highway Contractors.

of Lane county, called the meeting to order. For a gavel she used an old Sioux Indian war club Mr. Young obtained from Buffalo Bill, Lester G. Hull, son of one of Eugene's first pioneers, called the group together for some singing, led by Paul Christensen. Mr. Hull played an old-time organ for the accompaniment.

During the afternoon, the association paid its respects to the memory of George Melvin Miller, honored Lane county pioneer and a past president of the county's historical society and pioneers group, who died this spring. Mr. Miller never missed a pioneer gathering during his lifetime. Mr. Hull gave a short eulogy for Mr. Miller at Tuesday's gathering and read a short history of Mr. Miller.

L. R. Ray, Eugene attorney, was the speaker for the program. "The New Trail" was the topic of his address. He described the pioneer as a man of honesty and fair dealing, a man of good character and clean moral standards, a man who was at peace with his neighbors, who had thoughtfulness and mercy toward the unfortunate.

The machine age has abolished the frontier, it has wrought a new order of things, an order in which our material wants are administered to in a different way, and in which many of our fundamental ideals in reference to government, economics, and the right to individual action are undergoing a change. We are confronted by a situation and not a theory. Corporate wealth and the machine are absolutely indispensable to our present social organization and there is no possibility of turning backward. We must go forward. We can not go forward without some modifications of our previous generally accepted ideas. We are facing a new era in American life, an era which will bring either greater happiness or greater despair in accordance with the intelligence and ability with which we face and handle its new problems. We are traveling a new road even as the pioneers traveled a new road into a new and unknown land. The Oregon pioneers did not give up and retrace his steps when he met difficulties and dangers but courageously forded his way on through. We, like them, must make an earnest and courageous effort to adjust our lives to the new conditions under which we are destined to live. We will not retrace our steps, but will follow the new trail, all the way through, straight into the sunset, even as they. Mr. Ray pointed out that our conditions today were prompted by the unrestrained individualism at work while we were developing a new continent and building up our means of production, the unrestrained individualism creating a surplus of usable goods as industry and civilization spread. There is need today of a planned economic order, he said.

Flowers were to be presented later in the afternoon to the oldest pioneer present, to the oldest native son of Lane county, and to the oldest native daughter.

The chief topic of conversation (aside from sales tax, the problem of property tax and what have you) was "When did you come to Oregon or Lane county?" Among the pioneers gathered at the meeting were the following: F. M. Wilkins, well known Eugene old-timer, who when asked when he came across the plains, replied, "I refused to come across the plains, I refused to be born anywhere but in Oregon and that was in '48;" Judge E. O. Potter, secretary of the association; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bailey; Mrs. Amos Wilkins; W. W. Neely, a "champion" fiddler from over Mapleton way, who is going on 94 years of age; Mrs. T. G. Hendricks, widow of the founder of the First National bank in Eugene; Darwin Bristow, whose family was the first to settle in the Pleasant Hill country; Mrs. P. W. Ford; Mrs.

Jerry Horn; Mrs. W. F. Osburn; Miss Mary E. McCornack; Mrs. Ellen Burton; Mrs. Nora Marshall; Mrs. G. Mathews; Miss Anne Whiteaker; Mrs. Margaret Pengra; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Chambers; C. E. Russell, who knows all the ancient lore of the Lane district; and Mrs. Russell; Misses Harriette and Ida Patterson; Mrs. Mary Roberts; Mr. and Mrs. William Williams of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Pleasant Hill; Henry Mathews of Goshen; Mrs. A. T. Cockerline; Dr. M. M. Davis, whose family was among the first to settle in Eugene City.

Henry Smith of Franklin (Smithfield), whose father was the first settler in that district; Mr. Warner; Henry Calaway; Rev. Henry Meyers; long a M. E. church circuit rider and a Civil War veteran, who gave the blessing at the table and the invocation for the program; Rufus Robertson of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hart of Santa Clara and their daughter, Mrs. Will Robertson, and her daughter, Helen Jean, for a three-generation group at the picnic; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. N. McLean; Mrs. Elizabeth Kerns; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Armitage; Will Wheeler of Pleasant Hill; Mrs. Charles Starr; Miss Martha Calf, and many others whose names were to be collected on the register during the afternoon.

The visitors had a fine time going over Mr. Young's farm just after the dinner and before the program opened. They visited the pioneer pond in his yard. Around this pond are cement stones in which are imprints of pioneer relics. Then they visited Mr. Young's study which is also a pioneer relics room. Mr. Young has one of the most complete pioneer collections of any individual in this section. In the yard were other pioneer pieces put on display especially for the picnic. Among these was the surveying outfit used by Luther White of Brownsville to survey the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Young, parents of Cal Young. The Young donation claim was the first to be surveyed in the Willakenzie district.

Among other items displayed was an old Bible printed in Edinburgh in 1807. It belongs to the C. E. Warner family at Fall Creek. A miniature covered wagon with a man and woman sitting in it and drawn by oxen was displayed. The piece was hand-carved from wood. A letter transferring a man from the Cumberland Presbyterian church was shown, bearing the date of April 11, 1847. Other documents were shown, dated during 1854. Miss Martha Calf read a letter during the afternoon, the letter pertaining to the courtship of Mr. Young's parents.

scribed by Mrs. A. H. Tyson, 278 West Broadway. The recipe is as follows:

Roast the meat in the casserole. When nearly done, put a ring of cooked macaroni or spaghetti around the meat. Put a slice or two of onion over the top. Slice potatoes medium thick and arrange around the meat. Strain a quart of tomatoes, or use the tomato juice or sauce. If tomatoes or juice are used, flavor with chili or tobacco. Pour this liquid over the meat and bake until the potatoes are done and nicely browned. All that is needed in addition for the dinner is lettuce or vegetable salad.

