

BARGAIN BRIDE

CHAPTER XI
AY morning Higgins appeared with a card upon which was written the name, "Mr. Harold"

"What can I do for you, Mr. Barrett asked without pre-greeting.
"I want a chance to talk with you, Mr. Barrett," said the young man in Higgins, "I am as laid the card on the table from which he'd taken it. He was standing, chin hardening. A door opened and Harold Dexter appeared. He was a man whose pallor was increased by his horn-rimmed glasses. There was a sly, nervous smile on his face."

There was nothing to do now but hope and pray that the fear he had put into Dexter would endure at least until Marcia was well again. Later if there were trouble she must face it. He telephoned to tell her he had seen Dexter. The matter had been settled and there was nothing more for her to worry about. He prayed as he said it that the words were true. An hour later a note arrived from Miss Ella Stafford. The note read, "My dear Boots, Miss Elinor Stafford, is to take tea with me this afternoon at four. I would be charmed to have you drop in at that hour if it suits your convenience."

CANDLEWICK PILLOWS

Candlewicking has been a choice form of decoration from Colonial to the present time. It's newest place is on cushions that add coziness and comfort to bedroom or porch. In this pattern, the Colonial over pattern can be carried out entirely in candlewicking or in a combination of candlewicking and French knots. As it is very easy to do, candlewicking, this pillow could be made in two shades of one color. The ever-popular Scottie is most attractive done in candlewicking or French knots. Using the latter the Scottie would make a smart pillow if embroidered in wool in place of wicking. The top is removable and washable. They make attractive articles for a church fair or gift. Pattern No. 475 includes a 12-inch square all-over pattern, a Scottie 14 1/2 inches, as well as directions for candlewicking and making the pillows. Send 10c for this pattern to the Eugene Register-Guard, Needle Dept., 52 Eighth Ave., New York City.
