YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

BE careful about sunbaths these scorching days.

Again I urge that the doctor be consulted about what your children need. As I said in a former article, it is not necessary to call him every five minutes on the telephone or even every day. But make out a list of questions to ask when you do see him. And make it a point to see him. His advice plus your good judgment make the best combination of safety I know.

Scorching summer sun shining for long directly on the body can do a great deal of harm. It is just a question whether on very hot days small bodies need sunbaths at all. But if so, it should be in the first part of the morning, or toward evening.

Ask the Doctor's Advice

I cannot presume to direct the sunbath when the thermometer is 50 or 60 degrees. Then the chief business of life is to keep the children as cool as possible. But ask the doctor. He will direct you.

Those children old enough to run around, as well as the baby, need little clothing. You cannot keep them in the shade every second but at midday and during the intense afternoon heat, it is better for them to be in the dark, under a light cloth. Don't let them play out on a baked street with the sun beating down on bare heads and where the concrete is hot enough to fry pancakes.

Later in the summer the children will get more "hardened" to the sun. These first hot days have the effect of shock. The sun like some medicines has to be approached gradually in small doses to be at all useful. When skin pigments increase and the skin is conditioned to stand the onslaught of rays, children may more safely stand exposure.

Mid-Afternoon Dangerous

But one rule I should observe all through the summer, ever permit continued exposure through the hot part of the afternoon. During that time they should be quiet. And most of them should either be having naps (up to five—or even six in a more delicate child)—or if not napping, resting in bed—alone.

A word here about sunburn. I believe that most people know now that sunburn is not to be fooled with. Not only does it destroy skin surface and its power to throw off perspiration, but it does things to the body. When a certain amount of skin surface is destroyed even temporarily, it throws an extra burden on other excretory organs, sometimes more than they can take care of. Go at sunburn slowly and carefully.

Keep Little Heads Covered

Heads should be covered. Make the little children wear brimmed hats (you can get them for a dime) when they are out in the hot sun.

I have been asked about cod liver oil in summer. This is one other thing the doctor has to settle. The sun is considered a substitute, or rather the other way about. Many children are taken off the oil when hot days begin. But others continue it if they are weak, ill, or malnourished. The little baby, too, may or may not need it depending on his condition, where he lives and how he lives.

All signs fall in this cruel weather. There can be no blanket rule that covers every case.

Pantomime Will Be Given In August

MUCH interest is being expressed in the forthcoming children's pantomime production under the sponsorship of the Very Little Theatre group. The presentation will be some time during the first of August, the date to be set later.

A group of fifty children is taking part. Rehearsals are being held each Tuesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Ethel Christie is director for the pantomime. Miss Mary Jean Warner is in charge of costumes and Orville Thompson is business manager. Mrs. Kenneth W. Moore is coaching the dance parts and Miss Juliette Claire Gibson is general assistant for the production. Miss Frances Brockman is arranging a children's orchestra to play, assisted by Douglas Orme, who is arranging for band music.

Lodge Group Honors Past Heads

Past guardian neighbors of the Neighbors of Woodcraft were honored at the meeting of the lodge on Thursday evening. Mrs. Ida Adams of Springfield and Mrs. Vernon Fields of Portland, national representative of the lodge, Mrs. Young of California, grand circle law committee member, and several district officers were present for the meeting.

Mrs. Albert McMurphy headed the past guardian neighbors taking the chairs, being guardian neighbor for the meeting. Mrs. John A. Zimmer was past guardian neighbor; Mrs. J. N. Wray, adviser; Mrs. Fred Ludford, magician; Mrs. John Marsh, attendant; Mrs. Prince Glaze, flag bearer; Mrs. May T. Moon, inside sentinel; Mrs. Emma Smith, outside sentinel.

Five new members were initiated; one member accepted by transfer; and balloting done on another candidate. The group's next meeting will be August 10.

About sixty-five attended the meeting Thursday. The second division of the guards served refreshments following the program.

Titus, president of the club, to be in charge is made up of Harry Gordon, Clarence V. Simon, Wayne Akers, A. A. Reid, and Louis Waldorf.

TODAY'S RECIPES

By SISTER MARY

YOU'LL gain a reputation as one of the most charming hostesses in town if you master the art of serving delicious, cooling drinks when your friends drop in on the hottest days of summer.

There are many syrups which you can have on hand. With a bottle of lemon syrup or some other syrup in your ice-box you'll never be at a loss when unexpected guests arrive. If the store around the corner sells ice cream it is a good idea to know how to make a few refreshing hot-day drinks in combination with ice cream.

Lemonade in itself, is an ideal beverage. Allow one ripe lemon to each tall glass, add two teaspoonfuls of sugar to each one, fill up the glass with cold water and chopped ice, garnish with a sprig of mint or a tiny piece of orange and serve.

Fruit Juices are Handy

Grape juice is delicious. Try adding a dash of fresh lemon or lime juice to it, occasionally, for variety's sake. Grape juice, bottled, was never meant to be drunk as it comes out of the bottle. It should be diluted somewhat with ice water. Or, it can be diluted with grape fruit or pineapple juice.

Pineapple juice has become more popular in the last year as a healthful breakfast beverage. You'll find that it makes an appetizing cool drink on hot days too.

If you serve ice cream in your cold drinks, add it last. A couple tablespoonfuls to each glass is enough. Less sugar is needed when you use ice cream. It, in itself, is sweet. Ginger ale, with a small ball of ice cream to each glass, is another favorite.

Mint in High Favor

The best garnish for all cold beverages is a sprig of mint. If you have a mint bed in your garden, so much the better. However, it is not expensive this time of year and your grocer can get it for you. To keep mint cool and crisp, wrap it in a damp, clean towel and place it near the ice. It will stay fresh for days if treated in this manner.

Doctors tell us that drinks which have been cooled in the refrigerator, rather than those which have ice cream in them, are better for our stomachs. If your guests are not unexpected, there is no reason why your summer beverages can't be made and cooled on the ice before they arrive. In this way, you won't have to add ice to them.

Another thing to remember is to sip cold drinks slowly. Not only do they have a more lasting cooling effect if consumed in this manner but they are better for you.

THE WORLD IS DIMMED

For many children who suffer from headaches, nervous exhaustion, poor concentration, blurred and painful vision and brain fog through failure to have eye sight examinations and wearing correct glasses when needed.

ARE YOU FAIR
In expecting them to succeed under such undeserved and avoidable handicaps? Expose yourself to the idea of being on the square with them.

We make no charge for a skillful and thorough eye analysis and examination and moderate prices prevail.

FOR STATIONERS

DEAR FRIENDS:
I'll venture the opinion that you can't find a lot of Eugene who doesn't like beautiful silverware.

I've been watching it here at the store. Mr. Skeels knows, has some of the most beautiful silverware I ever saw.

I haven't seen a lady pass the silverware display without stopping to look at it. And lots of men do, too.

One lady said yesterday, "My, isn't that beautiful! That's the usual comment. Are you needing new silverware?"
