Fourth of Federal Money
Must Be Used For
Work in Cities

PORTLAND, June 29.—(AP)—The expenditure of $4,100,806 of federal funds in 33 counties of Oregon under provisions of the industrial recovery act was considered by the state highway commission here today. The problem of allocating this money was given attention at the important meeting.

In the counties west of the Cascades from Eugene north it is proposed to spend $2,068,921, or 46.7 per cent of the total federal appropriation.

Public Lands Get Share
In the counties south of Eugene to the California boundary, $1,290,975 or 31.4 per cent will be set aside.

East of the Cascades to a line north and south from Blalock, $808,000 or 14.2 per cent is being allocated, and from Blalock east to the Idaho line, $1,039,000 will be spent. An additional $400,000 will be distributed east of the Cascades under terms of the Colton-Oddie law providing for highway construction through public lands. It is believed this money will be applied to the Central Oregon highway between Junction and Burns, the I-O-N cut off north of McDermitt, and to a road in the Warm Springs Indian reservation.

Cities Get Fourth
The regulations governing administration of the federal money require that 25 per cent must be spent in municipalities, and 25 per cent on secondary roads. It is believed that on such secondary highways, the commission may devote most of the money to construction of new bridges. In the case of municipalities, the great difficulty is in finding projects. But the chief objective is to provide work where employment is most needed.

Under the tentative apportionment $1,738,000 is to be set aside for municipalities, and $1,310,898 for secondary roads. The remaining $3-

Jim Wilkinson Accepts Defy
By Lou DeBurgh For Big Race

Accepting the challenge so carelessly thrown out by Lou DeBurgh Tuesday, Jim Wilkinson Thursday entered the fat men's race to be held here as a feature of the old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration this year, and announced he would go into training at once.

University athletic officials, were plunged into dismay as deep as the Amazon mud Thursday when Jim announced he would conduct his training along lines prescribed by them in their track work. After such creditable accomplishments as turning out Ralph Spengrow, Glen Walkley, Ralph Hill and Paul Starr, they "view with alarm" the problem now confronting them. However, as Bayard J. Welch, chairman of the events committee, pointed out, if they can even get Jim over a walk his reputation will be saved.

As word got out that Jim had accepted the challenge and was in training running around the block, photographers, newspapermen, committee men, track officials and the congress-

Roselurg Reports
Meteor Explosion

ROSELURG, Ore., June 29.—(AP)—Described as one of the largest and brightest ever seen, a huge meteor flashed across the sky toward the southwest and burst with an audible explosion early Tuesday, residents said today.

The astral phenomena left a fiery trail in its wake and spread an intense light over the surrounding country, witnesses said.

The meteor also was reported sighted about the same time near Philomath, and probably was visible from all points between here and the northern town.

Showers Bring
Relief to Crops
Through Midwest

By The Associated Press
Rain which varied up to six inches in extreme southeastern Iowa and eight inches in northeastern Missouri brought relief to crops and residents of parts of the central states today.

Temperatures in many areas went well above 80 degrees, however. The balance of Iowa had local showers which were of small aid to parched crops, but temperatures today were more moderate than yesterday. Northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota had heavy rain, ranging up to two inches, and other sections of the two states had showers.

St. Paul had a noon reading of 59 degrees above zero, compared with 93 at the same time yesterday. At Lincoln, Neb. it was 86 and cloudy.

Rain in southern Wisconsin helped pastures, tobacco, corn and potatoes, but came too late to be of much help to small grains.

Preferred Lists

REPORT IS REVERSED

Revenue Agent's Findings

Of Bosses

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—Charles E. Mitchell and Percy A. Rockefeller were listed today among individuals who, senate investigators were told, were invited to share in profits from floating securities issued by Kuhn, Loeb and Company.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel, placed before the investigating committee a long list of prominent figures in the industrial world invited to participate in the profits.

The list was similar to the selected client lists of J. P. Morgan and Company, but operated differently.

Foreign Tax Paid

Earlier Pecora advocated a government investigation to determine why an internal revenue bureau official changed the classification of an income tax-reducing stock sale by Otto Kahn from a "wash sale" to an "ordinary transaction on the exchange."

