by a stray bullet. None of the policemen was injured.

Stankiewicz was arrested early last night after he had appeared at the home of J. H. Mulligan, about eight miles north of Albany, and asked for food. A member of the Mulligan family, his suspicions aroused because the youth was carrying two loaded .22 caliber rifles, phoned the sheriff's office. Stankiewicz quietly submitted to arrest when Deputy Sheriff Jason Anderson responded to the call.

At the county jail Mrs. Herbert Shelton, wife of the sheriff, went to unlock the door to the cells, while Anderson placed his pistol and two clips of shells on the steps leading to the sheriff's apartment. The deputy started to search his prisoner, but suddenly the man broke loose, grabbed up the pistol and the clips, raced up the stairs, and locked himself in the apartment.

State police were called, and a squad was rushed from Salem headquarters with a machine gun, rifles, and tear and smoke bombs. The bombs were hurled into the room, but Stankiewicz broke the windows, allowing the fumes to escape, then seized some of the missiles, wrapped them in bed clothing, and hurled them back at the officers.

Once a bomb struck a bedroom bureau and set it afire. Then the outlaw appeared at an open window. Exposing himself for the first time to the officers' fire, he seemed about to jump. But firemen, who had responded to an alarm, played a stream of water on the man and forced him back into the room. Soon the flames were extinguished.

Other Prisoners Moved

A second call for state police reinforcements and more bombs was phoned to Salem. When the new squad arrived, the barrage of bombs was renewed. Presently all was quiet in the apartment. Deputy Sheriff Sloan of Benton county ventured up the stairs and into the room. He found the man lying buried in blankets in the closet, clutching a pistol in his hands. The deputy advanced to take the firearm, when Stankiewicz suddenly revived and pointed the weapon at Sloan.

State Policeman Ellard, however, who had climbed a ladder to a window of the apartment, opened fire on the prisoner, wounding him in the leg and groin. The man slumped unconscious to the floor, and died at the hospital without regaining consciousness.

Meanwhile, four prisoners, the only other inmates of the jail, had been removed to the Corvallis jail 10 miles away, so that they would not be endangered by the tear and smoke bomb fumes.

Stankiewicz, the officers said, escaped from the state hospital Monday with Elmer Becker, another patient. Becker was captured early Tuesday in a barn near Salem.

THOUGHT TRANSIENT

SALEM, July 12.—(P)—Frank Stankiewicz, 22, who was killed at Albany last night after barricading himself in the Linn county jail, had suffered fixed delusions and hallucinations of hearing noises, state hospital officials said today.

"He was evidently a transient who had not been in the state very long," an attendant said. Although he was not a trusty, he was on a garden detail crew here Monday when he escaped.

He had been at the hospital less than a month, commitment being made June 19 of this year from Curry county.

Pre-School Clinic Held at Garden Way

Twelve children were examined at the pre-school clinic at the Garden Way school Wednesday forenoon. It was held under the auspices of the P. T. A. of the district and was conducted by Dr. R. C. Romig, county physician, and Mrs. Della Fitzgerald, county health nurse.

A pre-school clinic for the River Road school will be held at the health unit quarters in the courthouse Thursday at 2 p. m. and Dr. Romig will be at the city hall in Cottage Grove Friday to meet lonely patients in that locality.

INDIAN BOSS! STORY

First Indian to be made a reservation superintendent under the "new deal" policy is Wade Crawford, named head of the Klamath reservation.

Mackie, structural engineer representing the National Lumber Manufacturers' West Coast Lumbermen's, Western Pine and Willamette Valley Lumber associations appeared before the commission and directed personal remarks against C. B. McCullough, state bridge engineer.

Mackie had proceeded but a short distance with his cross examination when Leslie M. Scott, visibly angry at the manner the wooden bridge discussion was going, ended Mackie's personal remarks and demanded he keep his arguments confined to the bridges. Scott declared the commission had every confidence in McCullough and would not tolerate any "bullying by you or anyone else."

Mackie said the lumbermen wanted timber construction as a matter of principle and would not be satisfied with the fact that as much or more lumber would be used on the five-rod concrete for concrete. He said they wanted timber approaches.

