

CONCERTED EFFORT FOR WOOD BRIDGES URGED BY MARTIN

Calling for concerted efforts by Oregon lumbermen and the Oregon state highway commission to amend federal specifications to permit wider use of timber in bridges, E. E. Martin, Eugene lumberman and engineer, sets forth the views of the lumber industry here in a letter to the Register-Guard.

The letter follows: "I read with interest the article in Friday's edition and your editorial in Tuesday's edition regarding the use of lumber in the proposed Coast highway bridges. Making a mild statement, portions of the interview given by one of the state highway commissioners are open to very serious question, first the intimation that as these bridges are to be built with federal moneys, local interests are not concerned with the material used nor the cost. All reports which I have seen show that only 50 per cent of this money is a direct gift while 70 per cent must be repaid at some time in some manner, but if it were all an outright gift, Oregon is certainly interested in getting the largest and most economical returns from it. The statement was made that the cost of treated wood structures would be as large as for concrete ones; if my memory serves me right, the state highway commission's bridge engineer, Mr. McCullough, at a meeting of the West Side Pacific Highway association held in Corvallis in May of last year made a comparison between the cost of the then new Rogue river concrete bridge and the estimated cost of the proposed composite wood and concrete bridge which he was then designing for the Coast highway at Waldport and stated that the cost of the Waldport bridge per linear foot would be approximately 50 per cent of the cost of the Rogue river bridge and also that the expected life would be 40 years as compared with the 30 attributed to Mr. Washburne. It seemed to me after looking at Mr. McCullough's plans at that time that he was going to make a real contribution to the use of wood in highway structures.

While untreated and unprotected wood may be subject to damage by the salt air of the coast, this damage would be slight when compared to the damage done to steel in the same use and with the same treatment. A steel structure so located would require constant maintenance if it were to give any appreciable life. The railroads are large users of both treated and untreated timber and I quote from a pamphlet published on the subject in 1922. (The Southern Pacific company states, "We have been using

CRESWELL MAY GET UNION HIGH SCHOOL; PETITIONS ARE OUT

Petitions for the formation of a union high school district out of a number of districts with Creswell as the center are in circulation, according to L. C. Moffitt, county school superintendent, and after the necessary signatures of voters are obtained the usual procedure will be followed.

The districts aside from Creswell to be included in the proposed union district are Bear Creek, Cloverdale, Samas Swale, Upper Camas Swale and Howe. When the petitions are filed the county boundary sends out notices of a meeting of the board on a certain date and if there are no remonstrances the board votes to create the union district. If there are, the board then orders an election in each of the districts. There is considerable interest in the matter of the formation of the new district. Superintendent Moffitt said, several meetings have been held in each of the districts affected and the sentiment appears to be in favor of the plan, it was stated. The Creswell high school has been handling all high school pupils from these other districts for a number of years past, each paying the usual tuition. The Creswell school board has made three offers to the proposed union district. First, it agrees to lease the entire upper floor of the present building for a period of five years at $1 a year together with the gymnasium. Second, to sell all the furniture and fixtures and library of the Creswell high school for $2500 in yearly installments of $500 each. Third, to furnish supplies and janitor services for the years 1933 and 1934.

Dollar is Lower On Paris And London Markets

LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—After a quiet and steady opening the American dollar encountered new pressure today which continued throughout the session and it closed at its lowest, $1.52 3/4, or a net loss of 3 1/4 cents.

There was practically no support for American currency and much uncertainty prevailed because of the knowledge that a large bear position exists. Gold currencies were better, especially the Dutch guilder.

PARIS, July 5.—(AP)—The American dollar closed on the Paris market today at 18.78 francs to the dollar (53 1/2 cents to the franc), down 47 centimes from yesterday's close.

proached and assurance was given that Premier Mussolini would support the agreement of the four countries here. Surplus Diminishes Morgenthau stated the next American crop of wheat would be the next to the lowest ever harvested in the country since 1893. This condition, he said, would lead to a diminution in the American surplus. Australia, he added, had agreed to limit exports and not to create any reserve stocks. She may achieve this by denaturing her wheat or by feeding it to animals. Exports are not to be based on production, but on exports which have taken place during the last three to five years. Morgenthau declared it was possible wheat would not become the first primary commodity which would reach a price to give farmers a living income.

Clinics Scheduled By Health Office

A number of clinics will be conducted by Dr. R. C. Romig, county health officer, during the next ten days. The first one will be a pre-school clinic at the Garden Way school Wednesday, July 12, at 10 a. m. The next one will be of the same nature on Thursday, July 13, at the office of the health unit for the children of the River Road district. The third clinic scheduled will be on Friday, July 14, in the health office at the city hall at Cottage Grove at 1:30 p. m. Dr. Romig at that time will interview patients under his care in that part of the county.

$22,500 IN LOANS FOR LANE FARMERS GRANTED APPROVAL

Lane county farming is favorably considered in Washington, as evidenced by $22,500 in federal farm loans just approved by the Federal Land Bank at Spokane. There were nine loans approved.