Pecora made this suggestion after the committee had received testimony from Kahn, senior partner of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, giant New York banking house, that he had paid a foreign income tax in 1930 when he paid none in this country. Kahn said the tax was $4,480 and he assumed it was paid in Great Britain.

The senate investigators also were told that the government granted Kahn an income tax reduction in 1930 on stock sales without knowledge that the securities were sold to his daughter, Mrs. Maud E. Marriott.

"Sort of Cautious"
After the morning recess, Chairman Fletcher told newspapermen the committee "may make some inquiry into the Roosevelt boom market." He added, however, it would not be done now and no definite plans have been made.

Kahn advocated repeal of the capital gains clause of the income tax law after saying the year-end sale of stocks for tax purposes was "sort of an annual custom."

Under the capital gains clause, taxpayers are permitted to deduct losses in securities but also must report gains through them.

Kahn also expressed the opinion that congress would perform a "great service" if it would find a means to regulate speculation.

Pecora's statement was made to newspapermen after he produced evidence.

Off came his hat, then his shirt and so on until he stood almost completely disrobed. Neighbors who watched from windows hurried to call police.

Hayden Jennings, motor salesman, explained he was walking to work when he felt something race around his waist, head upward and then across his shoulder. The disrobing started and with its completion he found a six-inch centipede inside his shirt. Examination showed he had not been bitten.

His third wife, the former Addie McPhail, screen actress, discovered his death. After summoning the police, she became hysterical from grief. Physicians said Arbuckle died of angina pectoris.

Arbuckle completed a picture "Tomb Raider" yesterday at a Long Island studio. It was one of six he had recently done for Warner Brothers. After dinner last night, he went with his wife to the apartment of William LaHiff, restaurant proprietor, where a party was given in honor of the Arbuckles' anniversary.

Uniform Price For

LOCAL GRADING HIT

State Commissioner Says
Many Dairies May
Be Degraded

A set price of 9 cents a quart, retail, for all grade A milk in Eugene is expected to go into effect Saturday, July 1.

A meeting of dairymen and milk distributors selling independently in the city, as well as representatives of the four creameries, was in progress Thursday afternoon to iron out final problems connected with the new milk price.

The price is generally a boost, although some dairies have been selling their high grade milk at that price for some time. The advance is necessitated by the high costs of feed, many dairies facing huge losses unless something is done to bring about more return for their produce. More than 30 are signed up for the new agreement. The milk distributors association met Wednesday evening to talk over the situation and new program.

Local Dairies Degraded
Simultaneously, with the new set-up in local milk prices, comes an announcement from the office of J. D. Mickle, state dairy and food commissioner, that the following is the grading of dairies in the Eugene milk shed, the grading being based on an inspection just completed for 68 dairies and four milk plants here:

13 dairies of grade A out of the 68 total.

Seven dairies grade B out of the 68 total.

48 dairies grade D out of the 68 total.

Mr. Mickle states the inspection was carried out under a very liberal interpretation of the requirements for the higher grade. It was said that out of 42 dairies locally rated as grade A only 13 could qualify under that rating. Of the 19 locally rated as grade B only 7 could qualify, leaving 48 dairies degraded.

Given 60 Days

The findings reveal that the Eugene milk situation is in need of study and care, the report says. Some conditions found can be corrected in a short time at small expense, others are of more serious nature and will require a longer length of time. In nearly all cases,

For Missing Boy;
Last Seen Sunday

McCALL, Idaho, June 29.—(AP)—Lost in the rugged Rainy Ridge country 165 miles north of here, the seven-year-old son of Frank Lohars was the object of a search today.

Foresters at the Big Creek ranger station, the one nearest to the place of the search, said the lad, whose name was not known here, had been missing since Sunday, when he left one of his father's mining claims to journey four miles on foot to the Sinclair and back canyons.

Not until Tuesday did his father and mother learn the lad was missing. Then Lohars returned to the camp and communicated with his wife to discover the boy had not arrived.

Immediately miners and timbermen in the vicinity started the search. The boy's trail was followed two miles to where he had abandoned the snowshoes to travel at a lower level out of the snow. Beyond that point little trace was left.