For a dinner with a fish dish as the main item, Mrs. Fred E. Smith, 1057 Hilliard street, has a choice recipe for halibut steak. The recipe is as follows:

Select halibut steaks for individual servings, about one-half inch in thickness. Place in a greased baking pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and a bit of sugar. Over each slice of fish place one thin slice of onion, a teaspoon of catsup, one thin slice of lemon, and one-half teaspoon of butter. Pour some cold water in the bottom of the pan. The water should not cover the fish but just the bottom of the pan. Bake for 30 minutes in 400 to 425 degrees, basting frequently.

OFFICERS REPORT Second Lieutenant R. R. Pendergrast, Inf. Res., and 2nd Lieut. Henry F. Drews, Eng. Res., both of Portland, reported at the Eugene C. C. C. headquarters for duty in this district. Lieut. Pendergrast will be assigned to the Oakridge camp under Capt. Dark and Lieut. Drews will be assigned to the Steamboat camp under Capt. Whitmore. They have been stationed at Vancouver Barracks.

Warburg, who is advising the Americans in technical matters, was granted the courtesy of speaking from the floor although he is not a member of the committee.

It was Mr. Warburg who told the committee bluntly that America would not accept the gold standard again until certain that it was workable.

Britain Backs U. S. Mr. Warburg's declaration presumably was drawn out by the fact that France and other gold bloc nations had immediately pounced on one clause of the Pittman resolution as giving them a chance to further their drive to force America to revert to the gold standard and to stabilize exchange.

This is clause two, which provides "that gold should be re-established as the international measure of exchange values."

Viscount Halifax of Great Britain—a government which takes an attitude similar to that of America regarding the return to gold—intervened and asked that this clause be amended to leave it to each country to determine "time and parity" in connection with going back to gold.

Six countries—Germany, Italy, India, China, Mexico and the Irish Free state—tendered full adherence to the Pittman resolution, while numerous others, including Britain, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, Portugal and Uruguay, agreed on the broad principles.

France, through Jean V. Parmentier, expressed entire accord with the part of the resolution calling for stability in the international monetary field and with the clause providing for re-establishment of gold.

REX—"Sailor's Luck," with James Dunn and Sally Eilers. Ends Tuesday.

A mystery thriller that defies solution until the very end and provides in large portions drama, suspense and excellent acting is "The Death Kiss," which opened Tuesday at the Heilig. The action of the film takes place almost entirely within the walls of a modern movie studio. When the handsome leading man is found really dead at the end of a movie scene in which he is supposed to have been killed, the detectives are brought into the case. It is not through their efforts, however, but through the work of a studio writer of detective fiction that the mystery is solved. In the cast are Bela Lugosi, Adrienne Ames, David Manners, John Wray and Alexander Carr.

By all means see "Reunion in Vienna" before it departs from the McDonald Tuesday night. With a brilliant cast, a racy plot and perfect dialogue, it is head and shoulders above the routine Hollywood offering. John Barrymore heads the cast and is supported by Diana Wynyard, May Robson, Frank Morgan, Henry Travers, Una Merkel and several members of the original stage cast.

"Afraid to Talk," which opened Tuesday at the State, is an unusual film. It tells the story of a political regime faced on the eve of an important election with a public demand for action following a flagrant murder. With the murderer booked for trial, the party chiefs are confronted with the labor situation at the present time is much better than it has been for some time past. Mr. Armitage said. ing in an attempt to get contracts signed for the work so that Oregon may benefit from a big share of federal relief funds.

Monday it became likely that the bridges, if they are built at all, will be toll-free in as much as the federal bureau turned down the proposition for the state to pay for them out of tolls. The proposition now being put forward is for the state to pay for the federal loan from the money appropriated for the operation of the five ferries now in use.

While the status of the five coast bridges remained in doubt, the status of the proposed re-routing of the Pacific highway between Junction City and Goshen also was uncertain Tuesday with the rumor that residents of the Santa Clara section were planning an organized protest of the move.

Basing their contention on the fact that there are thousands of dollars invested in the district which would be threatened if the highway is re-routed, it was said that the Santa Clara people planned to hold a meeting soon to discuss what steps might be taken.

The federal government has requested the re-routing of the highway on account of flood danger between Junction City and Goshen. The high water covers the highway each year, hampering traffic and causing damage to the highway itself.

A survey is now under way to determine a new route which is expected to follow the Oregon Electric line into Eugene, avoiding five railroad crossings between Junction City and Goshen and placing the highway at a level above high water.

Highway officials have pointed out that the present highway would not be abandoned, but would be maintained for use of those who need it.

Skilled Labor For Sawmills and Camps Is Reported Scarce

Skilled labor for the sawmills and logging camps that have recently started operations and for those that are about to resume is scarce and hard to find, it was stated by Frank L. Armitage, superintendent of the United States employment office in Eugene, Tuesday. Common labor is plentiful but the men who were formerly employed at the skilled jobs in the mills and woods seem to have scattered pretty well or have other employment.

The labor situation at the present time is much better than it has been for some time past. Mr. Armitage said. A few men are being employed at early harvest but the demand for such labor is not extensive. Clover and alfalfa are being cut on some farms. The hay crops as a rule will be short on account of much of the fall snow vetch and oats being frozen out last winter.
