IOWA GOES WET, TOO!

WITH yesterday's voting, three more states—New Hampshire, Connecticut and Iowa—are chalked up in the wet column, in favor of the repeal of the 18th amendment. That makes 14 for repeal, a clean sweep in the elections held thus far.

It is still "a long, long way to Tipperary" or the total of 36 repeal states needed to make the constitutional change effective, but it begins to look as though we are headed there. The loss of Iowa is a jolt to Dry prestige.

But in his statement at Washington last Sunday night, F. Scott McBride, successor to Wayne B. Wheeler at the helm of the Anti-Saloon League, admitted that the Iowa voting would be a real test.

So far there has been no test in the South where the strength of the Drys is greatest, but that will come soon in North and South Carolina.

Even if the Drys succeed in blocking repeal, their cause will suffer from the obvious obstruction of a majority's wishes by a minority.

Repeal is on the way because millions have lost faith in prohibition, but there can be no doubt that the cause has suffered also because its old-time fighters have been replaced by polite debaters.

A PRINCE PREFERS ROMANCE.

IN the news columns at the present time a good deal is being said about the Prince of Asturias, heir to the crown (if any) of Spain, who has decided to marry a young lady from Cuba who is not even remotely of "royal blood."

The royal family of Spain is reported to be mightily displeased with the match. The wedding has been set to proceed today with all the ceremonies prescribed by Swiss law and Catholic church tradition.

Democracy advances despite its many reverses. Fifty years ago, even twenty years ago, the marriage of a Spanish crown prince to a commoner would have been a major political sensation.

MORE SIGNS OF PICKUP

FOR the month of May, building reports from 761 cities show a gain of 128.6 percent over April, and the increase is not merely seasonal.

Another extremely important set of figures has to do with export and import activities. For the first time since 1928, both exports and imports show a May gain over April.

It should be realized that, more than any other part of the body, the skin is likely to be affected by heat and sunlight. The constant secretion of the sweat, with the accumulation of dust and other materials on the skin aids the development of germs of various types.

As we understand the trouble at London it's like this. The French would like to peg the American dollar. We'd like to peg a few for ourselves first.

Along about noon, this kind of weather a fellow can't help wondering just how a red upright would look if it were cast gently upon certain waters and allowed to drift gently down to where a willow bends to meet a certain rock.

Gas has gone up again. Every day we grow more interested in Eugene's old fashioned Fourth.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Register-Guard Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, June 21.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia will be one of our most outstanding and picturesque national figures as long as he lives.

At the age of 75 this white-haired, fighting little bantam is told by his physician to take things easy and handle himself with care.

That was the night Congress adjourned and an exciting, dramatic night it was. Quite a few senators in their sixties and seventies had gone home at an early hour, but not Glass.

Scores of House members were piled in the rear of the Senate chamber. Some men even sneaked onto the Senate floor, pretending they were congressmen as they passed doorkeepers.

The bars had been let down for the gallery fans and hundreds stood in the upper reaches. Attorney General Cummings, Postmaster General Farley—chewing gum—and Dr. Carr Grayson sat in the front row of the family tiers.

Huey Long was heard at length about this "outrage" against the veterans. Borah sat in a new costume—blue coat with gray bow tie, gray shirt and gray pants matching. Someone demanded that the floor be cleared of congressmen because they were groaning and mumbling "Vote!"

Schall of Minnesota told administration Democrats of the Holy Grail, Pontius Pilate's ablutions and "16 pieces of silver." And now "we got nothing out of the war but prohibition—and now they're taking that away from us."

Tall, loping Cutting of New Mexico, from whose 25 per cent limit amendment the conferees had receded, was the one who aroused Glass—in the course of a rather brilliant speech of protest.

Glass thought he had been accused of changing the record. He said he never falsified the record, "even though the senator from New Mexico does." Cutting accused him of taking advantage of his colleagues' love and respect by "insulting them."

The vote came, the administration won and everyone was starting home as Glass suddenly rose to defend himself and scathingly attack Cutting.