Orders Sent to Cease Road Work

The order of the county court suspending all road work for July, August and September on account of lack of funds, due to slowness of tax paying, was sent out to the different district patrolmen Thursday. The order calls for a cessation of work on July 2.

The patrolmen are notified in the order to hold themselves in readiness at any time to do any emergency work and they are not discharged. Some of them have expressed the belief that their services are being dispensed with entirely.

Rush For Licenses
Is On in Earnest

The grand rush for auto licenses is now on at the sheriff's office in Eugene. Word has gone out that the new plates must be on cars on and after Saturday or they cannot be driven on the streets and highways, and hundreds of car owners have been flocking to the sheriff's office the last few days in order to get their plates on time.

More than 300 applied at the office Wednesday and the line in front of the license window was much longer all day Tuesday than it was Wednesday.

Two men have been on duty almost constantly at the window the past two days and the rush is expected to be greater Friday and for several days after that.

Wilcox Says Government
Officials Favor
Oregon Jobs

PORTLAND, June 29.—(AP)—Oregon may share to the extent of $18,000,000 in the national program for industrial recovery and unemployment relief.

This was the word brought from Washington, D. C., by Raymond R. Wilcox, chairman of the state reconstruction advisory board, who for several weeks has been representing Oregon's interest in the national capitol.

"I believe," Wilcox said today, "that terms on which cash advances will be made will prove very liberal. The sewage disposal plans for the Willamette valley met with universal approval. It appears that ten projects for $100,000 each would be in higher favor in Washington than one project for $1,000,000."

The complete program will be released in Washington, D. C., about July 5 when the president returns from his vacation. Wilcox said, Oregon, as other states, will have a state administrator, a committee of three, a technician and legal and engineering advisers.

C. C. Hocher, a paper mill engineer, is considered certain to be appointed administrator for Oregon. Wilcox said. He has the endorsement of Governor Meier, Wilcox, and members of the advisory board.

Money will be available just as fast as projects are approved. It was said, and the advisory committee was meeting here today with Wilcox to hear his recommendations.

Summer Salads Topic For Next Housewives Contest

By MARIAN LOWRY
"Summer Salads" is the topic announced for the new week's contest in the Register-Guard's three-month "Housewives' Forum."

The summer cooking problem offers no more interesting phase than the preparation of salads. Here, the cook has a world of materials and ideas to work with. Of course, any one can take a bit of lettuce and put a dressing on it and call it a salad. But the clever cook is the one who makes her salads so interesting, arresting, and appetizing, that the salad becomes the anticipated part of the meal.

In offering this subject, the Register-Guard forum is presenting one of the most far-reaching contests yet. Your entry in the contest may be a salad for a luncheon, a dinner, a picnic, or for any meal where a salad is used. It may be a salad to be prepared as the main dish on the menu; as the complement to your main meat dish or other featured item on the menu; as the regular salad to balance the luncheon or dinner menu; as the dessert; as the appetizer or first course of the meal; or as the salad for any other use you may make of it on the menu.

The great variety of Lane county grown vegetables and fruits come in as a big aid in making the best of salads.

The regulations for the contest are simple. Write out carefully the recipe and method for making your salad and suggestions for its place on the menu.

The entry should be in by next Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Register-Guard office.

The last two of the winning recipes in last week's contest on one-dish dinners are printed today.

Hits Snag

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—An eagerly-awaited British compromise plan for solution of the stabilization crisis of the world economic conference was chucked overboard in a meeting this evening with European gold bloc countries and responsibility for a way out was laid on Washington's doorstep.

The British and the representatives of the gold bloc decided to appeal to Washington for assistance in overcoming the stabilization problem.

The British compromise had been offered to meet an ultimatum by the gold standard nations, headed by France, which demanded currency stabilization as the price of their remaining in the conference.

Moley Attends Meet

Prior to the meeting between the British and the gold nations there was a lengthy conference of British leaders to discuss the compromise plan offered by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, the details of which were not published.

The British conference was visited by Raymond Moley, American assistant secretary of state, and James P. Warburg, financial adviser to the American delegation.

It was understood that during the discussion of compromise by the French and British, the representatives of the London government stated they could not commit themselves to any arrangement which left America outside stabilization.