This, it developed, involved but $500,000 or $600,000 of the entire program, but Chairman Scott, who said he had consulted with Carl G. Waaburne and E. B. Aldrich, his fellow commissioners, declared that the $100,000 "first cost" saving possible through timber approaches was not enough to warrant pursuit of such a policy. There is $17,000,000 already invested in the coast highway and ultimately $25,000,000 will be invested in this road, a sum too great to allow of impingement by collapse or destruction by fire of a wooden approach to a bridge, Scott pointed out.

To Floyd W. Allen, consulting engineer retained by the McCormick Lumber company, Chairman Scott pointed out that there is a cross-timber monopoly in Oregon because the plant at St. Helens is the only commercial cross-timber plant in the state. He also added that cement is every bit as much an Oregon product as timber.

Earl Hill, president of the Oregon Coast Highway association, said the association supported wholeheartedly the highway commission's bridge plans. "And we're from timber counties," he added.

E. W. Miller, secretary of the same association, said the entire coast district has confidence in the commission and its engineering department. "We support the highway department in this," he said. "We urge no delay in pushing the program as it is outlined."

Candidates For Power Jobs Are Ruled Off Ballot

SALEM, July 12.—(P)—The names of power commission candidates will not go on the special election ballot of July 21, the state supreme court ruled today.

Peter Zimmerman, Morton Tompkins and A. Slaughter obtained a temporary injunction in the Marion county circuit court last week to compel the secretary of state to place their names on the special election ballot as candidates for the power commission created under the new grant power bill.

The injunction was immediately appealed to the supreme court, which rejected it and ordered it returned to the lower court for dismissal.

The ruling of the supreme court does not affect the grant power bill itself, which is held in abeyance pending a court ruling on a referendum filed against it.

Lodge Out of Jail At Sacramento

John P. Lodge, who spent some time in the Lane county jail last fall and winter after his arrest on a charge of throwing a stink bomb in the Hellig theater, has just been released from jail at Sacramento, Cal., where he served 90 days for vagrancy, according to word received by Sheriff Swartz Wednesday.

Lodge was arrested here Nov. 30, 1932, and was acquitted March 25, 1933. He was immediately released from jail, and went to Sacramento, where he was arrested the next day on a vagrancy charge.

Oklahoma Votes For Beer, Gets It

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 12.—(P)—Governor William H. Murray decided today to let Oklahoma have its beer.

After 80 of the governor's national guardsmen had prevented overnight unloadings of the brew legalized in a special election yesterday, "Alfalfa Bill" today issued a proclamation announcing sales would not be interfered with.

The proclamation was the signal for fleets of beer trucks to rumble into action, transporting cases of the brew from railroad cars to wholesale and retail dealers.

Applicants for beer licenses swarmed the offices of the tax commission. Returns from 2,737 of the state's 3,813 precincts gave the wet side a majority of 88,604, the vote being 202,778, to 114,174.

Governor Murray said his martial law order last night was "to prevent them from making a joke of the law."

Was Good Pilot

Howard was a careful student pilot, his instructor said after the crash, and had never before been in a serious accident. He started taking flying lessons at the local airport when he first entered the university last fall.

The plane, an Arenaco, was one that had been used regularly at the airport and was in good condition when Howard took off.

The plane was owned by Harry Parks of Creswell and operated by the Hohl Airways on commission. Herman H. Hohl has been operating at the municipal airport for six years and this is the first serious accident at the port to a local flier.

Young Howard was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Howard, of Pendleton. His father is connected with the Union Pacific railroad there. He had one sister, Alene.

Was Popular Student

The young man attended the University for his first year of college work and then spent two years at Oregon State, transferring back to the University last fall in order to complete his work in business administration. He graduated with this year's class and was remaining for the summer session to gather extra credits. He was a member of Lambda Chi living fraternity and of Alpha Kappa Psi, the business honorary society.

"ANTI-KNOCK-Standard unsurpassed"

Here is the AAA Report. Read it: "This is to certify that we, the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, have conducted a series of tests on Standard Gasoline, manufactured by Standard Oil Company of California, and six other gasolines considered to be leading brands, for comparative detonation (anti-knock), under actual road conditions, using what is technically known as the Cooperative Fuel Research Road Test method. Under the procedure and conditions that obtained at the time of the test in this car, we find Standard Gasoline is unsurpassed. All tests were conducted by us under carefully controlled conditions of operation, in a 1933 stock model sedan, and in accordance with the rules and policies of the AAA Contest Board. This statement is based on data developed by and on file with the AAA Contest Board."