C. F. Hyde, secretary-treasurer of the local farm loan association, says that a majority of the applications from this section are being approved. For the first five years the loans bear 4 1/2 per cent interest. After that the rate goes up to 5 1/2 per cent and by paying 6 1/2 per cent the loan is paid off in 3 1/2 years. These loans are based on a 50 per cent appraisal on land and 20 per cent on buildings. A limited number of second mortgage loans is being made on appraisals running up to 75 per cent. These loans carry 5 per cent interest over a 34-year period, with 6 per cent payments to retire principal and interest. Farmers now holding federal land bank loans who are delinquent on taxes are able to get them paid by the federal land bank on supplementary loans at 5 1/2 per cent.

association or not, to attend. A special invitation is extended to potato growers. The primary purpose of this meeting is to take steps toward price stabilization in the Eugene vegetable market and this may result in the local growers placing themselves under the provisions of the agricultural recovery act. The meeting is being held to discuss what steps should be taken. T. M. B. Hicks, Jr., will discuss the Industrial Recovery act as it relates to the agricultural recovery act and J. O. Holt, secretary-manager of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association, will discuss the agricultural act. State Group Planned All retail meat dealers of the city are invited to attend the meeting at the chamber of commerce, starting at 7:30 o'clock, according to Ben Perlich, president of the Eugene Retail Meat Dealers' association, which is sponsoring the meeting. Mr. Perlich emphasized the importance of meat

COMMITTEE THANKS WORKERS ON PICNIC

W. T. McDonald, general chairman of the committee in charge of the California State picnic held here Sunday, Wednesday expressed the thanks of the committee to those who assisted in making the event a success.

"We wish especially to thank Dr. Alie Smith who directed the registration, Charles Sullivan, superintendent of parks, and Ray W. Jones, who acted as master of ceremonies at the meeting," Mr. McDonald said. "It was through the efforts of these people and the others who worked faithfully on details of the program that the event was such a success."

dealers being present as the action taken will vitally affect their business. Meat dealers come under the National Industrial Recovery act and must organize to submit a code of fair competition. This work must be done immediately, it was pointed out. It is expected that a state administrator will be named to handle details of the act's operation in this state. It is therefore necessary for the state to have a retail meat dealers' association to prepare the code. It is planned to organize various units throughout the state and thus to form a state association to deal with the government. At a meeting of the National Retail Meat Dealers association in Chicago, June 12, a program consisting of 14 points was drawn up as a basis of codes for the meat business. A report of this meeting will be given at the meeting Wednesday evening. Here are the fourteen points of the program adopted by the national association: 1.—Prohibit use of advertised brands as loss leaders. 2.—Prohibit unscrupulous advertising and misrepresentation in sale of meats. 3.—Prohibit the handling of meat food products by any person other than a licensed dealer. 4.—Number of persons handling meats and meat food products should be limited to that number necessary to accommodate the immediate vicinity according to per capita or zone. 5.—Prohibit unrelated lines from handling meat products. 6.—Prohibit one line of business from encroaching upon another line. 7.—Put meat industry on a cash basis. 8.—Urge the promotion of a uniform law of meat inspection to be enforced by the United States government. 9.—Slaughter all reactor cattle in government inspected houses. 10.—Stabilize wholesale prices to retailers. 11.—Prohibit packers from shipping meats interstate to be sold at dump prices. 12.—Reduce costly packaging of meats and meat food products sold in small unit packages, and compel packer service to confine sales to quantity lots. 13.—Packers and wholesale dealers urged to confine their sales to licensed retail meat dealers. 14.—Recommend to U. S. department of agriculture the urgent need for the promotion of a national meat program.

ROOSEVELT ADAMANT

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—Adamant against immediate stabilization of the dollar, President Roosevelt moved today to assure the continuation of the world economic conference at London which he feels is desirable and certain.

First, he conveyed his latest views to Secretary Hull in a direct conversation with the head of the American delegation at the British capital. Subsequently, he dispatched Lawrence Steinhardt, his minister to Sweden, to London for fresh and personal elaboration of the American position. Mr. Steinhardt will sail tomorrow for the world conference. He conferred with the president, and apparently will carry with him to the deadlocked parley oral instructions to the American delegation. Objections Listed The diplomat, leaving ahead of his original schedule, expects to remain a week at London before proceeding to Stockholm. From his post in Sweden he may later make a personal study of possibilities of American relations with Soviet Russia. Main objections of President Roosevelt to immediate stabilization of currency, as demanded at London, were outlined in an official quarter today as follows: First, he feels it would morally

EDITORIAL
Below we publish a letter that was placed on a display of beer in our store in The Miner Building last Saturday:
Dear Mr. Stanley:
I have been going out of my way to trade with you in preference to trading with the chain stores. But since I have seen this pile of poisonous "rot gut" beer that you have placed in a central spot as a temptation to our poor brainless "educated (?) young people to send them on a drunken career and a drunkard's grave, I am going to quit you, and look for a store that does not try to sell "rot gut" that swine would refuse, along with groceries.
Yours truly,
A FORMER CUSTOMER
Now, my comment:
The writer of this letter is a snail and a coward. He hasn't the "guts" to sign his name or express himself openly. I would not want the milk to come into one of our stores, for I do not believe our merchandise would be safe alongside such a character.
The only good point he makes is when he classes himself with swine. When a man's independence can be ground to a point where such narrow minded people can control us, I'm doing something besides selling groceries.
And when we sell beer we will sell it openly, because we are not snails or bootleggers.
Every grocery store in town sells malt; and every seller, purchaser and maker violates the law, yet this "honest" man has no objection.
Should the good Lord offer me a place in heaven, knowing I would be copied up with characters of this kind, I would say: "No, thank you, Lord, I'll take my chance in hell." But I don't think the Lord is this kind of a fellow. I picture him as more of the Roosevelt type.
Yours very truly,
GEO. C. STANLEY
