$58,000 will be applied to the regular federal aid system.

Wages Boost Asked
Added to the commission's cause for concern was a request from the Oregon State Federation of Labor that the wage schedule be advanced to a point much higher than schedules in effect when lines on the repression chart were pointed to the depths.

The new schedule proposed by the federation of labor provides for the following hourly rates: bridge, structural iron workers, engineers, and steel hoists, $1.37½; reinforced steel workers, $1.10; painters, carpenters and pile-drivers, $1.12½; pile-driver engineers, $1.25; laborers and concrete mixers and wheelers, 75 cents; steam shovel engineers, $1.50; Crane men and engineers for other machinery, $1; firemen, 87½ cents; oilers and truck drivers, 75 cents; laborers, 62½ cents.

Ben T. Osborne, secretary of the federation, explained that the work is highly seasonal, the men being able to get in an average of but 120 days a year, giving about $1000 annually to a bridge carpenter, or $1300 to an iron worker.

The commission assured Osborne it would give this schedule its best consideration.

SURVEY CALLED OFF

Following protests raised by residents of Springfield, West Springfield and other towns along the Pacific highway, the state highway commission's proposal to reroute the Pacific highway between Junction City and Creswell was definitely abandoned Thursday and the engineers engaged in the survey taken off the work.

Word of the action was received in a telegram from Commissioner Carl Washburne Thursday as follows:

"At my request last night, the survey of a new route for the Pacific highway from Junction City to Creswell was abandoned and the engineers ordered to other projects outside of Lane county. W. H. Lynch, of the bureau of public roads, Leslie J. Scott, chairman of the commission, and E. B. Aldrich, commissioner, concurred in the request."

May Cost Federal Funds

The re-routing was proposed following word from the U. S. federal authorities that the re-routing would be favored by the government on account of flood danger with the present location. High water ties up traffic on the highway between Junction City and Creswell each year, causing damage to the road itself and hampers interstate traffic. The re-routing also would make the highway safer through the elimination of five railroad crossings.

Whether or not federal support to the highway, involving funds expended on upkeep and general maintenance, will be withdrawn following abandonment of the re-routing plan was not known here Thursday.

Had the project been carried through, more than a million dollars would have been spent on the survey and construction of the road in Lane county during the coming two years.

Protests against the road were based on anticipated loss of values on property and investments on the present highway. More than 800 persons signed the petitions protesting the move and suggesting that as a substitute flood control plan, a dike be built along the Willamette.

denance that N. C. Shields submitted a memorandum to the internal revenue bureau two months ago holding Kahn's sales constituted "an ordinary transaction on the exchange."

Previously he had reported in 1931 that the sales by which Kahn claimed a deduction of $117,000 was a "wash sale" but he was overruled by superiors.

Other participants in the sale of securities by Kuhn, Loeb, included J. F. Loebe, Albert H. Wiggin, and F. H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Those on the lists were invited to buy various stocks from Kuhn, Loeb and sell them at a higher price, Pecora said. Most of those named, he added, were executives of railroad companies.

PROGRAM RECOMMENDED

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—The war department today recommended to the public works board a rivers and harbors and flood control program costing approximately $427,000,000, but details were withheld.

The chairman stressed that communities planning to submit projects should obtain temporary approval before going to the expense of preparing detailed plans. Only worthy projects will be considered, he said, inasmuch as "the government has no intention of wasting money but will distribute these funds as widely as possible and where they will do the most good."

He said that J. M. Devers, attorney for the state highway commission, "spent a most trying time prior to the creation of the Washington program, but had unanimous support for the construction of five bridges on the Oregon Coast highway, but pending completion of the program, could not get official confirmation." Wilcox said "the opinion in Washington is that the bridges will be among the first approved projects."