Glass not long before had defied public opinion by objecting early in the Morgan investigation. He had a snappy set-to with Reed of Pennsylvania over war debts and had seen his cherished banking bill revived at the end of the session and passed.

Earlier in the day he had laughed about an encounter with another senator. But now he reached points of bitterness, sarcasm and scorn that few others can reach. He shook with wrath as he pointed his finger at Cutting.

The attack wasn't quite deserved, but the picture of old Carter Glass standing there at 1:30 a. m., hurling his barbs, was a dramatic one with which to wind up the session.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

CITY ADMINISTRATIVE REFORM. (The Oregon Statesman) THE reason why our councilmanic form of government is not as efficient as it ought to be is because the duties of the council are chiefly administrative and of legislative.

Any change in system, particularly toward a manager plan, will depend for success on two things, the competence and honesty of the manager selected; and second, whether or not he is given a free hand to discharge the city's business.

There is need here in Salem for centralized responsibility for the administration of the city's business. While no form of government is automatically successful, the city manager plan offers an improvement over the present system of divided responsibility.

AN EDITORIAL ON HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHERS Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

ANOTHER frequent hazard for health in summer is contact with poison ivy, oak, sumac and similar plants which grow freely in the woods.

The poison may be removed by washing the skin thoroughly with gasoline or with a thick lather of soap which may later be washed off with warm water, alcohol or gasoline.

It is always well in handling plants, brushwood and other materials in the woods or in camps to wear gloves and, by all means, to keep the hands away from the face, the eyes and other portions of the body.

It should be realized that, more than any other part of the body, the skin is likely to be affected by heat and sunlight. The constant secretion of the sweat, with the accumulation of dust and other materials on the skin aids the development of germs of various types.

The skin is constantly shedding dead cells. A lukewarm bath and the use of a bland soap will remove all of the dead material, the infectious material and the perspiration from the skin.

After the bath the skin may be powdered. It is particularly important to place the powder in areas where two skin surfaces come together, such as the inner sides of the thighs, under the breasts, under the arms and between the toes.

The avoidance of rubbing and irritation will do more than anything else to save the surface of the skin and to avoid breaking of the surface, with ready access to infection by germs and parasites.

It is not advisable to use lotions and toilet water of unknown composition. It has been shown that some of these contain ingredients which tend to deposit in the skin on exposure to the sun, producing all sorts of streaks and markings.

HINTS ON HOUSEHOLD ARTS

By SISTER MARY

WITH vacations just around the corner and week-end trips imminent, we must watch our diet while away if we would come home feeling "fair and fit." Food is so often the sign and symbol of hospitality that if we are guests we are prone to overeat.

When we "hike" we go on our own power, so to speak, and we need plenty of fuel for we use an extra amount of energy. Plenty of good hearty food three times a day is necessary. However, eating between meals of anything other than fruit is not advisable.

Rich desserts and heavy meats should be eaten sparingly. Candy is a temptation to which the wise person will not yield.

When children are among the party, extreme care of their diet should be observed. Ice cream comes between meals, pop, crackerjack or any other confection, should be forbidden.

YOUR CHILDREN'S PROBLEMS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THERE seems to be a certain reaction against the psychologists who have advanced new theories about babies and children, as well as against some of the medical specialists who have devoted themselves to the welfare of children.

I am not surprised at the former, which remark I will explain, but regarding those doctors who have worked tirelessly and conscientiously to save child-life and improve the human race I refuse to condone criticism.

There may have been mistakes, there may have been a tendency toward extremes in certain cases, but the fact that they have been so right in advancing medical science is one of the miracles of the ages.

As for the psychologists, I was indignant the other day to read an article by a well-known woman columnist that went into the absurd by one grand gesture all the constructive work that has been done.

There are two things necessary to adult happiness. One is a healthy body, the other is a contented straight mind.

Our insane asylums are filled and our hospitals for nervous diseases overflowing with unhappy minds that
